JAPANESE LEADERS TOLD OF OUR REPLY

Premier Takes Rivals Into His Confidence on Land Law Protest.

NEWS PLEASES WASHINGTON

It Is Believed to Indicate the Sincerity of Japan's Efforts to Allay Hostility.

TOKIO, May 29.—As the result of the growing attacks by the Opposition the Japanese Government to-day took the Elder Statesmen and other Leaders, among them Prince Tare Katsura, the former Premier, into its confidence on the Californian question and submitted to them the text of America's reply to Japan's protest against the Californian alien land ownership legislation.

The text of the reply sent by Washington emphasizes the point that the question at issue is an economic and not a political one. It points out that the State of California insists that there has been no violation of the American-Japanese treaty. After dwelling upon the friendship of the United States for Japan, the reply concludes that the courts of law are open and expresses the hope that the question may be solved in a manner satisfactory to Japan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—That the real importance of the Japanese contention against the California aliend land law was the intimate connection of the matter with domestic politics in Japan, which was recently explained in THE NEW YORK TIMES, was confirmed in advices received by the State Department to-day. Premier Yamamoto to-day invited Prince Katsura and Count Okum and other leaders of the Opposition parties to a conference and submitted to them the Japanese protest made to this Government and the reply of Secretary Bryan.

Mr. Bryan declined to discuss the incident, but it is believed that he regarded it as of the greatest importance as indicating the real character of the attitude assumed by Japan during the month the California alien land law occupied the attention of the people of the United States. It serves to clear the atmosphere of many misunderstandings and to relieve the alrm of those who thought the two countries might at almost any moment be plunged into war. Secretary Bryan would make no comment on the fact that the Japanese protest and his own reply had practically been made public in Japan further tnan to say that it was his understanding that the two documents were still held to be confidential, and had been shown to the Opposition leaders in a patriotic effort to satisfy them of the good faith of the present Government of Japan in the situation.

Mr. Bryan said that he had no intention of making the protest or reply public here because of the action taken by Premier Yamamoto. The documents are not likely to be given out for publication until all the excitement over the California land law has subsided in Japan.

It is thus clear that the two Governments are working in accord to allay all feeling of hostility.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Although the American reply to the Japanese protest against California land legislation was made ten days ago, there has as yet been no rejoinder, formal or informal. The Japanese Ambassador did not appear at the State Department to-day—"diplomatic Thursday"—because he had not received from Tokio the instructions necessary for the preparation of his note.

This delay, however, is not construed as an indication of any purpose on the part of the Japanese Government to drop the negotiations. As a matter of fact, it is known that extraordinary pains have been taken to prepare a diplomatic communication to cover every point set out in the last note of Secretary Bryan.

It is believed that there will be a polite dissent from the California declaration, drafted into the State Department's reply, that the Webb act is not in violation of the existing treaties. This will apply particularly to the Japanese claim that the California provision that Japanese may not inherit real property conflicts with older treaties than that of 1911.

Tokio advices regarding the conference of the Japanese Cabinet with the Opposition leaders is understood here to forecast the presentation by the Japanese of a united front in all of the subsequent stages of the negotiations. This, while adding to the weight of the Japanese note, is expected to make easier the task of negotiation.

THREAT FOR MAYOR'S HOME.

Two Strangers at St. James Said They Would Blow Up His House.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JAMES, L. I., May 29.—Deputy Sheriff Moir has been investigating a threat made on Monday night by two young men, strangers in the village, to the effect that they were going to blow up Mayor Gaynor's home here. He told about it to-day, and said he had come to the conclusion that it had represented nothing more than somebody's idea of a joke.

A number of men were in a saloon on the North Country Road about a quarter of a mile from Mayor Gaynor's place Monday night, when two young men wearing slouch hats and long coats walked into the room. They beckoned to a man in the place to come outside, and when he accepted their invitation he found himself looking down the barrel of a revolver. An automobile whose engine was running, was standing outside the place.

One of the men asked if the Mayor was at home, and on receiving an affirmative answer, said that he and his companion intended to blow up the Mayor's house before morning. He exhibited what appeared to be a nickel-plated bomb to the astonished native. The latter's yell brought all the men in the place outside, but the youths jumped into their machine and were off before any one could stop them.

The men in the saloon went to the Mayor's residence, but found everything there peaceful. They woke up Supt. Wilson, but he had heard nothing. The Mayor was not disturbed, and did not know of the matter until the next morning.

ONE JUROR SAVES GIBSON.

Lawyer's Second Trial for Szabo Death Ends in Disagreement.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, May 29.—After reporting for the third time to-day that eleven of their members who favored conviction had "exhausted their psychological and all other resources" in trying to convert the stubborn twelfth man, the jurors in the second trial of Burton W. Gibson for the alleged murder of Rosa M. Szabo, were discharged by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. Gibson was ordered taken back to the Goshen Jail, presumably to await a third trial in the Fall term of the Supreme Court. When the jurors had gone, District Attorney Wilson said he would take no further proceedings against Gibson for the present.

Justice Tompkins, who was surrounded by the eleven convinced jurors after they were discharged, heard their fierce denunciation of their obstinate colleague.

The stubborn juror was Charles Reynolds, a farmer from Howells, in the town of Wallkill. His comrades reported that while the trial was progressing he drew apart from them and quarrelled with them as to the arrangements for meals and other plans.

In the jury room, the first ballot, taken at 8 o'clock last evening, showed elven for conviction and one for acquittal. All through last night and today the balloting was continued, with the same reiterated result.

William S. Wilkin, foreman, made this statement concerning the outcome: "I hope Gibson has another trial. I should like to contribute to the cost of such a trial, if I could afford to do so. Eleven fair-minded men entered the jury box who were united in the view that we were treating with a dangerous person, whom it would be unsafe to have at large. I wish the people who paid for this trial to know how eleven of us stood.

"One juror refused to have anything to do with us. He refused to answer questions. He refused to give his views. He refused to tell us where he stood on any subject. Except for him, we would have been back in court very shortly after retiring.

"Our efforts, continued from 8 P. M. yesterday for twenty-one hours, were of no use."

Reynolds admitted he was the juror who had refused to vote for conviction. He said the medical testimony could not be comprehended by him, and that Mrs. Szabo's death, he believed, might have been caused by drowning.

EXPECT WAR'S END TO-DAY.

All the States but Montenegro Have Promised to Sign Peace Treaty.

LONDON, May 29.—The treaty of peace between the Balkan Allies and Turkey, which will be known as the Peace of London, will be signed at noon to-morrow at St. James's Palace, unless some unexpected hitch occurs. Servia has followed Greece in reluctant orders to her delegates to sign. Turkey and Bulgaria indicated their willingness some time ago, and it is assumed that Montenegro will oppose no obstacles.

Greece held out for the addition of a protocol until the last moment, when she was assured by Turkey that all conventions prevailing before the war would resume their effectiveness until an opportunity was given to discuss the points at issue.

The protocol which Greece wanted appended to the treaty embodied reservations by the allies on points yet to be discussed with the powers, such as the financial post-bellum settlement, the fate of the Aegean Islands, and the frontiers of Albania. Bulgaria and Turkey refused absolutely to have anything to do with a protocol, the former regarding it as too likely to open fresh and undesirable discussions, the latter as betraying a lack of deference to the powers.

While the Peace of London may end the war with Turkey, it may be the signal for strife among the allies. The speech of the Servian Premier in the Parliament at Belgrade on Wednesday, when he explained that Servia desired a modification of the treaty with Bulgaria regarding the division of territory, instead of allaying irritation has increased it to such an extent that it is not likely now that his meeting with Premier Guechoff of Bulgaria on the frontier will take place.

All the efforts of Russia to bring about peace between Bulgaria and Servia have apparently failed, and the worst is feared. Meanwhile, the quarrelsome allies are throwing enormous bodies of troops into Macedonia for the purpose of occupying disputed territory.

The relations between Bulgaria and Greece are still extremely strained. The Bulgars thus far have refused to create a neutral zone at Salonika, where the Greek Premier, M. Venizelos, is waiting to meet the Bulgarian Gen. Ivanoff. This conference is expected to check the Bulgarian militarists, who, apparently, are acting in defiance of the home Government.

SALONIKA, May 29.—A dispatch from a trustworthy source says that the Bulgarian troops have destroyed the village of Hadji, between Salonika and Serres, and have massacred the Mussulman population.

HELD UP, SAVE $6,000 PAY.

Guard Killed, Three Zinc Employes Wounded by Four Masked Men.

LA SALLE, Ill., May 29.—Four masked bandits held up pay rigs of the Illinois Zinc Company five miles southeast of here this afternoon, killing one man and wounding three others, but $6,000 in cash for the semi-monthly pay of 160 miners was saved by the wild dash of a wounded officer, who escaped under fire of the robbers.

Ben Dierks, former Police Chief of Peru, Ill., acting as guard for the Zinc Company men, was instantly killed by bandits. The wounded:

Elmer West, clerk, shot in head, neck, and chest; brought to St. Mary's Hospital, La Salle; condition very serious.

F. D. Richmond, civil engineer; shot in back; flesh wounds; shot removed and able to help pay off men.

Henry Oesterle, employe, glancing shot in head, also shot in arm and body; condition not serious.

Money for the payroll was sent to Black Hollow Mine in two buggies in charge of these four men. A mile from the destination the robbers sprang up from the brush and opened fire with automatic shotguns. The first volley killed Dierks, who was driving the second buggy. West also fell at the first volley.

Richmond, who was in the rig with West and the money, whipped up the horse and fled, while the robbers stood in the road and continued to fire at him. With the escape of the first buggy the bandits left the other unmolested and fled through the woods.

When Dierks fell dead in the second vehicle Oesterle seized the reins, whipped up the horse, and followed the other rig to the mine, where the money was turned over to officials. The miners were paid off, and then joined in searching for the robbers.

Police officials from La Salle and Peru started for the scene in automobiles equipped with rifles. Sheriff Mischke accompanied the pursuers. Messages were sent to Springfield for bloodhounds, and the dogs were expected to reach La Salle at midnight. In the meantime the place of attack was guarded by watchmen, so that it would be untouched when the hounds arrived.

That the bandits were men familiar with the system of paying at the zinc plant is the opinion of the police. To confirm this suspicion the officers point out that the robbers were masked.

BAR TO INVESTIGATE COHALAN CHARGES

Association Will Act on Its Own Initiative if No One Calls Upon It to Start Inquiry.

THE JUSTICE MAY APPLY

Connolly, Continuing His Attack, Says Cohalan Blocked His Efforts to Get a Job from Murphy.

The Bar Association, it became known yesterday, was determined to take up on its own initiative, if no formal complaint was made to it by one of its members, an investigation of the charges brought by John A. Connolly against Justice Cohalan. It was said that members of the association would not be surprised if the Justice asked it to inquire into the story that he exacted from Connelly $3,040 as a commission for obtaining for the Victor heating concern work from the city departments, and that when Connolly asked him to get him a political job he obtained a note for $4,000 from him, and then never found him a place.

Since these incidents are alleged to have taken place before Justice Cohalan was elevated to the bench, and since there is nothing alleged that is illegal, the investigation could be undertaken more effectually by the Bar Association than by any other body. The association could examine the ethics of his actions as well as their complexion in the eye of the law.

Some doubt was expressed yesterday as to which committee of the association would be called upon to conduct the investigation. Any member might file a complaint with the Complaint Committee, and if no lawyer cared to take that step the Judiciary Committee might take cognizance of the affair. On the other hand, Justice Cohalan, it was thought, would be likely to apply to the Executive Committee.

The instalment of Connolly's accusations which was published yesterday involved Justice Cohalan by implication. Connolly admits that for years he was a persistent seeker after political office, and suggested himself as a worthy candidate for Corporation Tax Commissioner on two separate occasions, and then for any job Mr. Murphy might think he was worth, preferably an inspectorship under the Superintendent of Public Works, if he could not get anything else, he felt himself, he said, capable of filling the post of Librarian to the Assembly.

None of these plums came his way, and he now asserts that it was all Justice Cohalan's fault. His first application for a Corporation Tax Commissionership was made in December, 1905, just after the election at which he had contributed $1,000 to the Tammany Hall funds. He wrote to Mr. Murphy about it, and on Jan. 8 Mr. Murphy telegraphed him from Albany:

Saw Mr. Glynn last night. He had your papers and appointed you.

On Jan. 30 Controller Glynn wrote to Connelly, telling him that he could not have the job, as no one but a good lawyer could fill it. In this Connolly sees the hand of Justice Cohalan, because later Wallace Fraser, a friend of Justice Cohalan, got the place. Just then, according to Connolly, Justice Cohalan was trying to get another $1,500 from the Victor Heating Company. Connolly said he refused to give it, on the ground that the company's business would not bear any further tax.

Connolly makes much of the fact that in the following June Controller Glynn told him of the chance to qualify in the Civil Service for an examinership of municipal accounts. He says that this notification showed that the Controller felt he had treated him shabbily.

In November, 1906, Connolly applied once more for Corporation Tax Commissionership and Mr. Murphy referred him to Controller Sohmer. He was then infomed that the place had been abolished. Nothing daunted, Connolly once more wrote to Mr. Murphy and left the designation of the place in which he could serve to the latter entirely in the hands of the Tammany leader, though he did suggest that he would like to be an inspector under the Superintendent of public Works or Librarian of the Assembly.

In reply to this communication, Connolly received only the formal acknowledgment of its receipt from Thomas F. Smith, secretary of Tammany Hall, which he knew meant that it would not be considered.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 29.—Lieut. Gov. Martin H. Glynn, when asked as to his connection with the charges made against Justice Cohalan, said that Connolly applied to him for a job as Tax Commissioner when he was Controller. He found the work required a lawyer, he asserted.

"The only reason that I did not appoint Mr. Connolly was because he was not a lawyer," he said. "The office was then in such bad shape that only a lawyer could have qualified to do the work. Its condition was such, in fact, that the man who held the position before had committed suicide. The statement that I appointed Wallace Fraser at that time is wrong. I appointed Mr. O'Sullivan, the well-known criminal lawyer, and he cleaned up the office in some two months. Then I made Mr. O'Sullivan head of the Inheritance Tax Bureau, and named Fraser to the place O'Sullivan had previously held.

"As to the letter said to have been marked confidential to Mr. Connolly notifying him of a civil service examination for examiner of municipal accounts, I knew nothing about that. I had instructed my secretary, Mr. Gott, to notify all applicants who had been strongly recommended for appointment of the fact that this examination was about to be held so that all would be put on the same footing."

PARODY JARRED TEACHER.

Girl's Latin Work So Effective That Instructor Resigns.

NUTLEY, N. J., May 29.—The classics received more attention in Nutley this week than in any previous period of the town's history. It was due to two bright girls and a teacher in the High School. As a part of the work in Latin prose the members of one of the classes were recently required to write compositions, and the two pupils in question chose for the model of their essays Cicero's oration against Catiline; the one writing in the person of a teacher, the other in the person of a pupil, and each expressing in Ciceronian periods her ardent desire that the other take such action as might be described in the words, "abit, excessit, erupit, evasit"—that, in the vernacular, she "go away from here."

The girls' schoolmates thought it was pretty good Latin, and pretty good fun. The teacher thought otherwise about the fun, at least. She reported the young parodists to the principal, and he vindicated discipline by suspending them for one week. Then the parents of the girls said things to the members of the Board of Education which induced the calling of a meeting of that body, at which the resignation of the Latin instructor was read.

DUFFY PUT $1,000 A MONTH IN BANK

Accused Police Sergeant, on Pay of $1,750 a Year, Saved $73,000 in Seven Years.

District Attorney Whitman is wondering whether Police Sergt. Peter J. Duffy, alleged graft collector for ex-Inspector Dennis Sweeney, will plead poverty when he comes up for trial before Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court next Wednesday.

Information has reached the District Attorney that Sergt. Duffy is in the $100,000 class of property owners along with a number of Inspectors and Captains, who have thrived well in the Police Department.

Mr. Whitman found that Duffy had deposited in the National Bank of Yonkers since March 7, 1906, no less than $73,000; that he deposited a total of $3,000 in two savings banks there; that he owns a home there worth $14,000, and an apartment house worth $30,000.

The account in the National Bank interested the District Attorney most. It stands in the joint names of Peter J. Duffy and Mary A. Duffy, his wife.

Only $3,083 Left in Three Banks.

Out of the $73,000 deposited only $83 remained credited to the joint account yesterday. The last check was drawn on May 22 last. The savings accounts, however, remain intact. To all appearances, therefore, Duffy has in three separate banks in Yonkers at this time only $3,083 out of a total of $76,000, deposited within seven years.

The Duffy home in Yonkers is at 138 Landscape Avenue. It is the permanent home of Mrs. Duffy and the three children, a boy and two girls. There is at present a mortgage of $7,000 on the home, according to the District Attorney's investigators. Duffy himself, it was said, maintained a little bachelor apartment in the city. The apartment house property in Duffy's name is at 21 and 23 Radford Street, Yonkers. Although valued at $30,000, there is a mortgage on it of $24,500, leaving an equity of $5,500.

Duffy enrolled in the Police Department in 1896 at a salary of $800. Within five years he was earning the maximum patrolman's salary of $1,400. He remained on this basis until 1910, when he was promoted to a Sergeantcy with a salary of $1,750. From 1910 until his suspension in February last his salary was $1,750. The total amount earned in salary during his seventeen years on the force was approximately $24,000.

Deposits of $1,000 a Month.

It was about six years ago that Duffy moved his family to Yonkers. That was also about the time that he first served on Inspector Sweeney's staff in Harlem. When Sweeney was transferred to Brooklyn for a time Duffy went with him. When Sweeney later was sent back to Harlem Duffy also returned to the old quarters. In Harlem Duffy was known as Sweeney's "right-hand man."

The dates of the deposits and withdrawals to and from Duffy's account in the Yonkers National Bank will, it is expected, prove of much value to the prosecution. The account shows, for instance, that the Summer of 1909 was a good one for Duffy. On June 24 of that year, the accounts show, he deposited $3,500. On July 19 he deposited $4,205. In August the deposits fell off, but in September they jumped to $5,007.50. It is considered significant that large deposits were made periodically. For the last six years, the accounts show, the average monthly deposits were $1,000 to $1,200, or at the rate of about $15,000 a year.

Sergt. Duffy was indicted for bribery on Feb. 20 on the story told by Leroy Wilkins, a saloon keeper at 135th Street and Fifth Avenue. Until July 1, 1912, Wilkins's saloon was in the district of Capt. Thomas W. Walsh, the confessed grafter. For two years Wilkins paid to Patrolman Eugene Fox, another confessed grafter, $50 a month for "protection." This money went to Capt. Walsh. When the Lenox Avenue Precinct was formed on the east side of Harlem, Fox, it is said, introduced Duffy to places that had been paying for protection. District Attorney Whitman will try to show that at this time Duffy began to collect directly for Sweeney from Wilkins. Later Wilkins's payments were raised to $60 a month.

Six Indictments Against Him.

Duffy pleaded not guilty before Justice Goff to the first indictment on Feb. 28, and was represented in court by Abraham Levy. On the same day four additional indictments for bribery were found against him for payments alleged to have been made to him by James Dougherty and Hugh W. McIntyre, proprietors of the Hotel Monument, on Oct. 4, Nov. 4, Dec. 4, 1912, and Jan. 2, 1913. Dougherty and McIntyre admitted having made these payments when called as witnesses before the Grand Jury. To these indictments Duffy also pleaded not guilty, and his bail for the five indictments was placed at $7,000.

On March 27 Duffy was indicted on two more bribery counts on the testimony of William Roth, proprietor of a Harlem poker room, and others. It is on this indictment that Duffy will be placed on trial next Wednesday. Because of the ramifications of the case, and because of Sweeney's connection, it is believed that the trial will be as sensational as that of the four ex-Inspectors, Sweeney, Murtha, Thompson, and Hussey, who were sentenced to a year in the penitentiary on conviction for having entered into a conspiracy to keep a graft witness out of the State.

The precedents are not favorable to Duffy. Patrolman Robinson, one of Sweeney's collectors, has already been sentenced to Sing Sing for a period of six to ten years for extortion. Patrolman Robinson, another confidential man for Sweeney, received a two-and-a-half to three-and-a-half-year sentence for perjury.

HUNT HIDDEN MEN WHO SHOT JANITOR

Police Surround Whole Block While Search Goes On in Office Building.

Shortly before last midnight the block bounded by Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets, between Fifth Avenue and University Place, was surrounded by the reserves of the West Seventeenth Street and Mercer Street Police Stations, while detectives searched through the building at 30 West Fourteenth Street, a few doors from busy Union Square, for two burglars, who had made their presence known by shooting down the janitor of the building. They were still in the building when the police arrived, and it was supposed then that their escape had been cut off. Inspector Leahy took charge of the hunt, and closed the south side of Fourteenth Street to pedestrians.

No. 30 is a five-story loft building which connects with No. 32. There is one hall for both. Several of the lofts are occupied by gold refiners, who work largely for the dental trade. They keep gold in stock and other material that makes valuable loot. On the third floor of the building is the plant of Szabo & Beer, gold refiners, and on this floor also, in the rear, is a room in which Samuel P. Mills, the janitor, sleeps at night on a cot.

Last night he was awakened about 10 o'clock by some one who knocked on his door, and he heard a voice inquiring where Mr. Szabo could be found. As he opened the door two men, who, he said, were standing not more than five feet from him, fired revolvers at him and ran. Mills fell with a bullet wound in his shoulder. It was found later at St. Vincent's Hospital that his collar bone had been broken.

A watchman on Thirteenth Street heard the shots and ran to the house of Engine 72, in East Twelfth Street. Capt. John Hughes, with two of his men, ran to the scene of the shooting, and heard Mills's story. Capt. Hughes said later that as he went up the stairs inside the building some one put out the light in the hall, and it is believed that this must have been one of the thieves, as no one else was in the building.

Lieut. Finn of the Mercer Street Station was called by the firemen. He left them on guard at the door and commandeered a passing automobile, pushing about until he got nearly a dozen policemen from fixed posts and patrol duty, and hustled them to the scene of the shooting. The fact that these men were posted advantageously almost immediately after the shooting encouraged the police in thinking they had their men trapped.

Following them came the reserves of the East Seventeenth Street and Mercer Street Stations. When these men were all posted so that it seemed impossible any one could get out of the suspected area without close police scrutiny, a systematic search of the building began. The skylight at the roof was found to be locked, cutting off the possibility of escape in that direction. Up to midnight the search had not been rewarded.

It was believed that the thieves had hidden themselves in the building during the day and had begun work about 10 o'clock. They turned their attention to the janitor, it is supposed, either because they were acquainted with the building and knew he would be there, or because they heard him as they started to work. The police are convinced that they called him out to slay him in cold blood.

About three weeks ago the premises of Szabo & Beer were entered and robbed of about $100 worth of gold. At that time the thieves were scared away before they had finished their work. It was found that they had begun to cut through the floor of the Szabo & Beer establishment to get into the plant of I. Stern below.

The police thought last night's attempt a continuation of the work interrupted three weeks ago. At 34 East Fourteenth Street is one of the offices of the Holmes Electric Protective Agency, where many of the Holmes men stay when not on beat.

Early this morning the police gave up the search of the buildings in the block, being forced to content themselves with a lot of burglars tools as their only find. These were discovered in the hallway of 30 West Fourteenth Street. The decision to give up the search followed the return of Detectives Beck and Fitzpatrick from a visit to Mills at the hospital. The detectives learned that an interval of about ten minutes had elapsed before the alarm was given that brought the first aid, due to the fact that Mills was dazed by the shock.

SAYS HE SLEW GEN. MEAGHER

Montana Man Also Confesses to Other Murders Forty Years Ago.

MISSOULA, Mont., May 29.—A series of murders, including the assassination of Gen. Thomas Francis Meagher, a Governor of Montana Territory, were confessed to by a man known as Pat "Miller," but who gave his true name as Frank Diamond, at the town of Plains, on Tuesday, according to information made public to-day.

Diamond was brought here to-night and lodged in the county jail, pending an investigation of his alleged crimes. Murders that he said he committed near the Dalles, Ore., nearly forty years ago, were not recorded in the official register there, and none of the old residents recalled them.

Of the murder of Gen. Meagher the confession reads:

"I killed him on a steamboat at Cow Island, in the Missouri, and threw him in the river. I swam ashore."

For that crime Diamond said he received $8,000 from Montana vigilantes.

Gen. Meagher was one of the important figures of Montana's early history. He served with distinction in the Union Army in the civil war, having organized a brigade of Irishmen in New York and led them for two years. In 1865 he was appointed by Gen. Grant on a mission to Montana. Later he became Acting Governor of the territory.

He made a trip from Helena to Fort Benton late in 1865 to obtain provisions for a command of troops. While at Fort Benton he visited his friend, Capt. John T. Doran of the steamboat George A. Thompson, there. After retiring Gen. Meagher was heard to rise from his berth. A few moments later an outcry was heard which brought all on deck. A splash in the water indicated that Gen. Meagher had fallen overboard.

COMPELLED TRAITOR TO SHOOT HIMSELF

SOLD SECRETS TO RUSSIA

Others Said to be Involved in the Scandal, and Another Officer's Suicide Is Reported.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

VIENNA, May 29.—Extraordinary revelations of treachery carried on for years by a Colonel of the Austrian General Staff, who sold secrets of vital importance to Russia, are made in to-day's Military Gazette.

Col. Redl, one of the chiefs of the military Secret Service Department, was summoned to Vienna from Prague at the end of last week. During his absence his flat was searched and a number of incriminating documents were found. Some of them showed that he had given to the Russian Government draft plans for simultaneous action on the part of the Austrian and German armies against Russia in case of war.

The War Office here, on receiving full confirmation of the report, sent to Redl two of his fellow-officers. During the night they informed him of the charges against him. As he was unable to clear himself, they warned him that they would return at daybreak and arrest him.

On leaving the room one of the officers took a fully loaded pistol from his pocket, with a book of instructions as to how to use the weapon. He opened the book and placed it in front of Redl with a meaning glance.

The officers then mounted guard outside the room until the noise of a shot told them that Redl, who was only 41 years old, had chosen the only way open for officers in such disgrace. They hastened into the room, ascertained that Redl was dead, and returned to the War Office to make their report.

The War Office determined to keep the matter a profound secret. It was announced that Redl had committed suicide as a result of insanity caused by overwork in his important position. The hour of his funeral was not announced, and he was interred in the simplest manner, without the military honors due to his rank.

The facts were, however, revealed to-day when Members of Parliament demanded that the War Minister contradict reports concerning the death of Redl in order to clear his memory. The authorities were thereupon compelled to reveal the facts of the case.

In military circles it is declared that other military men are involved in the scandal. Reports are current that another officer shot himself to-day.

RECLUSE BOTANIST DEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 29.—George W. Letterman, aged 72, a recluse and botanist, died in poverty and attended only by a negro neighbor in his little cabin at Allenton, thirty miles west of St. Louis, last night. Mr. Letterman had lived in Allenton for thirty years. For twenty years he was a teacher in the public school there. He was a bachelor.

Throughout his long stay in Allenton the botanist lived alone in his one-room cabin, spending most of his time in the woods in search of rare plants and trees. Many distinguished American and European scientists made pilgrimages to his cabin and went on excursions with him through his beloved woods along the Meramec. Many rare plants which he discovered were named after him, and in botanical termnology, many species are known as "Letterman's." This was all the reward he asked for the efforts of a lifetime.

Prof. C. S. Sargent, chief of forestry at Harvard University, was one of those who delighted to visit Mr. Letterman, ramble with him through the woods and study his collection of specimens. Harvard professorships twice were offered to Mr. Letterman, but he waived them aside as temptations, preferring the woods to halls of learning.

GETS GEMS AT A GALLOP.

Teamster's Whiplash Attaches Itself to a Diamond Lavalliere.

Michael Cavalier, a driver employed by the Kings County Iron Works, who lives at 35 Berry Street, Brooklyn, was brought before Magistrate Levy in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday afternoon to face the remarkable charge that he had stolen a diamond lavalliere from off a girl's neck by flicking her with his whip as his team galloped by. Tillie Goldfarb of 718 Fifth Street was the complainant. She told the court that she had been standing among a group of girl friends at the corner of Prince and Greene Streets when she saw Cavalier's team come galloping up the street.

As the team dashed by where she was standing, she said, she saw the driver swing his whip, and before she could get out of the way it had struck her and wound about her neck. She said that Cavalier kept on, and as he swung his whip again she saw something sparkle on the end of it. She felt for her lavalliere and found it was gone. Then she and her friends started in pursuit of the wagon crying, "Stop, thief!"

Fully 500 people joined in the chase, which was ended when Patrolman Schmittberger of the Fifth Street Station stopped the driver. Magistrate Levy, who said the case was the most singular he had ever heard, was inclined to the opinion that the loss of the jewelry was an accident and discharged the prisoner. The lavalliere was not found.

GERMANS GET BIG ORDERS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 29.—Newspapers announce that the Siemens-Schuckert Electric Works of Berlin have beaten their powerful American competitors and obtained contracts for gigantic power plants in Chile.

The first order represents $3,000,000, and others of equal magnitude are to follow. They come from the Chile Exploration Company, which plans extensive exploitation of Chilean copper ore after the opening of the Panama Canal. The exploration company is said to consist of North American capitalists.

HOT WAVE SWEEPS KANSAS.

Temperature Up to 104 Degrees—All May Records Lowered.

KANSAS CITY, May 29. — Temperatures mounting in one case as high as 104 degrees from extreme western and southwestern Kansas counties are reported to-day. All May records for heat have been broken in Kansas and no immediate relief is promised. Crops are not believed to have been injured by the hot wave.

The temperature in Topeka at 1 o'clock this afternoon was 96. At Wichita at the same hour, 97; at Hutchinson, 104, and at Kansas City, 90.

TILLMAN'S WAR ON SMOKING.

Asks Cabinet Members to Bar Tobacco from Their Departments.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Senator Tillman, who proposes to abolish smoking in executive sessions of the Senate to protect his health, sent a letter today to each member of the Cabinet, asking him to prohibit smoking in his department to protect woman employes.

Accompanying the letters were copies of one the Senator had received from a woman Government employe, who protested against smoking in Government offices, and said:

"Whenever protest is made by any of the women, we are told to 'Get out, or learn to smoke yourself, and then smoking will not trouble you.'"

MRS. PANKHURST WEAK.

LONDON, May 29.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst has taken no food since she was rearrested and again taken to Holloway Jail. She is said to be in a very weak state owing to her reduced vitality consequent on her previous "hunger strikes," which lessened her powers of resistance. According to other suffragette leaders, her release may be expected at any hour."

Reginald McKenna, the Home Secretary, in the House of Commons to-day confirmed the statement that no step had been taken to approach the French Government concerning Christabel Pankhurst, whose extradition, it had been reported, was to be asked for.

A MURPHY IN AUTO SMASH.

Nephew of Tammany Leader Has Narrow Escape at Far Rockaway.

An automobile in which Charles F. Murphy, Jr., nephew of the leader of Tammany Hall, was riding with two women and another man, besides the chauffeur, Martin H. Lein, while rounding a curve on Broadway at Jarvis Lane, Far Rockaway, about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon collided with an automobile owned by Philip A. Conne, Vice President and general manager of Saks & Co. of Manhattan, and both machines were badly damaged. None of the occupants of either car was hurt.

Mr. Conne's machine was driven by his chauffeur, Frank P. Byrne, who told the police that the Murphy car crashed into his car through no fault of his. He led the police to believe that the chauffeur driving the Murphy automobile had lost control of his car.

CELTIC NEAR TO COLLISION.

Woman Loses Baby, Another Hurt, and Ship Just Escapes Injury.

In trying to get through the crush of people who had come to see their friends off to Europe on the White Star liner Celtic, which sailed yesterday at noon, Mrs. Mary Glynn, 308 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, slipped down the companionway and fell to the deck. She was attended by H. Hollaster, the ship's surgeon, who found that she had dislocated her shoulder. Mrs. Glynn was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, and her niece, Miss Mary Hanson, sailed on the liner.

Mrs. Henry French of 207 East Nineteenth Street reported that she had lost her year-old baby. Just as Purser Brewer was explaining to the excited mother that he had never seen her baby a stewardess announced that one of Mrs. French's friends was guarding the infant on deck in the sun and all was well.

As the Celtic backed into the stream she was nearly run into by the Lackawanna ferryboat Bergen, which tried to dodge around the stern and got hemmed in between the liner and the Sound steamer Plymouth. Then other ferryboats got mixed up in the tangle and their captains got excited.

TO TEST ORAL BETTING LAW.

ALBANY, May 29.—The Court of Appeals will resume sessions next Monday and continue until June 20, when the court will take the usual Summer recess until early in October.

On Tuesday the court will hear arguments on the constitutionality of the laws prohibiting oral betting at racetracks and holding Directors of racing associations liable for such gambling.

On June 16 arguments are to be heard on the appeal of Charles Becker, the Police Lieutenant, convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

BALTIMORE, May 29.—Resolutions were adopted to-day at the convention of the Maryland Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church urging the enactment of legislation to abolish all forms of betting at racetracks in this State.

Some of the leaders of an association under whose auspices racing with betting privileges is at present being conducted held seats in the convention.

The resolutions also stated "that the clergy of this diocese should encourage the presentation of a health certificate from a reputable physician to the effect that those whom they are to join in marriage have neither an incurable nor communicable disease."

ROOSEVELT TRIPS POINT OF ATTACK

Defense Narrows Down to His Conduct on Ohio Tour and at St. Louis.

LAWYERS ANTICIPATE THIS

ROUGH RIDER ON THE STAND

Newett's Lawyers Oppose Spanish War Testimony — Garfield and Others Tell of Milk Punches.

Special to The New York Times.

MARQUETTE, May 29.—The fourth day of the trial of ex-President Roosevelt's libel suit against George A. Newett resulted in sharply developing the position into which the defense had manoeuvred itself, and what the line of its evidence would be.

In the first place, it is evident from what happened to-day that the defense from now on intends to intrench itself behind the incidents of the Colonel's railroad trips. The attempt to show that he drank at other times no longer is being persisted in with any great energy, and the cross-examination about his behavior at home, in the White House and at Washington, and European banquets is only perfunctorily conducted now. The defense's cross-examination now is directed at breaking down the testimony concerning the Colonel's abstemiousness while on trains. Newett's counsel had hoped to show that the Colonel was intoxicated at the birthday reception to Speaker Cannon in 1906, but now it is doubtful whether it will produce any evidence at all on that question. In part this is due to the way in which the plaintiff has anticipated the defense by bringing up that subject and thrashing it out, and partly because the principal defense witness, J. Martin Miller, cannot be found. Miller made a deposition, but publication of the fact that he was under indictment for grand larceny in New York made it desirable to produce him in person, and he could not be found.

Secondly, the plaintiff evidently believes that in dealing with the subject of the railroad journeys, the defense will concentrate its strength on a visit to St. Louis in 1910, and on the stumping trip in Ohio before the Presidential primaries there in 1912.

Unmasks Line of Defense.

To forestall this, as it had forestalled the Cannon reception story, the plaintiff introduced witnesses to-day to testify that the Colonel was sober while in Ohio. One witness, the forerunner of many—one of whom will be ex-Gov. Hadley of Missouri—gave similar testimony about the St. Louis affair.

The defense confirmed the plaintiff's opinion of its coming attack by fighting the Ohio and St. Louis evidence vigorously. No allusion yet having been made by the defense to the incidents of Ohio and St. Louis, it attempted to exclude all the evidence it could on those subjects. For instance, it wanted to know what possible relevancy there could be in the around the circle in the 1912 campaign, and about his behavior in the White House, at Oyster Bay, and at club dinners. Edwin Emerson, one of the Rough Riders, who was the Colonel's field secretary during the Spanish war, told about his habits in Cuba. Philip J. Roosevelt, a cousin, told of the Colonel's camp life, home life, White House life, and his life among his friends and relatives. Gifford Pinchot and James R. Garfield testified both as official associates of the Colonel and as his "intimates," part of the charge made by Newett being that "all his intimates" knew of the Colonel's drunkenness.

Lawrence Abbott, President of the Outlook Company, told of the trip in Africa and Europe after the hunt, and Edmund Heller, naturalist of the African expedition, described the Colonel's conduct in the jungle.

Punchless Milk Punches.

Before this trial is over there may be need for a standard definition of drinks. Three of the Colonel's witnesses gave testimony concerning milk punches that would have made any bartender tear his hair. They told of the Colonel drinking "milk punches," and on further questioning explained that a milk punch consisted of a glass of milk with a teaspoonful of brandy in it. Philip J. Roosevelt did, indeed, explain that this was only the Colonel's definition of a milk punch, and he himself did not indorse it as correct, but James R. Garfield and Mr. Davis made no such qualification. If the jury accepts them as authorities the most lamentable heresies on the composition of milk punches soon will spread over the upper peninsula. Mr. Pinchot affirmed that wine was not liquor, and Mr. Garfield indorsed this dictum so far as light wine was concerned. Mr. Pound at one time, after hearing much discourse concerning Scotch and rye, embarked on an inquiry as to whether corn whisky had vanished from the face of the earth, but the court sternly cut him short in the midst of his scientific investigations.

Charles Willis Thompson of New York, formerly Washington correspondent for THE NEW YORK TIMES, was the next witness.

"As Washington correspondent," he said, "I used to go to the White House to see Mr. Roosevelt. I saw him usually alone, sometimes in the morning and sometimes in the afternoon. Usually I saw him in his office, but sometimes, when, in order to lose not a minute in his work, he received visitors while he sat in the barber's chair. I never noticed the odor of liquor on his breath, and never saw him in the slightest degree under the influence of liquor."

"Ever go on any trips with him?" the witness was asked.

"I was with him on his 11,000-mile swing around the circle last year, which lasted a month. I afterward joined him at Mercy Hospital, Chicago, when he was shot; stayed there until he went to Oyster Bay; went there with him, and stayed there until election. Two weeks after he was shot in Milwaukee he went to New York on two occasions to address large mass meetings, and I went with him and reported them."

"On these trips did you see much of him?"

"I saw him constantly—all hours of the day and night—and never saw him take a drink or be affected by liquor. Whenever he left the car I followed him."

Never Heard Drinking Rumor.

"Did you ever see him take a drink?"

"Only at dinners of the Gridiron Club, when he had a glass of champagne in front of him. He would occasionally take a sip from it. Nearly all the time, though, he was too busy talking or watching the stunts performed by the Gridironers. He always made a speech on these occasions, and they were among the best he ever made. He always left the dinners when they were about half over to go back to the White House to his work."

Asked whether there had been any discussion in Washington of his drinking habits, the witness replied:

"I never heard it discussed during the seven years that he was there. If it was discussed it must have been outside of Washington, and it was my business to know every rumor that was floating around in that city. It was what I was there for."

"Could he have got drunk on the train without your knowing of it?"

"He could not even have been slightly affected by liquor without my knowing it, either on the trip or at Oyster Bay."

The witness testified that on the trip to San Francisco the railroad company, by order of the Colonel's representatives did not put the usual stock of liquors aboard the private car.

Saw Him at Lookout Mountain.

Mr. Thompson was followed on the stand by Andrew W. Abele of Ironton, Ohio, a member of the Reception Committee which escorted the Colonel through Ohio in his primary campaign. He is now a business man, but formerly was a coal miner and a locomotive fireman. He told of meeting the Colonel in 1892, when they went up Lookout Mountain, and the Colonel cried, "Come along, boys," and led the party in a dash up to the top. He had not been drinking, the witness said. On the same day the Colonel addressed a convention of locomotive firemen.

Mr. Abele was asked to account for the Colonel's actions at every town at which they stopped during the Ohio trip, and at each he gave the Colonel a clean bill as to liquor drinking.

Mr. Pound made him describe everything that the Colonel did at each town where the defense might put in testimony to show that the Colonel was drunk.

On cross-examination Horace E. Andrews of counsel for Mr. Newett undertook to trip the witness by asking him particulars about the streets in the various towns where the Colonel spoke. Abele could not remember much about them, and Andrews went at him so ferociously that he became confused in trying to answer questions as to the description of the houses in this or that place.

There was considerable of curiosity about Judge A. Z. Blair of Portsmouth, Ohio. He is the Judge who became famous some years ago by disfranchising 1,500 men in Adams County because they had accepted bribes for their votes. Now he is a prominent figure in the anti-saloon League of Ohio, and he accompanied the Colonel on the Ohio trip.

Judge Blair is a sharp-eyed man, with a gray crest like a hawk, a nose like an eagle's beak, a strong voice and a Western roll to the letter R. His eyes are black and protected by gold-rimmed glasses. He testified to the Colonel's entire abstinence during the Ohio trip, and to the fact that he bore no evidence of having had any liquor before he began it.

Judge Allows No Levity.

Philip J. Roosevelt, the Colonel's second cousin, who is Kermit Roosevelt's most intimate friend, was an engaging figure on the stand. He is 21 years old, just out of Harvard, where he went through a four-year course in three years, and for the last two months has been working as a reporter on the New York Globe. The cheery, frank way in which the college boy gave his testimony, his winning manner, and his evident difficulty in speaking calmly when questioned about his cousin's drunkenness, made everybody feel good. The court room seemed a distinctly pleasanter place all the time the young man was on the stand.

When he was asked how long he had known the Colonel he answered in a surprised sort of way, "Why, he has known me all my life." There was a little ripple of laughter that was instantly stopped by Judge Flannigan. That jurist is no friend of merriment, at least in court rooms.

He was asked how much he saw of the Colonel when they went on camping trips.

"I used to see him practically every day," he said; "I've been in bathing with him. I've seen him when he had no clothes on and when he was fully dressed. There's a place called Lloyd's Neck, and we used to row over there and sleep there out on the sand without any covering at all. I've ridden with him very frequently and gone on picnics with him."

A Convincing Witness.

The boy had not been talking two minutes before everybody in the room was convinced that if the Colonel got drunk Philip Roosevelt never had seen him in that condition. He told of trips to Wilkesbarre and Ghautauqua, of staying with the Colonel in the same house, of the dinner table customs, of his visits to Kermit, of staying at the White House, of the family visits, and of the close proximity of his father's home at Oyster Bay to the Colonel's. Sagamore Hill, in fact, is surrounded by Emlen Roosevelt's estate, and the two families practically are one.

Then Philip told how he went on one of the Colonel's campaign trips in 1912. This was the journey which included Duluth. The defense expects to prove that the Colonel was drunk in Duluth. Philip accounted for every moment of the Colonel's day. They arrived in Duluth at 11 o'clock in the morning, he said, and at once went to a hotel, where the Colonel made a speech to the crowd. The afternoon was spent in dictating speeches and in an automobile ride, and Philip said that they did not get out of the machine, so that the Colonel could not have stopped to get a drink. He addressed a mass meeting at 8 o'clock. Philip was with him all the time, and said he neither drank nor was under the influence of liquor.

When Mr. Pound asked if Philip ever had seen his cousin under the influence of liquor the witness looked as if he had been personally insulted.

"Of course not," he said, indignantly. But when he was asked if the Colonel used foul or profane language the question seemed to choke him. He finally got out an explosive "No" that nearly took Mr. Pound's breath away. All he had ever seen his cousin drink was one or two glasses of champagne or white wine.

"Does he keep whiskey at his home?" asked Mr. Andrews on cross-examination.

"Yes," said Philip, in a matter of course way.

"Scotch whiskey?"

"I've never seen any, but I'm pretty sure it's there," said the witness, who made the same answer to questions about red wine, Russian wine, and Rhine wine. He didn't think there was any brandy, although it might "be there somewhere," and he didn't think there was any Madeira, but there was sherry and champagne.

"A regular collection of liquor?" asked Mr. Andrews, with his suavest smile and his coaxing manner developed to the highest degree.

Colonel's Wine Cellar.

"A regular gentleman's cellar," said Philip Roosevelt.

Mr. Andrews asked about the White House, and Philip readily admitted that champagne and other liquors were kept there.

"You never attended a banquet where they didn't have champagne?" asked Mr. Andrews.

"Certainly not," said Philip, surprised at the question. Later it turned out that Mr. Andrews was referring to banquets which the Colonel also attended, whereas Philip was covering the whole subject of banquets.

"You are a reporter," said Mr. Andrews. "Did you write up and send the plaintiff's testimony to your paper before he had given it on the stand?"

"No."

"Was it sent out all prepared in writing?"

"As I understand it he made up a statement for the use of his lawyers, and it was given to the press for their guidance."

"And was not that published in New York before he took the stand?" But Mr. Pound objected and was sustained.

"Has your statement been made up in writing?"

"Yes. Most of the statements have been given to Mr. Pound, so that he may know what line of evidence to question the witnesses about."

"You were not at the meeting in The Outlook office where signed statements were taken?"

"Yes."

"There were some fifteen people there?"

"I don't think there were more than three or four when I was there."

"Was Albert Shaw there?"

"I didn't see him."

"Was the plaintiff's butler there?"

"Yes. I was not there when he gave his statement. They let me go when they found I wasn't going to give my statement in writing."

On re-direct examination he testified that there were many visitors at Sagamore Hill, and that as a rule only one kind of wine was served.

Oppose War Testimony.

Edwin Emerson, formerly of the Rough Riders, was the first witness to affirm instead of swearing. He became acquainted with the Colonel when the latter was Police Commissioner and he a police reporter on The New York Evening Post. During the Spanish war he was the Colonel's field secretary and did his work in the Colonel's tent.

Mr. Andrews objected to testimony about the Spanish war on the ground that it was intended to affect the jury's sympathies.

"You have said of this plaintiff that he gets drunk," replied the Judge. "You have set no limitations as to time. He is entitled to cover his entire life if he sees fit."

Mr. Andrews subsided, and Mr. Emerson testified that during the whole time of his service in the regiment he never saw the Colonel drink anything but coffee or water. Asked about wine, he said there was none.

"Well, that's a good reason," said Mr. Pound.

"Was it possible for him to have gotten drunk frequently without your knowing it?" But this was objected to. The Judge sustained the objection, and then proceeded to ask the question himself in a different way:

"What was the longest period of time that the plaintiff was absent from your sight?" he inquired.

"At night when I was asleep, or at times when he was called away from headquarters for an hour or an hour and a half," answered the witness, and the Judge looked over at Mr. Pound with the kind gaze of a patient schoolmaster saying to a promising pupil, "Now you see how to do the sum, don't you?"

Pinchot's Study of the Colonel.

Gifford Pinchot testified to his official relations, which were also personal relations, with the plaintiff when the witness was chief forester of the United States; to their social relations since, and to his visiting the Colonel at Oyster Bay and accompany him on trips. He was asked if he had observed the Colonel closely on these trips. He said he had, watched him closely, and after receiving permission he gave this reason for studying his companion so hard:

"I have always been interested in questions of efficiency. If I saw a man who was capable of unusual work, who was very efficient, I wanted to observe what he ate, what he drank, how much he slept, everything that might have any bearing on the question of things which make for or take from efficiency. That's why I kept my eye on him. I have seen him occasionally drink a glass of wine. Once during the seven and a half years that I was with him in Washington I saw him drink the whole or a part of a mint julep. A few times I have seen him drink a glass of champagne or a glass of light wine with apollinaris after hard exercise. I have never seen him drink anything at breakfast or supper or between meals except what I have mentioned."

Mr. Pinchot, like all the other witnesses, had a hard time answering the usual question about the Colonel's language. When they are questioned about his use of foul or profane words they lose their self-control. Some of them look as if they had been hit in the face. Some of them seem wounded, and some get angry. Some struggle visibly to find words to express a cataclysmic denial, and only succeed in getting out the word "no" usually in a voice that sounds as if some one was trying to strangle them.

Mr. Pinchot confessed to attending one Gridiron dinner, and the pursuit of information as to whether these festivities were bacchanalian orgies or not was renewed. Mr. Pinchot said the dinner he attended, aside from the fact that there were skits at the expense of public men and speeches of a humorous character, did not differ from any other dinners. The Gridiron Club seems to have been thoroughly vindicated by the testimony so far received, whatever may be the outcome of the suit.

The cross-examination elicited the fact that Mr. Pinchot's appointment as Chief Forester was made by President McKinley, not by President Roosevelt. It is Mr. Andrews's practice to ask each former officeholder who appointed him, the purpose being to show that these witnesses have a feeling of gratitude toward the man they are defending.

But in Mr. Pinchot's case, as subsequently in Mr. Heller's, most of the cross-examination was designed to show that the witness must have been too busy with official duties to keep a very close watch on the President. Mr. Pinchot said he had 5,000 men under his direction in the Forestry Bureau. He also admitted that for the last two years he had not been on any trips with the Colonel. He was reminded that he had said the Colonel did not drink liquor and yet had admitted that he drank light wine, but he informed Mr. Pound that the word "liquor" did not include light wine.

Mr. Pinchot said he had seen in Mr. Roosevelt's home sauterne, sherry, and possibly Madeira, and on one occasion champagne, but could not recall any claret. This was in Oyster Bay, and he knew of no Scotch or rye there, but at the White House he had occasionally seen whisky offered to some one who did not drink champagne.

"But whether Scotch or rye," concluded Mr. Pinchot conscientiously, "I don't know."

Anxious About Corn Whisky.

"Isn't there any corn whisky?" broke in Mr. Pound, scornfully.

Mr. Andrews demanded that Mr. Pound contain his desire for information until it was his turn, and the Judge rebuked the large lawyer from Detroit for levity.

"I thought they had forgotten it, that's all," said the unabashed Pound, with an unsuccessful attempt at a look of baby-like innocence.

Lawrence Abbott, President of The Outlook Company, said he had known the plaintiff since he was a Police Commissioner and knew exactly what he did.

"I know him," said he, "as intimately as I have known any man in the world outside of my family."

This sort of testimony is brought because part of the alleged libel is the statement that "all his intimates" know of Mr. Roosevelt's drunkenness.

Mr. Abbott told of joining the Colonel in Khartoum on his return from the jungle and of going through Egypt and Europe with him, when they were together every day from March to June. Then came this interesting bit of information:

"During this trip I had charge of his money, paid all his bills, knew what he spent in every particular, breakfasted, dined, and lunched with him on trains and steamers and at hotels, and some of the State dinners in Europe, so that I kno wexactly what he did.

"He didn't drink liquor at all. I know he drank mineral water more than anything else, because I paid for it. At state dinners he drank occasionally either a glass of champagne or a glass of light wine."

"He was in your employ?" asked Mr. Andrews.

"He was in the employ of my company," replied Mr. Abbott.

"So that you were interested in what was being done all the time of that trip?"

"Most decidedly."

"And of course you are interested in the outcome of the lawsuit?"

"Exactly as much interested as I should feel in the case of any intimate friend: decidedly interested."

"Would the Outlook Company retain as an employe a man who was in the habit of getting drunk?" asked Mr. Pound.

Fights for Rumor Evidence.

James R. Garfield, tall, straight, and looking like the pictures of his father, testified along the same lines as Mr. Pinchot. He proved to be an admirable witness, getting in continuous narratives instead of short answers while appearing merely to answer a question, and packing immense quantities of information into each narrative. In his long and intimate association with the Colonel he had never seen him drink any spirituous liquor except a mint julep, or any wine except champagne or white wine at dinners.

"Would it have been possible for him to have been under the influence of liquor without your knowing it?" asked Mr. Pound. Of course there was immediate objection. Judge Flannigan said with a fatherly smile: "The witness can testify whether he observed the effects of previous drinking. Counsel is getting at that in his crude way—if you don't mind the expression, Mr. Pound."

"Not at all. I'm used to it," said the unsquelchable Pound.

"I never did," said Mr Garfield, in answer to the readjusted question.

"He is as clean and decent a man—," Mr. Garfield started to say. But of course he was not allowed to get any further with that. He said that sometimes he had seen the Colonel take a milk punch, just before going to bed.

"What was it made of—sugar, and other things, and shaken up?" asked Mr. Pound.

"It was made," said Garfield, innocently, "as I suppose a milk punch is always made, with a teaspoonful of brandy and a glass of milk," and as he uttered the revolutionary statement a look of pain crossed the faces of many of those present.

Edmund Heller of the Smithsonian Institution, testified that he was one of the naturalists who accompanied the Roosevelt party on the African expedition. He said he never had seen the Colonel take a drink, although there was champagne and whisky there.

Mr. Pound tried to elicit information about the state of the Colonel's nerves, as shown by his marksmanship, but a steady rain of objections poured on him, and he was forced to leave the jury in ignorance of whether the Colonel was so nervous that he couldn't hit a barn door or whether he shot with a hand as steady as a tombstone.

O. K. Davis, Secretary of the National Progressive Party, said he had become acquainted with the Colonel in 1898, and had known him when Mr. Davis subsequently was a Washington correspondent. As a newspaper man he had accompanied the Colonel on his trips in 1910. Davis said they had gone to St Louis in 1910, but he couldn't fix the date.

"Well, was there anything particular that happened?"

"There certainly was," said Davis heartily.

"Col. Roosevelt went up in flying machine."

The defense objected violently, saying that this answer could be introduced for only one reason. Mr. Pound insisted that he intended to connect it with later testimony, and the Judge let it stand for the present. Mr. Davis had charge of the arrangements for the Colonel's campaign trips in 1912. On the last trip he accompanied the Colonel, an dthey ate at the same table. He told of the visit to Duluth—the place where the defense expects to show that the Colonel was drunk—and corroborated Philip Roosevelt's testimony.

Now came the storm. Mr. Pound undertook to show that Mr. Davis and others closed around the Colonel and shoved him through the crowd. This was to meet the testimony of defense witnesses who saw this action and thought the Colonel was being helped or carried because he could not walk.

Both sides soon were in a furious combat. They grew red in the face, loud in voice, and savage in manner.

"Gentlemen," said the Judge, in that cold voice of his which usually reduces every riot to a prayer meeting, "Don't let us try this suit as if it were a case in a Police Justice's Court."

Finally Pound was allowed to show that Mr. Davis and others had relped the Colonel through the crowd.

INDICTED IN EGG INQUIRY.

Federal Grand Jury Says Bookkeeper Sought to Impede Justice.

An indictment was handed up yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury against George W. Naylor, a bookkeeper, employed by the egg firm of Willard P. Brown & Sons of 139 Reade Street, for "knowingly, willfully, and corruptly endeavoring to influence, obstruct, and impede the due administration of justice."

This indictment has come from the Federal investigation of the egg trade to ascertain whether certain egg dealers have been tampering with the railroad freight inspectors to induce them to certify that the number of eggs broken in transit is greater than it really is. Naylor is accused of having altered the entries in the books of the Brown firm in order to mislead the Grand Jury. He will be arraigned before Judge Mayer on Monday and held in $1,000 bail for pleading.

SENATE DECIDES ON LOBBY INQUIRY

Democrats Omit Reference in Resolution to Wilson's Charge —Merely Ask His Aid.

REPUBLICANS AGGRIEVED

Say Inquiry Is Emasculated, and That President's Statement Is an Imputation on the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—After four hours' debate the Senate passed this afternoon the Cummins resolution directing an investigation of the lobby denounced by President Wilson three days ago. The final vote was taken without division, but before it was reached the Democrats, under the leadership of Mr. Kern of Indiana, insisted upon amending the resolution by striking out specific reference to the President's statement and merely requesting him to aid the committee with information "with reference to the subject matter of the investigation which it considers it proper to make public."

The specific direction that each Senator should be required under oath to list all persons who have conferred with them concerning legislation was also eliminated.

Both these modifications were denounced by the Republicans as efforts to emasculate the resolution and block its purpose of ascertaining exactly what the President meant when he referred to a "numerous, industrious, and insidious" lobby. That view was expressed by Republicans of such divergent views as Mr. Root of New York, Mr. Penrose of Pennsylvania, Mr. La Follette of Wisconsin, Mr. Townsend of Michigan, and Mr. Sherman of Illinois. All of them insisted that the President, before making his sweeping charges, which most of them characterized as imputations upon the Senate, must have had names of the lobbyists in his possession. If the Democrats believed he had a basis for his charges there was no reason, they said, why the President should not be respectfully requested to state what that basis was.

Senator Swanson of Virginia went furthest in his effort to show that the President's statement meant nothing in particular. He said the statement did not contain a single innuendo or imputation aimed at the Senate, and then with equal emphasis asserted that the President did not mean to say the lobby was attempting improper methods.

Amendments were offered having no bearing upon the investigation in hand, some apparently for the simple purpose of ridiculing the President's statement. But both Mr. Cummins and Mr. Kern accepted each amendment as fast as it was submitted, in hope of strengthening their general contention. In the end all of these amendments were attached as riders both to Mr. Cummins's resolution and to Mr. Kern's substitute.

A strict party vote of 38 to 28 adopted the Kern amendment. The first of the minor amendments came from Mr. Reed, and directed that the committee ascertain if any Senators were financially interested in any article mentioned in the tariff bill. Mr. Kern accepted the suggestion, and Mr. Cummins added to it the further direction that the committee ascertain if such Senators had tried to influence their colleagues in regard to the item in which they were interested. Mr. Kern also adopted that suggestion.

Mr. Lippitt of Rhode Island, who is a large cotton manufacturer, offered a further amendment directing that it be also ascertained if any Senators were financially or "professionally" interested in any item of the tariff bill, or any other bill before Congress at the present time or during his term as a Senator.

With some reluctance Mr. Cummins accepted this contribution. Mr. Kern then accepted it as a part of the original Reed addition to his amendment. The titter that this amendment aroused became a laugh when Mr. Fall of New Mexico, a stand-pat Republican, suggested that the inquiry also ascertain whether any Senator was interested in the welfare of any industry of the United States.

President Wilson said to-day that he was in entire sympathy with the purposes of Senator Cummins's resolution. To questions asked him the President said that if he were called upon to do so he would be able to furnish names of some of the alleged lobbyists to the investigating committee. He said that he had not been asked to appear to back up his charges of the existence of a lobby, and smiled when it was suggested that the opportunity might be afforded him of again breaking precedent by appearing before the Senate inquisitors.

OPPOSE INCOME TAX LIMIT.

Omaha Realty Men Tell Bryan They Object to $4,000 Minimum.

OMAHA, Neb., May 29.—The Omaha Real Estate Exchange, one of the leading commercial organizations of this city, appealed to Secretary Bryan last night asking him to oppose the income tax section of the Underwood tariff bill as at present framed. The same appeal was addressed to all the members of the Nebraska delegation in Congress.

The objection raised by the Exchange is against placing the minimum incomes to be taxed at $4,000. The resolution adopted says that millions of dollars in revenue will be lost by not placing the minimum at $2,000 or less.

NOMINATIONS TO SENATE.

Sells Named for Indian Office—Russell as Boston Collector.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Among the nominations President Wilson sent to the Senate to-day were the following:

Naval Officer of Customs in the District of Philadelphia, WILLIAM M. CROLL of Pennsylvania.

Collector of Customs for the District of Boston and Charlestown, Mass., JOSEPH B. RUSSELL of Boston.

President Wilson telegraphed Mr. Russell to-day, urging him to accept this appointment. Mr. Russell, who had declined it, had indicated he would accept if the President thought it desirable.

Hint of Postmastership Scandal.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Senator Burton introduced a resolution to-day proposing to investigate a charge that George W. Gee had been recommended to Postmaster General Burleson for appointment as Postmaster at Salem, Ohio, on condition that he publish a Democratic newspaper there. Upon objection by Senator Hoke Smith the resolution went over without action.

Ask Valorized Coffee Buyers' Names

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The Senate again called on Attorney General McReynolds to-day for the names of all buyers of valorized coffee which the Government forced the Brasilian coffee monopoly to sell from its New York warehouses.

THE TIMES'S WIRELESS AND CABLE DISPATCHES

A MILLAIS PAINTING SOLD FOR $40,950

ABBEY'S WORKS IN DEMAND

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29.—There was an enormous crowd at Christie's to-day, when the sale of the pictures and drawings that belonged to the late George McCulloch was resumed. The sale of the best things in the collection had been reserved for to-day.

There were present, besides the usual gathering of dealers and private collectors, many distinguished artists, politicians, Judges, and directors of leading British and Colonial galleries.

Good prices were obtained for some pictures by English painters of the latter part of the nineteenth century, while in other cases the sums realized were far below those that had been paid to the artists.

Two paintings by the late Edwin A. Abbey, the famous American Academician, brought large sums. One was the well-known work "Richard, Duke of Gloucester, and the Lady Anne." This picture, which was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1896, was sold for $28,350.

Another picture by Abbey sold to-day represents a scene from "King Lear." For this work Knoedler paid $25,200.

The well known "Sculpture Gallery" by Alma-Tadema was sold for the unexpectedly small price of $13,650. It was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1875 and has been many times reproduced. Wertheimer was the purchaser.

A less well known work of Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, "Love's Jeweled Fetter," went to Wallis for $9,975.

"Charity," a superb decorative painting by Brangwyn, was sold to Colnaghi for $4,620. The next important lot was a celebrated Burne-Jones, "Love Among the Ruins."

This picture, exhibited at the New Gallery in 1894, was bought by C. Davis for $25,200. Another Burne-Jones, "Psyche's Wedding," was acquired by Wertheimer for $5,510. "The Sleeping Princess," by the same artist, brought $6,560. Neither of these two works is very well known, never having been exhibited at any important exhibition. The "Sleeping Princess" was bought by Sir H. Lane.

The next lot was Lady Butler's "Inkerman," representing infantry, with a mounted officer, returning from a battlefield along a rough road. It brought the rather disappointing price of $4,460, Lister being the purchaser.

"An Al Fresco Toilet," by Sir Luke Fildes, R. A., brought $7,875, being sold to Gooden & Fox. "After Waterloo," by Andrew C. Gow, R. A., was sold to Cox for $2,780. A characteristic Peter Graham, "Caledonia, Stern and Wild," went to Lister for $7,610. Another work by the same painter, "The Hamlet by the Sea," was knocked down for $4,095, and his "Highland Glen" fetched a similar price.

A surprisingly high figure was obtained for "Marshlands," by Cecil Lawson, which brought $14,700, Gibson being the purchaser. It was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1901. On the other hand, "Worcester Cathedral," by B. W. Leader, R. A., could get no better offer than $3,150. Three thousand four hundred and fifteen dollars was paid by Lister for the same painter's "When the Sun is Set," a scene in a Worcestershire village. "Away Over the Sea," by W. McTaggart, R. S. A., brought $3,675.

A surprise was experienced by those who have been declaring that works by Millais are no longer in demand when that artist's "Sir Isumbras at the Ford" was offered. The picture, which was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1857, belongs to the transition period in Millais's work, a period during which, a good many critics think, his finest productions were achieved.

This canvas was sold to Gooden & Fox for no less than $40,950, the highest price of the sale. Knoedler and Agnew competed for the work. When it was knocked down at a figure that is almost an auction record for a production by a modern British painter there was much applause. However, Mr. McCulloch paid $50,000 for it.

Another Millais, "In Perfect Bliss," was sold to the same firm for $6,875.

A painting by Edward Stott, "The Inn: Evening," fetched $3,150.

Watts's celebrated "Fata Morgana" was sold for the disappointing sum of $8,925, Gooden & Fox being the buyers.

Works by Brett, Draper, East, Farquharson, Forbes-Murray, Gow, Hook, Macbeth, Woods, and other typical Academicians had been bought by Mr. McCulloch at the crest of the wave, and to-day experienced a terrible slump.

IMMENSE PRICES IN PARIS.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 29.—All previous experiences in the salerooms of Paris this season were reversed to-day when pictures and furniture of the Beer collection were sold. The prices were generally much higher than the experts' valuations. Hitherto this season prices have been regarded as compaartively low. The day's total was $244,497.

The highest price of the sale was realized for a suite of Louis Seize drawing-room furniture, comprising a sofa and six arm-chairs upholstered in Beauvais tapestry. Valued at $70,000, it was excitedly bid up, and eventually knocked down to Arnold Seligmann for $75,000.

The biggest surprise of the sale was the price given for a Van Blarenberghe water color, "Noce de Village," which, valued at $5,000, proved in keen demand and went to the English dealer Hodgkins for $12,400.

Cazin's "Fin de Journée" was sold for $3,400 and Corot's "Pêcheur sur l'Etang" for $7,600.

Diaz's "Chasseur" was sold to Georges Petit for $3,420. Jules Dupré's "Environs de Southampton" brought $7,700, Fromentin's "Famille Arabe en Voyage" $9,020, Isabey's "Baptême" $6,230, and Moreau's "Helen on the Wall of Troy" $5,500. Moreau's "Déjanire" was bought by Durand Ruel for $6,120.

Half a dozen Ziems were sold, of which "The Bosphorus" brought $7,000 and "The Doge's Palace" $5,600.

Van Goyen's "Riverside Town" was bought by Knoedler for $2,420, and Van der Meer's "Village at Moonlight" brought $2,000. A presumed Rembrandt, "Lazarus's Resurrection," brought $9,400.

A feature of the sale was the high prices given for Aubusson and Flemish tapestries.

AMERICAN PLAY IN GERMAN.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29.—Herman Scheffauer, a California poet, now living in London, has just had a play accepted in Germany. It is entitled "The New Shylock," and is written on an American theme. It has been translated by L. Leonhard, who did the German translations of the works of John Galsworthy and John Masefield. The play has just been published in book form in Berlin and will be produced in the Autumn.

Mr. Scheffauer said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent: "My translator tells me I am the first American dramatist—or, for that matter, English, with the exception of Shaw and Barrie—to have thrust upon him the peculiar distinction of having a play accepted in a foreign land and a foreign tongue before its production in his own country."

"The New Shylock" is Scheffauer's first play.

DIVORCED UNWITTINGLY.

Two French Women Tricked by Husbands Whose Love Cooled.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 29.—Two further remarkable cases of women being divorced without knowing it were revealed in a Paris court to-day.

Mme. Berthier obtained an award of alimony of $60 a month against her former husband, Louis Pasquier of New York. In January, 1910, Pasquier obtained a divorce in the Paris courts. No defense was made to the suit because the wife was living in New York with her husband when the case was tried. Only when she came to Paris in 1911, after the death of her mother, did she hear that her husband had divorced her. Since then Pasquier has remarried in New York and has failed to allow his former wife anything for bringing up her children, although his earnings are said to be $400 a month.

Another French woman told the court to-day that she had been divorced without her knowledge. In 1905 her husband asked her to sign a declaration that she considered her marriage a verbal convention and a mbral engagement, but not a legal contract. She refused, and in 1910 learned in the Official Gazette that she had been divorced in 1909, while living with her husband. She is now seeking to break this decree.

NIELS GROEN DEFEATED.

He Fails to Enter Parliament on Danish West Indies Issue.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, May 29.—Niels Grön, a Danish politician and writer well known in the United States, who recently returned to his own country to stand for election to Parliament, has been badly defeated.

He made his campaign on the issue of breaking up the powerful syndicate which, he alleged, was conspiring eventually to transfer the Danish West Indies to German interests. He says the question must now be approached from another side.

Mr. Grön has conducted a long campaign for the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States. As far back as 1902, 97 of the 105 members of the Danish Parliament voted to transfer the islands to this Government, and the islanders themselves almost unanimously voted in favor of annexation.

HAVERFORD ASHORE; PASSENGERS SAVED

WIRELESS AGAIN TO RESCUE

Stranded Vessel Soon Surrounded by a Fleet of Tugs—Big Hole in Her, but She Is Towed to Port.

QUEENSTOWN, May 29.—The American Line steamer Haverford, commanded by Capt. Evans, which sailed yesterday from Liverpool for Philadelphia with 134 cabin and 850 steerage passengers on board, went on the rocks westward of Cork Head this afternoon while feeling her way cautiously in a dense fog. She was floated at high tide to-night and towed into harbor here.

Wireless telegraphy again demonstrated its efficiency. By its aid what might have been a disaster was converted into a mere accident.

Within a few minutes the ship was in communication with Queenstown. Her position and needs were explained. First aid in the form of great tugs, which ply between the port and passing liners with passengers and mails, was going to the rescue like fire engines responding to an alarm.

Before dusk all the passengers and their light luggage had been safely brought ashore at this harbor. The company has arranged to forward them to their destination by another steamer.

The Admiralty station received the first message of distress, which it transmitted immediately to the American Line office. At the same time it dispatched the big Government tugs Hellespont and Stormcock to the liner's assistance.

The company's Queenstown agents soon afterward sent three of the Clyde Shipping Company's tugs, which, with the tender and tugs carrying the Irish passengers who expected to board the Haverford, under command of Capt. Smith, Marine Superintendent of the Port, soon arrived at the scene of the accident. Thus the stranded vessel was in a short time surrounded by a small fleet.

The Irish contingent, consisting of five cabin and seventy-five steerage passengers, left Queenstown at noon to meet the Haverford. News of the accident was delivered to the tugs conveying them at Roche's Point, and they were the first to reach the Haverford and give assistance.

There was considerable anxiety on board the American liner, as she was shrouded in the densest fog, but there was nothing resembling a panic. The officers wasted no time, and had 400 of the passengers aboard tugs before the Hellespont and Stormcock hove in sight. These two vessels soon took off the remainder. The transfer was made in perfect order.

Quarters were found here for the shipwrecked persons, the cabin passengers being housed at the large hotel and the steerage passengers in the smaller hostelries. The Captain and crew remained on the ship as a matter of course.

Intense heat has enshrouded Great Britain since Sunday, accompanied by a heavy fog everywhere on the water, and there have been many minor shipping accidents.

Regarding the grounding of the Haverford, C. P. Aiken of Cambridge, Mass., said to-night:

"We fell into the fog immediately after leaving the Mersey. It continued all night. The ship's siren was blowing continuously. When we arrived off Cork the fog was very dense, and the Commander was no doubt anxious to pick up Daunt Rock Lightship, south of Cork Harbor.

"When I went on deck just after luncheon, I felt a slight jar, but could see absolutely nothing. The ship had been moving very slowly. It must have been high tide, as a few hours later, when the tide left, we could see rocks all around. There was a little excitement, but no panic except among a few foreigners.

"Word was passed by the ship's officers that they had been informed by wireless that tugs would soon be alongside and take the passengers off. We were all glad when we saw the tugs coming and relieved when we found ourselves on tenders bound for Queenstown."

The following Americans were among the cabin passengers:

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Aiken, Cambridge, Mass.; Miss Martha Berry, Mrs. V. Edwards, Master Edwards, Miss Muriel Fafair, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. George Kelland, Andrew McCreath, William McCreath, Miss Joan McCreath, Miss Annie Smith, Mrs. E. J. Wherrit, and Master Raymond Wherrit, all of Philadelphia; M. Henderson, Cleveland, Ohio; Samuel Gilbody, and Henry Gilbody of Kenovo, W. Va.; Mrs. Elizabeth Peck, and Miss Constance Peck, Mill Hall, Penn.

The cabin passengers were mainly English. Arrangements have been made whereby the passengers may resume their voyage on Sunday.

The dense fog has resulted in the delay of several liners. The Oceanic, due here at 10 o'clock this morning, did not arrive until 8 o'clock to-night. She sailed again at 9:50. The Adriatic, due at midnight, may not attempt to land her passengers, but probably will proceed direct to Liverpool.

STEEL TRUST FAIR TO ALL, SAYS GARY

Fostered Competition, Wronged No Interest, and Set Good Example in Business World.

BENEFIT TO ITS EMPLOYES

Never Defied Public Opinion, He Says, and Didn't Believe in Carnegie Policy of Crushing Competitor.

E. H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, continuing yesterday his testimony in the suit for its dissolution, declared that its policy had always been to benefit employes, customers, and competitors.

"Our policy," said he, "has been to so manage and conduct its affairs as to make it certain that it did no wrong or injury to any person or any other interest. We have endeavored to be of real, substantial benefit in promoting the interests of every one connected with the Steel Corporation or in any way interested in it.

"We have acted on the assumption that we were best serving the pecuniary interest of the stockholders if we so managed the corporation as to benefit the employe, consumer, or competitor. We believe we have set a good example in the business world. Our competitors were never before so strong and healthy as for the last several years.

"We have treated our competitors as competitors. We have pushed our business and pushed it hard. Our competition has always been active and keen, but we have treated our competitors as gentlemen ought to be treated. We have been of benefit to them whenever we could. If we have been dishonest or tricky or mean in our treatment of competitors it has not been done with the consent or knowledge of those who control the affairs of the corporation.

"We have tried to be fair and open with them. We have frankly stated to them our business conditions in detail, and in every way have tried to give them the benefit of our experience, so I am justified in saying that we have fostered competition.

"In the olden days the rule in this country was different. I have no doubt that the suggestion of Andrew Carnegie in his letters that have been read here as to putting competitors out of business represented not only his views, but those of his associates, and were generally held among those in charge of the iron and steel business of the country. It was a competition that was bitter, fierce, destructive. If it did not absolutely drive competitors out of business, it so harassed and injured them as to prevent them from extending their business, and at times compelled them to close their mills, discharge their employes, and disrupt their organizations; and, in fact, was a competition that in the opinion of those in charge of the corporation—I might say in the opinion of those in control of the industry generally in this country at the present time—was calculated to destroy, to injure, instead of to build up, to prevent extensions of trade, to limit the capacity or opportunity of many engaged in the trade."

Worked for Staple Trade.

In answer to questions by R. V. Lindabury, counsel for the Steel Corporation, Judge Gary said it had never sold below cost in any particular locality to drive out a competitor, or sought to take away the customer of a competitor by secret rebates or departures from open, published prices or prices lower than it was making under other circumstances.

"What has been the policy as to prices?" asked Mr. Lindabury.

"The Corporation has favored stability of business, as opposed to demoralization of business, so far as it could legitimately do so. An effort has been made to sell at lower prices as far as it could, and to reduce its prices if and when it could and ought to do so, to a point where it was believed prices were reasonable and were so considered by consumers.

"The Corporation has endeavored, so far as it could, to prevent the unreasonable increase of prices. It has been a decided factor from time to time in keeping prices down to a level which was believed to be fair and just. Prices generally are controlled very much by the business conditions of the country. The ordinary laws of trade and of supply and demand fix general prices of commodities, but the Corporation has endeavored to prevent sudden and violent fluctuations downward by its advice, but more particularly by its own action in fixing its prices, and it has endeavored to prevent unreasonable increase in prices at times when the demand was greater than the supply and there was a general disposition in the trade to take advantage of those conditions and unduly increase prices."

Judge Gary said this policy prevented the reduction of wages in dull times and loss to customers who might have stock on hand that was bought before the depression. The only time the Steel Corporation had cut wages, he said, was in 1904, and it had not done so until after it had cut the dividend on the common stock. No cut was made in the panic of 1907.

"I must admit that we have made mistakes, and our subordinates have done things that we wouldn't have done, and wouldn't authorize them to do. It has never been our policy to ignore, disregard or defy public sentiment, and I have personally talked freely with the newspaper men until the sessions of the Stanley Committee and the filing of this suit made it seem inappropriate to say much about our affairs."

The formation of the Steel Corporation, Judge Gary said, would not have been possible without the aid of the late J. P. Morgan.

"In the first place," he said, "it was necessary to have a financial interest of Mr. Morgan's strength, and there was no other comparable with Mr. Morgan in this regard. In the second place, men connected with the various companies which we proposed taking over had confidence in Mr. Morgan and his friends, and anything that he would finance or be connected with."

WAITER SAYS BISHOP WAS KNOWN AS BAER

HOTEL EMPLOYES' STORIES

Witnesses from Photograph Identify Bishop's Companion as Mrs. Gwathmey—A Meal Check in Evidence.

A midnight meal check of the Hotel Astor, dated Dec. 28, 1912, was put in evidence yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Goff, who is hearing Mrs. Abigail Hancock Bishop's suit for divorce against her husband, James Cunningham Bishop, the banker. The check called for one quart of Orchard water, among its other items, to be delivered to room 622, occupied by a man and woman registered as Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Baer of Philadelphia.

William Travers Jerome, attorney for Mrs. Bishop, called particular attention to the Orchard water item. Mr. Bishop is interested in Orchard water, which is bottled on his farm in Westchester County.

George Sillas, a room waiter, and two maids identified Mr. Bishop, who was sitting in court, as the man who had occupied the room. Sillas and one of the maids swore that the woman in the room was Mrs. Lella Gaines Gwathmey, identifying her from a photograph admitted into evidence on Mr. Bishop's statement that it portrayed Mrs. Gwathmey.

Sillas identified a $13.30 check for a dinner he served in the apartment 622, between 7 and 9 o'clock, on Dec. 28, 1912. He said that Mrs. Gwathmey and Bishop were not fully dressed. It was testified from other sources that they entered the room at noon of that day, and left about noon of the next day.

Mrs. Anna Selner, a former Hotel Astor maid, testified that she had seen Mrs. Gwathmey in a room of the suite. Mrs. Selner was the only one of a number of Hotel Astor employes who identified Mr. Bishop and Mrs. Gwathmey as the occupants of the suite assigned to persons known as Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Baer, whose testimony Henry W. Taft, attorney for the defendant banker, was able to weaken in any respect. She admitted that she had testified falsely in denying that Mrs. Bishop's secretary had employed her for wages between the time she left the Hotel Astor's employe and her marriage.

Both she and Gertrude Gerard, another maid, were positive that discrepancies between their affidavits on Mrs. Bishop's alimony application and their testimony on the trial were due to mistakes in transcribing their notes on the part of the lawyers who drew the affidavits.

Several flashes of humor enlivened the court proceedings which continued from 10 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening. Sillas, the waiter, caused the laughter by his answer to one of Mr. Jerome's questions.

"What about the first drinks they had?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"About 50 cents," replied the waiter.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tibbs, a little tired English cook, who worked at Bishop's Westchester farm, testified as to what happened when Bishop returned from answering a telephone call on one Sunday and told Mrs. Gwathmey that it was strange that his wife had called him. According to Mrs. Tibbs, Mrs. Gwathmey had replied: "You'd better look out, she'll be after you in the morning." There was laughter over this testimony.

Mrs. Tibbs said she had arrived at Bishop's farm on April 11 and that Bishop and Mrs. Gwathmey had taken luncheon there on April 13, 20, and 27. After luncheon, she said Miss White, their companion, had gone out on the steps.

Edgar J. Moore, cashier of the Hotel Astor, was called to identify and explain various records. He explained several by saying they showed on various dates what pieces of baggage had been brought up by porters or hallboys to the rooms which according to the register were occupied by Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Baer.

The record accounted for one bag on Sept. 4, no baggage on Nov. 3 and 4, no baggage on Dec. 5 and 6, one bag on June 11 and 12, one bag on Dec. 28 and 29, one bag on July 15 and 16, and so on. He said the rate for the suite usually occupied by Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Baer was $15 a day. On four occasions, he said, the records showed that he had received payment for the rooms in which Dr. Baer was registered, but he was unable to recall the appearance of the man who paid.

An original Hotel Astor meal check of Dec. 28 was introduced in evidence by Mr. Jerome, together with a meal book, on which this check and data about it had been entered. This check on its face, and the record in the meal book, showed that the meal had been served in the "Baer" room. Sillas, the waiter, said Mr. Bishop had paid him with a $20 bill, for which he brought change. The check read:

Two clear green turtle soup	$1.10
One mallard duck	2.80
Two capes bordelaise	1.30
One French fried celery	.60
Two Smyrna figs	.80
One Malaga grapes	.50
Two demitasse	.50
Two old-fashioned whisky cocktails	.50
Two rolls of butter	.20
One quart No. 19 wine	5.00
One pony XXX brandy	.30

Sillas said that on Dec. 5 he had served oysters, pheasant, grapes, port wine, and cordial for Bishop and Mrs. Gwathmey in their rooms at the Hotel Astor.

Three other hotel maids were called as witnesses. All of them identified Mr. Bishop as the man who had occupied rooms assigned to Dr. J. C. Baer. Two of them identified the photograph of Mrs. Gwathmey as the likeness of his woman companion. One of these was Bertha Gerard, sister of Gertrude Gerard. In cross-examining Bertha Gerard, Mr. Taft got one of his worst setbacks of the day. He had tried unsuccessfully before to get the Hotel Astor employes to admit that attorneys for Mrs. Bishop had influenced them by showing them photographs of Mr. Bishop and Mrs. Gwathmey and asking them to identify them.

"Where and when did you first see the picture of Mrs. Gwathmey you have identified?" asked Mr. Taft.

"In Mr. Osborne's office," responded the witness.

"Ah! ha!" murmured Mr. Taft. "Tell us all about it."

"I came down with my sister and we were put in an office to wait. I saw a basket on the floor and there was a picture in it. I looked at it and said to my sister:

"'There! That's the lady I saw in the room.'"

Mr. Taft tried to confuse the witness by quoting from Gertrude Gerard's testimony that James W. Osborne, Jr., and another had been present when she first saw the Mrs. Gwathmey picture, but Gertrude Gerard insisted that if her sister had testified about her she was wrong. On redirect examination Mr. Jerome asked:

"Your sister had been to Mr. Osborne's office once before the time you went there?"

"Yes," the girl answered.

The trial will continue to-day.

ARREST SUBWAY PEDDLERS.

Badges No Protection When Police Clear Times Square Entrances.

As a result of numerous complaints which have been received in the past two weeks, the police arrested late yesterday afternoon five peddlers, four women and a man, at the Times Square Subway station. The peddlers, it was said, had become a public nuisance by flocking into the subway entrance during the rush hours. The climax came yesterday when a man appeared with a huge basket of pretzels.

All of those arrested yesterday had badges, which they said had been given to them by the city, but the police said that made no difference. The peddlers, they said, had violated the law by taking their stand in the Subway station where they got in the way of the passengers.

"MISSING" WITNESS FOUND.

Chauffeur Reddig Pointed Out In Court at Dynamite Trial.

BOSTON, May 29.—Much to the astonishment of District Attorney Pelletier, one of the missing witnesses in the dynamite conspiracy trial, Orville Reddig, was located in the courtroom this morning. James R. Bailey, Jr., the first witnes of the day, was asked when he last saw Reddig.

"I see him now," said Bailey, pointing out Reddig among the spectators.

The State repeatedly had intimated an intention to establish, if the man could be found, that Reddig, a chauffeur, drove one of Wood's automobiles on a mysterious errand the night of Jan. 19, 1912, when the dynamite was "planted." Called to the stand, Reddig testified that he drove the defendant, Atteaux, from Boston to Andover, where there was a conference of mill men at Wood's home on the night in question, and spent the night at his home on Wood's estate.

Reddig explained that during the last three days, while the police had been trying to serve a summons on him, he had been motoring through Southern New Hampshire, looking over the territory with an eye to opening a garage.

The books of the American Woolen Company, whose President, William H. Wood, is one of the defendants, will be examined by representatives of the District Attorney's office. After several witnesses had been heard to-day, the District Attorney asked that an adjournment until Monday be taken in order that he might obtain certain information from these records. His request was granted. The prosecutor expressed the hope that before the trial was resumed he would be able to locate Charles A. Hardy, an official of the woolen company, regarded by the State as a material witness.

Again to-day the prosecution failed in an effort to introduce telephone records as evidence that Wood conspired with Atteaux and others to "plant" the dynamite. The court would not admit the records.

RULES AGAINST MITCHELL.

Carmody Says W. C. Rogers Is Legal Head of Labor Department.

ALBANY, May 29.—Attorney General Carmody disagrees with the contention of Gov. Sulzer that John Mitchell is the State Labor Commissioner de facto. In an opinion to the State Controller the Attorney General holds that Mr. Mitchell has no legal right to act as the head of the Labor Department and is not entitled to receive any compensation from the State. The effect of the opinion is to declare illegal Mr. Mitchell's appointment of John Williams as First Deputy.

The validity of the Governor's appointment of Mr. Mitchell was raised by the Controller after he had received the Labor Department's payroll signed by Mr. Mitchell. Mr. Carmody rules that William C. Rogers of Rochester, Second Deputy Labor Commissioner, is the acting head of the department.

RECTOR'S IS TAKEN AWAY FROM RECTOR

Former Millionaire Lacks Funds, His Lawyer Says, and Company Is in Bankruptcy.

RECEIVER FOR THE HOTEL

Rector's Hotel, at Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, in Times Square, went under new management yesterday. Coincident with the change, the announcement was made that the corporation known as "Rector's," of which Charles E. Rector is President, had been thrown into involuntary bankruptcy. Claims aggregating $422,788.08 were made against the corporation in the petition filed in the United States District Court. The assets were named as $50,000.

Charles E. Rector, who amassed a fortune of more than $1,000,000 in the restaurant and hotel business in the last twenty-five years, has lost practically all of his fortune, according to Attorney Stoddard of Stoddard & Marx, counsel for Mr. Rector. He is no longer President of the Hotel Rector Company, the holding company which owned the Rector Hotel and rented it to "Rector's," the corporation which until yesterday conducted the business. In his place the company has chosen E. T. C. Grey, a Vice President of the Thompson-Starrett Company, which erected the big hotel and is the biggest creditor of the corporation. It was said yesterday that the Thompson-Starrett Company now controlled the Rector Hotel Company.

The news that Rector's had failed was a shock to hotel and restaurant men yesterday, although some had suspected that the big hotel, which was opened on Dec. 28, 1910, and widely advertised as the most pretentious and exclusive place of the kind in the district, was not proving a money maker. No one was willing to talk about it for publication yesterday, but it was learned that the coming of the cabaret and tea dances and the 1 o'clock closing order were believed to be, in no small measure, responsible for the hotel's failure.

The principal creditors in the petition are the Thompson-Starrett Company, whose claims amount to $121,504 for money advanced; Elton T. Cowan, $1,018 for merchandise, and the Hotel Rector Company, $320,265 for rent on a lease and for taxes, repairs, and replacements. The petition alleges that the management committed an act of bankruptcy on May 25 by transferring, while insolvent, to Burns Brothers a preferential payment of $1,295.43. Judge Holt appointed Edwin C. Ward receiver for Rector's under a bond of $25,000, and Mr. Ward at once took charge of affairs. An inventory was started yesterday, but it was said that it would probably be a day or two before any statement could be made. James F. McNaboe has been retained as counsel by the creditors.

Counsel for Mr. Rector said yesterday that he had been in poor health for the last six months and had not been able recently to take active charge of his business. An effort to reach him at his home at Seabright, N. J., last night was unsuccessful. It was said that he was not at home.

Charles E. Rector started in the restaurant business in Chicago twenty-five years ago, when he borrowed $5,000 from Chapin & Gore, Chicago liquor dealers, and opened an oyster house at Clark and Monroe Streets. He had obtained much experience in sea food while in Washington and Baltimore, and when he opened in Chicago he made special arrangements with the railroad and express companies by which, it was said, all sorts of sea foods were delivered there for his patrons almost as quickly after being taken from the water as they could be obtained in this city. His business grew to such proportions that he erected the big Rector building on the site of his oyster house in Chicago, and he retained his interest in that business until 1911, when he sold out and put all of his money in his enterprise here.

In New York he opened Rector's Restaurant in 1901, and again enjoyed great success. The restaurant became famous all over the country and when he closed it in February, 1910, and started to erect the present building on the site, his fortune was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

GIMBELS

The Immortal Address of Abraham Lincoln at the Dedication of the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, Nov. 19, 1863

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting-place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honoured dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

SAYS SULZER SEEKS TO BE PARTY BOSS

Failure to Attend Carnegie Hall Meeting Stirs Duell to Anger.

GOVERNOR TALKS FIGHT

Assails Leaders in His Speeches—Addresses Over 5,000 Persons—Campaigning by Motor Car.

Gov. Sulzer's direct primary campaign kept him busy in this city yesterday. From 5,000 to 6,000 persons listened to his appeals, and greeted with applause his attacks on the bosses of the two old parties—Charles F. Murphy and William Barnes. When the Governor last night carried his moral issue out to the remote parts of Queens and to the crowded Williamsburg district in Brooklyn, he hit John H. McCooey, Mr. Murphy's understudy across the bridge, one or two glancing blows, which seemed to afford pleasure to his hearers.

Gov. Sulzer has discovered that his audiences are interested only moderately in his Direct Nominations bill, but that they listen gladly to digs at the bosses. Accordingly, the Governor in his speeches of yesterday left the provisions of what has become known as the "Sulzer Direct Nominations bill" largely to the imaginations of his hearers and devoted himself to denunciation of Mr. Murphy and the lawmakers who thus far have refused to become converted to his plan of direct primaries.

There was an interesting aftermath yesterday to Gov. Sulzer's failure on the night before to keep his promise and address the large meeting at Carnegie Hall, held under the auspices of the Direct Primary League. Gov. Sulzer himself, in a typewritten statement, sought to justify his absence by saying that there was not enough time for him to appear at Carnegie Hall while he was on his way from Brooklyn to Harlem and the Bronx, where he addressed other meetings.

To this explanation Charles H. Duell, Jr., Chairman of the Non-Partisan Direct Primary League, made a spirited reply last night, when in a formal statement he said that the Governor's Direct Nominations campaign in reality was nothing but a clever game of politics, in which William R. Hearst was his partner, and which was being played for no less stake than the de facto leadership of the Democratic Party in this State.

"Gov. Sulzer is championing direct nominations only as a means toward an end," said Mr. Duell. "He hopes that by using it he will be able to gain control of the Democratic Party in the State of New York, and, as its leader, be its boss. If the Governor had been interested in direct primaries for the sake of direct primaries he certainly would have attended the Carnegie Hall meeting last night.

That some arrangement existed between Mr. Hearst and Gov. Sulzer was the belief among politicians yesterday.

SULZER STIRS CLERGYMEN.

Asks Them to Preach on Direct Primary Issue—Preachers Cheer.

Few of the meetings which Gov. Sulzer has addressed in the course of his Direct Nominations campaign have been more enthusiastic than was the one held yesterday afternoon in the big assembly room of the Metropolitan Life Building.

The audience was made up almost exclusively of clergymen. Nearly every religious denomination was represented; in all about 400 ministers attended.

A few inaccuracies crept into the Governor's address, but the ministers applauded these just as enthusiastically as any other part of the impromtu speech. The Governor told the clergymen who listened to him that under the present system the primaries were not official, and that a person with impunity might stuff the ballot box at a primary election to his heart's content, for the courts were powerless in such cases. This remark was greeted with little outcries of astonishment, but the attitude of the clergymen indicated that they took the statement without reservation. The Governor did not say that the law at present provides penalties for such offenses, and that there is an official primary ballot, and that there is supervision by the authorities at all primary elections under the Blauvelt law. Moreover, men have been sent to jail for frauds at the primaries.

For the first time since the Governor began making "appeals to the people" on the Direct Nominations issue, he attacked something besides the lawmakers who opposed his bill, and the political bosses who, he says, "hold the Legislature in the hollow of their hands." His new target was the newspapers.

The Governor looked about the room and found that there were some newspaper men present, so he softened his attack somewhat by saying that the newspaper reporter in many instances was all right.

"But reporters," said Gov. Sulzer, "are influenced by the policy of the papers they represent, and the newspapers in turn are amenable to invisible influences. The reporter must write what he is told to write by his city editor or by his managing editor, or must write what the principal stockholder in the paper wants written, and nothing else. You would think that the newspapers would be interested in measures designed for the uplifting of humanity and for the promotion of right and truth and justice, but you know that this is as far from the truth as the poles are from each other."

Gov. Sulzer began his speech by saying he had been much gratified to observe that nearly all the ministers in the State of New York were unqualifiedly in favor of his plan for restoring to the people their lost power. He predicted that his bill would be passed, although he did not go so far as to say that this would happen at the extraordinary session of the Legislature, which is to convene on June 16. He asked the ministers to make the Sulzer Direct Nominations bill the topic of their sermons on Sunday, June 15.

Says He Is Trying to Make Good.

"That my bill will pass, I know," said Gov. Sulzer. "That it will win is as certain as that the sun will rise to-morrow morning. I am trying to make good. That is what I have always been trying to do. When I took office I made up my mind to do what was right and true, what was honest, and what was best for the people of this State. I thought that this proposition was so elemental that every one would be with me. To my great astonishment, the most powerful leader of one party and several powerful leaders of another began to oppose me right away. They reminded me of the old saying that platforms are intended to get in on, but not to stand on after you get in.

"Every department at the Capitol is honeycombed with graft," the Governor said. "I made up my mind to drive every grafter I found out of public life. Immediately trouble began. The grafters had lots of friends, and these friends went after me. When I told one of the grafters whom I had caught red-handed that I would drive him out of office unless he resigned, he challenged me and laughed at me in the Executive Chamber. He told me that it would mean my political decapitation if I dared to do anything as unprofessional as that in political life."

There was some applause. Gov. Sulzer stood waiting for it to cease. Then he raised his voice and fairly shouted:

"But wherever I find a crook I will put him out, and if I can get the proof I will prosecute him. If I did anything less I would not be fit to be Governor of the State of New York.

There was hearty applause as the Governor finished. The meeting was held under the auspices of the State Federation of Churches.

COLD TO MRS. HEYE'S DEMAND OF ALIMONY

Court Says He'll Allow Her No Such Amount as $78,000 and That She Lost a Soft Thing.

SCORNS SOCIAL POSITION

New York Society Women, Drinking Highballs and Smoking, Make Him Tired, Judge Aspinall Says.

The type of New York society woman who idles away her days drinking highballs and smoking cigarettes in fashionable hotels, or who is to be seen lolling in her automobile on Fifth Avenue with a pampered poodle in her lap, instead of being at home interesting herself in the happiness of her husband, was referred to and denounced yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Aspinall in Brooklyn, while he was hearing argument on an application for $78,000 a year alimony made by Mrs. Blanche A. William Heye, wife of George Gustave Heye, a Manhattan banker. While reserving his decision on the motion, Justice Aspinall said that Mrs. Heye would not obtain through him so large an allowance of alimony.

Several times during the argument the court interrupted counsel with caustic criticism of dawdling and extravagant society women.

"You may be absolutely certain," said Justice Aspinall, "that I shall not allow $78,000 alimony to any woman. These New York society women make me tired. They live too high. They go to fashionable hotels and drink highballs and smoke cigarettes instead of staying home trying to make their husbands happy. They ride up Fifth Avenue in their fine automobiles, with poodle dogs in their laps, and when they are married to a poor man, unfortunate enough to have $1,000,000, they come into court and say that their 'social position' requires an exorbitant amount of alimony."

Justice Aspinall did not seem to sympathize with the claim of the plaintiff to special consideration.

"She had a soft thing and she lost him," he remarked. "She'll never get $78,000 through me."

John Willett, counsel for Mrs. Heye, told in detail of the way the couple lived prior to their separation in June last. They had an apartment at the Hotel Langdon, Manhattan, for which they paid $10,000 a year; a house in Madison Avenue, and a place at Roslyn, L. I. Their garage alone cost $20,000 a year to maintain. The attorney said that Mr. Heye's income was $200,000 a year. For his legal services in prosecuting his client's case, the lawyer thought, he should be allowed at least $15,000. There were twenty-four allegations in Mrs. Heye's suit for a divorce, he said, and testimony would have to be taken in various cities.

For Mr. Heye, ex-Judge Isaac Oeland said that his client was willing to pay a fair amount of alimony, "so he can get rid of all this extravagance." When the couple were married, the lawyer said, Mr. Heye was worth a good deal more than $1,000,000, part of which he inherited from his father, the late Gustave Heye, of the Standard Oil Company. The expenses of Mrs. Heye, counsel declared, had been heavy, and his client's fortune had dwindled to $300,000. His income was now only $20,000 a year.

"When my client married, his troubles began," said Judge Oeland. "Then he had his inheritance. Now all he can find of it is $360,000. The rest of it has gone to maintain this woman in what she considered her station in life."

"Stations in life look very pretty in books," said Justice Aspinall, "but many a woman never had a station in life until she married."

After hearing the argument, Justice Aspinall said that he would not send the case to a referee, and again said that he would not allow the plaintiff such a large amount of alimony as she asked for.

"It will take only a little time for me to decide as to this motion," remarked the court, taking the papers.

The Heyes were married about nine years ago at Wellesley Mills, Mass., and have two children. Mr. Heye is a member of the banking and brokerage firm of Battles & Co. of 60 Broadway, Manhattan. Mrs. Heye alleges that she discovered early last year that her husband was unduly friendly with an actress. When Mr. Heye returned from a trip to Panama last January he found that his wife objected to his presence in their apartment at the Langdon and he went to the Hotel Belmont. Mrs. Heye, who continued to live at the Hotel Langdon, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, with the children, brought suit for divorce soon after her husband's return from the Isthmus. The proceedings were instituted in Nassau County, where the plaintiff has a residence at Roslyn, but the application for alimony and counsel fees had to be heard in Brooklyn, where there is a Special Term for motions.

Jack Johnson Fined $5.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, was fined $5 and costs to-day by Municipal Judge Fry on the charge of running his automobile with the muffler open.

DEATH IN VETERANS' PARADE

Close of Confederate Reunion Saddened by Three Fatalities.

CHATTANOOGA, May 29.—The closing ceremonies of reunion week of the United Confederate Veterans here to-day were saddened by the deaths of three aged soldiers whose strength had been overtaxed. G. W. Mullenix of Lindale, Ga., dropped out of the parade and entered a restaurant, where he expired. Robert Nolen of Houston, Texas, overcome, fell down the steps of the City Auditorium and suffered a broken neck. B. F. Moore of Fuque, Texas, died in an infirmary as the result of a fall received yesterday.

Several veterans in the parade were overcome by exhaustion, and were said to be in serious condition to-night. But thousands of the old soldiers pluckily kept their places in the long line, while others who were too feeble rode in carriages and automobiles. The reunion came to an end to-night with the ball in honor of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Nearly a thousand veterans were mounted on horses of the Eleventh United States Cavalry, offered by Fort Oglethorpe officers. It was the first time since the war that the former Confederate soldiers had used United States horses in their parades.

From the time Gen. Bennett H. Young, Commander in Chief of the United Confederate Veterans, appeared, accompanied by his staff, until the last detachment of veterans passed there was continuous cheering from thousands of spectators. Gen. Young's staff was followed by the Eleventh United States Cavalry Band, survivors of the Trans-Mississippi Department, the Department of Northern Virginia, the Department of Tennessee, Forrest's Cavalry Corps and the 1,000 mounted veterans. Interspersed among the commands were the sponsors of the divisions of the United Confederate Veterans, in each instance followed by old soldiers riding in automobiles. The Richmond Howitzers and the Pelham Guards of Macon acted as official military escorts to the veterans.

Hit by Foul Ball, Gets $3,500.

ANOTHER BLOW TO ASQUITH.

Unionist Returned at Altringham by Greatly Increased Majority.

ALTRINGHAM, England, May 29.—The Unionist candidate, G. C. Hamilton, defeated his Liberal opponent, the Hon. Lawrence Kay-Shuttelworth, in the by-election held here yesterday by a majority of 1,262. The Unionist majority at the previous election was only 119.

The former member, John R. Kebty-Fletcher, resigned his seat on account of ill-health. It was he who challenged Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George to explain his transaction in Marconi shares.

Mr. Hamilton received 9,409 votes and Mr. Kay-Shuttleworth 8,147. The polling was much heavier than at the last election, most of the new voters casting their ballots in favor of the Unionist candidate.

Although the result of the election does not affect the party membership in the House of Commons, the greatly increased majority of the Unionists, coming after the recent Unionist victory at the Newmarket election, is supposed in political circles to be significant of a reaction against Premier Asquith's administration. In both these recently polled constituencies dissatisfaction over Chancellor Lloyd-George's compulsory insurance legislation appears to have been the principal cause of the loss of Liberal votes.

Premier Asquith promised in the course of the election campaign here soon to introduce a bill amending the Insurance act, but this promise was apparently too late. Many of the farm laborers, whose wages range from $3.25 to $4 a week, object to being compelled to pay the eight cents weekly fees for insurance.

RECOVERS DIAMOND RING.

Advertisement in The Times Brings $1,500 Gem to Max Gernshyn.

Max Gernshyn recovered a diamond solitaire ring valued at $1,500 yesterday through the Lost and Found column of THE NEW YORK TIMES. Mr. Gernshyn lost the ring while on his way to business at 306 Broadway on Tuesday. He inserted this advertisement in THE TIMES for publication Wednesday morning:

LOST.—A gentleman's diamond solitaire ring, between 89th St. and Franklin St.; possibly lost on 8th Av. or on Columbus-Broadway lines. Liberal reward if returned to 38 West 89th St.

The ring was found on the sidewalk at Eighth Avenue and Fifty-third Street by Christopher Welcker of 412 West Fifty-eighth Street. He read the advertisement in THE TIMES on Wednesday and got into communication with Mr. Gernshyn yesterday.

GIANTS CHECK PHILLIES---YANKEES LOSE TO ATHLETICS---GOLF---LAWN TENNIS

FLETCHER'S LONG HIT SPILLS THE PHILLIES

Short Stop Drives Shafer Home with the Winning Run in Fourteenth Inning.

In the gathering dusk at the Polo Grounds last evening two winning streaks cracked as one. The first was owned by the peppery Phillies, pacesetters in the National League race, and it amounted to eight successive victories before yesterday's encounter with the Giants. The other winning streak was the property of Tom Seaton, whose seven successive wins had done so much to keep the flying Phils out in front. One terrific smash by Art Fletcher as the minute hand on the right field clock was moving fast toward 7 o'clock proved the finisher for both victorious runs as it sent Tilly Shafer home from first base and gave the Giants the verdict over the league leaders, 7 to 6.

The game had reached the fourteenth inning before Fletcher came through with his long hit, good ordinarily for three bases, but held to a double by Fletcher's disinclination to run after he saw Shafer hurry over the plate with the deciding count. The hit broke a deadlock that had existed since the eighth inning, when the Giants came from behind after trailing the Phillies for seven innings. In the fusillade of hits which featured the Giants' attack in the eighth inning taps were sounded for Alexander the Great, who had previously been pitching at a clip that promised sure defeat for the Polo Grounders.

With Alexander on the shelf the burden fell to Tom Seaton, and the Californian showed brilliant work up to the fourteenth inning. He allowed nothing resembling a hit for the first five innings that he occupied the rubber, but wildness and loose playing behind him necessitated some fancy flinging in two different innings. Seaton delivered on each occasion, but the break came in the fourteenth, when Shafer landed on Seaton for a single to right and Fletcher followed with his drive to deep left centre.

The battle became too feverish for Manager McGraw in the eleventh inning, and he saw the remainder of the battle as an outsider looking in. With Doolan on second base and one out, Mike Doolan made a weak effort to bunt, but Mike's motion was so clever that it escaped Hank O'Day's notice and he called "Ball one." From Snodgrass at first base a wail arose that grew louder with each succeeding second, and O'Day promptly ordered Snodgrass to get out of the ball yard. With Snodgrass gradually moving himself out of the picture, McGraw picked up the fallen argument, and it was only a short time before Mac got his orders to hurry away from the battle line. But a message from the outer wall in the Giants' half of the seventh inning, ordering Marquard to give way to Wilson, with the count of three-and-one against the Rube, indicated that McGraw had not gone far from the Polo Grounds.

The mighty pinch hitting ability of Harold "Moose" McCormick was a most important factor in keeping the Phillies from crashing in another victory within the regulation period. With two on bases, two out, and two runs needed to tie up the game, Harold was called from retirement in the Giants' half of the eighth inning to bat for Jack Murray, who is now engulfed in a long batting slump. McCormick would not even approach the plate until he had been properly introduced by Umpire O'Day, as his last pinch hit against the Phillies never reached the league records. With the introduction properly attended to, Harold crashed into one of Alexander's choicest offerings, and the ball took a ride against the right field wall. When Cravath finally got it back to the diamond Harold was anchored on second base, the score was tied, and some 10,000 fans were in delirium. Meyers was intentionally passed, and then Magee took care of Snodgrass's loft and the inning was over.

Daring work on the bases in the early innings when they led most of the time did not help the Quaker cause much. Both Paskert and Luderus were twice thrown out at the plate trying to get away with almost impossible chances to tally. In the opening inning Paskert tried to score from third after Shafer had captured a high foul from Lobert's bat not far from third base. In the seventh he went from first to third on Lobert's single to right and then tried to score when Murray was returning the ball to Doyle at second base.

Herzog was unable to play because of illness, and Manager McGraw had to shift his players. Shafer went to third in Herzog's place and Snodgrass succeeded Shafer in centre field. Before the game ended Snodgrass went to first in place of Merkle, whose injured leg troubled him.

The Phils collected most of their runs at the expense of Al Demaree, who was knocked out of the pastime with none out in the fourth inning. Singles by Magee, Cravath, and Doolan and Killifer's sacrifice fly netted two runs in the second inning. In the fourth Magee, Cravath, and Luderus landed on Demaree in succession, driving him from the box. Luderus's hit scored Magee, and Cravath scored on Doolan's infield out after Crandall had taken up the burden. An error by Fletcher and Cravath's double laid the foundation for the last two Quaker runs in the sixth inning. An infield out and the squeeze play finished the work. Marquard worked from the ninth to the twelfth innings and Tesreau finished the game, both holding the Phils safe.

The Giants scored a run in the first on Burns's single and steal, Killifer's error, and an infield out. Singles by Meyers and Snodgrass and Burns's double added two in the fifth. In the seventh Meyers hit into the left field stand for home run. Singles by Fletcher and Doyle, a fielder's choice, and McCormick's double added two more New York runs in the eighth and tied up the game until the fourteenth, when Shafer and Fletcher broke it up. BAKER'S BAT SENDS YANKEES TO DEFEAT

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 29.—J. Franklin Baker, sometimes known as "Home Run Frank," fell into his old habits to-day and won a game for the Athletics over the New York Americans by a score of 6 to 5. Baker had the help of "Stuffy" McInnis in scoring the winning run for the Mackmen with two out in the ninth inning.

Up until Baker had his time at bat in the seventh inning, the Yankees were leading the Athletics by one run, and Eddie Collins had been retired on a liner to Daniels in the seventh. J. Franklin firmly grasped his little war club and hammered one of "Ray" Keating's spitters over the right field fence for a home run. It is a favorite pastime for Mr. Baker, but the fans have not had the opportunity of witnessing many such feats this year.

Having tied the score in the seventh inning, Baker finished off his day's work by slamming a two-bagger down the first base line in the ninth inning. "Rube" Oldring had received a pass in this inning, but took too much room off first base, and when Eddie Collins missed connecting with the ball while attempting to sacrifice, Sweeney's swift and accurate peg to Chase nipped Oldring off the bag. Collins fouled to Midkiff, and it did not look any too good to the fans until Baker shot one past Hal Chase's feet and rested on second base by the time the ball was returned.

Here young "Stuffy" McInnis took a hand. He had been very active with the stick all afternoon, having a clean single and a couple of scratch hits to his credit. This time "Stuffy" dropped a "Texas Leaguer" between short and left fields, and Baker had no trouble coming home from second base with the winning run.

It needed some rescue work on the part of Joe Bush to check the Yankees when they started in to win a game from the Mack men. With the Naps crowding the Athletics so hard for first place, Connie Mack is using all his baseball knowledge in keeping his team on its winning stride. To-day he started Bob Meusel against New York, and Chance's aggregation gathered five runs off Brown before he retired after finishing the fourth inning.

But Bush was an entirely different proposition, and his speed had the Yankees behaving like tallenders should conduct themselves when they are engaged with leaders in the pennant race. In the five innings he worked Bush allowed one scratch hit, and this was made in the ninth inning by Roger Peckinpaugh, who recently joined the Yankees and was doing his best to earn a regular position. Peck's attempt, for he finished the day with a perfect batting record to his credit, and was the only one to have the honor of making a base hit off Bush. Bush issued only one pass and fanned five batsmen in three innings.

Keating is credited with allowing the Athletics fourteen hits, but he pitched a good game and had some hard luck. Six of the fourteen hits made off Keating were infield scratches.

Manager Chance has whipped his team into a better ball club than when the Yankees made their first appearance here this season. They played a snappy game in the field, but the hitting of Baker proved their downfall.

A base on balls, Wolter's single, and an out gave the visitors one run in the first inning, and the Athletics tied it on an error by Collins, an out, and McInnis's single. Barry's double and Lapp's single gave the Athletics the lead in the second inning.

A base on balls to Daniels, the latter's steal, Wolter's two-bagger and steal of third base, with a wild pitch gave New York two in the third inning, and a base on balls to Sweeney, Peckinpaugh's single, Midkiff's single, and an out added the last two runs in the fourth. Bush displaced Brown in the fifth session, and New York's chances were checked.

The Athletics scored two runs in the sixth after two were out on Bush's infield single, Murphy's double and Oldring's single. Baker tied it up in the seventh inning, and he and McInnis won the game in the ninth. The score:

Polo Players to See Ball Game.

The English polo players who are in this country to play in the international matches at Meadow Brook next month will be the guests of Deputy Fire Commissioner George Olvany at the Polo Grounds this afternoon, where the Englishmen will see their first baseball game. In the party will be Capt. Leslie St. George Cheape, Capt. Noel Edwards, Capt. R. G. Ritson, Capt. Vivian Lockett, and Capt. F. M. Froake.

BROOKLYN CLUB INSURED.

All Officials and Players Named in Accident Policy of $206,000.

The Brooklyn Baseball Club players, together with Manager Dahlen and all the officials of the club, have been insured with the largest accident policy that has ever been written in Brooklyn. The Dodger squad has been insured for a total amount of about $206,000. In taking out this large policy, President Ebbets has established something new in major league baseball. Other clubs have insured their managers and valuable players, but this is the first time an entire club has ever been insured against accident.

Among the players and managers who have been highly insured against mishap during the present season are Manager McGraw or the Giants, together with Doyle, Merkle, Mathewson, Tesreau, and Marquard, while Chicago has Manager Evers, Archer, Bresnahan, and Zimmerman insured. Pittsburgh has Fred Clarke, Wagner, and Marty O'Toole insured, and several other clubs have taken this protection against loss.

The policy under which the Brooklyn Club is insured carries a double indemnity clause, which provides that if any of the insured is injured in a public conveyance, burning building, or elevator the amount is doubled. Those insured under the policy are President Charles H. Ebbets, Vice Presidents Edward J. McKeever and Stephen W. McKeever, Treasurer Henry W. Medicus, Secretary Charles H. Ebbets, Jr., Manager William F. Dahlen, Jake Daubert, Nap Rucker, John Hummel, Otto Miller, Leo Callahan, Bob Fisher, M. A. Kent, Frank Allen, E. Kirkpatrick, Charley Stengel, Pat Ragon, Eddie Phelps, E. H. Yingling, Cliff Curtis, W. E. Stacy, Zaza Wheat, J. Carlisle Smith, R. E. Erwin, Herb Moran, W. C. Fisher, and C. W. Cutshaw.

Princeton, 3; Lafayette, 1.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 29.—Princeton defeated Lafayette by a score of 3 to 1 in a game characterized by weird plays on University Field this afternoon. The visitors put up one of the loosest games seen here this year, making, however, more errors of judgment than fielding misplays. Princeton played an excellent game in the field. Scheeren of Lafayette got one of the longest hits ever seen on the local diamond, knocking the ball to the running track back of left field, but after making the circuit was called out for not touching second base. Green's catch of a long fly off the same player's bat was the fielding feature. Score:

LESSONS IN FINANCE.

The simplest and surest things in finance are the hardest to learn, or to act upon after they are learned. The reason is that interest clouds judgment to such an extent that the thing which is wished for is believed rather than the thing which reason points to as true. Wall Street has a saying that "everything is in the price," but there has been nothing good in the price of the St. Louis & San Francisco property ever since it failed fully to earn its distribution to creditors and owners. Everybody who has taken any of its securities in recent months has done so with fair warning that all was not well with it, and that the outlook was cautionary in proportion to the yield above the market rate for money.

Yet now many are crying that they are betrayed, and even the managers of the property are pleading that they are taken by surprise. They relied upon the earnings, and the crop prospects, and the chance of good things altogether unexpected, and they disregarded the plain signs that the sellers saw other omens upon the financial horizon. Hope and experience have had another bout together, and the risk takers are suffering for optimism. It is a pity, for the risk takers perform a distinct economic service, and are worthy of their reward. Everybody is happier when the risk takers are taking profits. When they are taking losses there are provided object lessons worthy of the closest study.

The St. Louis & San Francisco Railway does not stand alone in paying above the customary rate of interest. Indeed, the rate of interest itself is above the accustomed level. There are no better railways than those which are paying dividends above the nominal rate for money, and there are no better borrowers than New York City and New York State, which are paying more than within recent experience, and barely getting accommodation. It is better to apply the teachings of experience to these basic facts than to interpret them with easy optimism. Most of the fundamental factors of prosperity are encouraging, but they are not yielding their accustomed stimulus. It would be easy to make a long catalogue of reasons why prices ought to be better, and yet the fact is that many would rather have money than securities, and bankers whose reserves are abundant are not eager to accommodate favored borrowers. It is not intended to strike a balance of conditions. Let nobody blame "Wall Street" if the lure of ample yields tempts to disregard the warning that the yields are themselves signs that insurance against risk is thought necessary by the experienced.

When New York City and State see the credit of other cities and States practically stopped, let them not think that they are exceptions to the rule, and that all they have to do is to pay what the market asks, and let other borrowers take care of themselves. Municipal credit has been exceptionally good while railway credit has been declining. Cities have sold bonds by the hundred million while railways have been forced to issue short-term obligations. The same dollar could not serve both. In other words municipal credit has been sustained at the expense of railway credit. This has continued too long, and on too large a scale not to have a meaning. In railways there is an object lesson in the St. Louis receivership. And the Mayor's remarks at the Board of Estimate yesterday show that he sees a warning regarding the credit of New York. It is none too soon. Neither cities, nor railways, nor industrials can be financed profitably on dear money. The remedy for dear money is the same as the remedy for any other scarcity—abundance. If the demand outruns the supply either the demand must be reduced or the supply must be increased. If people would work and save there would be such an ample supply of capital that buoyancy might be maintained. But there are signs that work is to be saved by an edict against long hours, and of economy there are as yet few signs. We have passed through an era in which old statistics did not count, and we are acting as though old-fashioned ideas had lost their virtue. There is room for difference of opinion, but it would be better that each should make his own mistakes.

THE MORGAN COLLECTIONS.

While Mr. J. P. MORGAN, in his letter to the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, does not commit himself as to the ultimate disposition of his father's splendid art collection, we may be encouraged to hope that it will become a permanent possession of New York if, in time, it can be suitably housed. This should be possible with the additions that must be made to the group of Museum buildings in accordance with the new plans. By act of Legislature the collection is free from taxation, and the proposed south wing of the Museum will, we understand, have ample room for all of it. Preparations are now under way for the building of this wing. Meanwhile the new north wing is nearly completed, and by the arrangement between Mr. MORGAN and the Trustees the entire collection of 4,100 objects will be displayed there early next year.

This priceless collection should never leave New York, and it is most gratifying to be assured that it is to be kept together, for the present at least, with reasonable assurance that it will never be broken up. In all its departments, enamels, bronzes and jewelry, metal work, clocks and watches, porcelains, glassware, tapestries, furniture, ivories, sculptures, and miniatures and paintings, it is unsurpassed. Its money value at present can scarcely be estimated; its educational value is even greater, and that it may be retained permanently in New York, in accordance with the obvious desire of the great collector, is the earnest wish of every citizen who comprehends the influence of art on life and character.

THE NEW LEADERSHIP.

Mr. HENRY L. STIMSON brought to the War Office under President TAFT the experience and business knowledge of a successful member of the New York bar. From that point of vantage he observed shrewdly the conduct of public affairs under a system that has not been substantially changed in more than a hundred years. He found the system wretched and impossible, handicapping efficiency and promoting selfishness and even corruption.

This is not the fault of the average Cabinet Minister, or of the average subordinates whom he is forced to trust. It is due to the fact that we have outgrown the machinery our forefathers invented or accepted, and have neglected to adapt it to the changed conditions. The methods that served fairly well for the line of States stretched along the Atlantic seaboard are not suitable for a Nation embracing the width of the continent, with outlying possessions on the other side of the globe. The chief defect in our National organization is the lack of concentrated responsibility. The work of Congress is all, substantially, done through committees, and the committees are not co-ordinated. One group of legislators decides how much shall be spent and for what. Another decides how much money shall be raised and in what way. Neither has any competent or responsible guidance. In general legislation there is even greater scatteration. Meanwhile the several departments get along as best they can, each dealing by itself with Congress with little or no mutual consideration and no general leadership, except what can be given by an overworked President without adequate control.

Mr. STIMSON proposes some radical reforms. In fiscal matters he would give the President the right to propose to Congress a budget of expenses, with projects of needed new legislation as to revenue, with the right for Cabinet officers to explain on the floor of either house the parts relating to their several departments. No additions to the budget should be made without the President's concurrence, or he should have the right to veto separate items of appropriation bills. The main argument for such a change is that there would be a marked concentration of responsibility. But the plan is so wide a departure from ancient practice and so striking an innovation that it is not likely to find favor with the Congress. The two practicable changes are probably the preparation of an annual budget and the provision as to vetoing separate items of appropriation bills. This is open to some Constitutional objection, but it is sound in principle. If Mr. WILSON, who, Mr. STIMSON thinks, is doing good service in seeking to establish closer co-operation with Congress, wishes to strengthen the leadership of the Executive, he has an excellent chance in the use of the veto to slay the pernicious rider on the Sundry Civil bill now pending.

SOCIETIES AT BARNARD.

"I have seen dozens of hallowed "college traditions formed and shat-"tered," ex-President DWIGHT of Yale used to tell the freshmen; "for "with you four years are as a thou-"sand years." The Faculty Committee of Student Organizations at Barnard has prohibited for three years to come the election of new members to the young women's secret societies. By the end of the third year the new generation at Barnard will begin to think that secret societies were never permitted to flourish there.

Doubtless that is the intent of the committee. The "assumption of secrecy" in college affiliations erects artificial barriers, creates narrow cliques, and forbids that free intermingling of kindred spirits along lines of natural selection that can be made the most precious of college attributes. Barnard deserves praise for her encouragement of new forms of social organization that will embody broader and more liberal qualities.

PATERSON AND THE I. W. W.

The indications are that the campaign of violence, assault, threat and abuse by the I. W. W. in Paterson has failed. A large number, if not all, of the English-speaking workers in the silk mills are returning to their labors. They feel that they have been misled by the agitators and that their strike has been hopeless for two months. Nevertheless, the anarchistic organization continues in its incendiary course, and doubtless the strong police protection promised for the returning workers by Chief BIMSON will be needed. It is possible that the reign of terror will continue in a way for some time to come. As long as they can attract crowds of listeners the advocates of riot and lawlessness will hold their meetings.

Meanwhile Paterson's injury from the influence of the I. W. W. promises to be permanent. Many of the mills are to be removed from that city. Warned by the danger of concentrating large numbers of workers of so many nationalities in one neighborhood, the manufacturers will scatter their plants. This will be an expensive proceeding, and may develop new difficulties to contend with, as factory workers like to cluster together in large towns. But it will have its compensating advantages to the employers, while it will inevitably cause a loss of trade to Paterson.

MR. GOMPERS'S APPEAL.

Mr. GOMPERS has appealed his sentence for contempt of court to the Federal Supreme Court, which already has decided that he was guilty, but was convicted irregularly. It is well to remember that Mr. GOMPERS is not under sentence for boycotting, but for contempt. He rejected an opportunity to go scot free upon purging himself of contempt, but he preferred to persist in his contempt, and he repeats his contempt in the appeal which is made in his behalf. He still maintains that he has better views than the courts regarding freedom of speech, and that it is an infringement of liberty for him to be sentenced for contempt years after the offense. He has the assurance to ask consideration on account of the delay which he caused, and in the act of asking derogates from the dignity of the Judges which his sentence was designed to protect.

The offense of Mr. GOMPERS is not personal, but official, and the organization of which he is President is a greater offender than himself. It is more important that the campaign of the Federation of Labor against law and Judges should be checked than that Mr. GOMPERS should be punished. To condone the offense of Mr. GOMPERS would be to invigorate the campaign for such measures as the vicious class rider to the Sundry Civil bill and the Clayton bill to prevent the issue of such injunctions as Mr. GOMPERS violated. Considerable as are the personal aspects of Mr. GOMPERS's offense, they are submerged in the progress which is being made in unionizing our Legislatures and Executives. If that is not stopped it will be easy to unionize the judiciary, and then government by trades unions will be measurably achieved.

MEMORIAL DAY.

This year the occurrence of Memorial Day on Friday will insure to many persons three days of rest and recreation. There is, at last, a promise of good weather, and many thousands will spend their holidays out of town. The programme of sports and pastimes is unusually rich and varied, too, and, the rain having ceased, even before the end of Quaker meeting week, historically associated with the open umbrella, there is likely to be little disappointment.

Memorial Day, however, was instituted for neither sport nor rural recreation. Its true significance, one likes to think, is realized by increasing numbers this year. The elaborate ceremonies in memory of National heroes will assuredly keep many away from the playing fields and the country resorts. In the morning the Grand Army veterans will have their customary parade; in the afternoon the dedication of the Maine Monument will be preceded by a more splendid, if not more significant, military pageant. In many homes the spirit of the day, set apart to honor the dead who served their country well, inevitably associates itself with the remembrance of private bereavements. Not all of the graves upon which flowers will be reverently placed to-day will be those of soldiers and sailors. But Memorial Day is of a truly National character, in some respects the noblest of all our days of ceremony, and the variety of its observance does not indicate any lack of appreciation of its solemn meaning, or of comprehension of the reverence and gratitude which belong to it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Arguments Wholly Irrelevant.

By expatiating with sufficient solemnity and fervor upon the rather generally admitted glory and sacredness of motherhood, one can lay a fine foundation for savage attacks upon the members of our Board of Education because of the action they have taken in the cases of Mrs. EDGELL and Mrs. PRIXOTTO. One can do so, that is, if content to ignore the utter irrelevancy of maternal excellencies to the questions at issue, and especially if quite sure that one's argument will come only to the attention of unreasoning sentimentalists. Otherwise the expedient is decidedly dangerous, since it exposes him who adopts it to assorted suspicions—among others, those of being a conscienceless demagogue at worst and a poor logician at best.

Nobody with common sense thinks the members of the board less respectful to and appreciative of mothers and motherhood than the rest of us are, while, on the other hand, anybody endowed with that valuable quality—and the inclination to use it—can see, if not instantly, at least after even brief reflection, that what they contend is not that the bearing and nurture of babies are abstractly reprehensible, or even unimportant, but that the woman who undertakes these tasks, duties, or privileges thereby renders herself less competent than other women for undertaking certain other tasks, duties, and privileges, of which teaching school is only one of many that might be mentioned. The Roman Catholic Church and some others, for instance, insist on celibacy in the priesthood, but they do not thereby impugn the dignity of fathers.

Of first, and almost last, consideration in schools are the immediate interests of the pupil, not of the teacher. The only subject of legitimate controversy is the relative teaching efficiency of the mother and the non-mother. There is an element of plausibility in the assertion that in some ways the mother, because of her experiences, is the better guide and instructor of other women's children, but her superiority is vague and undemonstrable, while the distractions of her attention and her energy from her school work are obvious and serious. The weight of evidence is certainly against the mothers—as teachers, it should not be necessary to add, but apparently is, to guard against reckless or silly condemnation for treating motherhood with less than its due regard.

Poisonings Strangely Numerous.

People who talk much and know little about "suggestion" and its compelling power are fond of seeing in the published accounts of crimes the cause why they come or seem to come in groups, the deeds of one criminal being imitated by several others. The most that should be admitted, of course, is that the method of commission, not the deed, may be thus inspired. What will much puzzle the deluded believers in a non-existent form of suggestion is the frequency with which stories of poisoning by mercurial tablets have appeared in the papers since the case of the Georgia banker, WALKER, attracted so much attention because of the victim's cheerful courage in the face of death.

Here there can be no possibility of suggestional influence, since only one of warning can be imagined, and doubtless the publicity which that lamentable fatality received led hundreds or thousands of people to exercise greater care in the keeping of this most effective—and most dangerous—of disinfectants. Yet in the last fortnight more persons have apparently lost or endangered their lives by taking the deadly poison in mistake for medicine than in years before.

The explanation of the mystery probably lies in the added interest which every such case gained from the circumstances of the first widely exploited death—an increment which changed what had been accidents of merely local moment into "general" news. Probably poisonings like that of Mr. WALKER were not less, but more, numerous before he died than since, as his fate must have inspired some caution.

It should have produced more effects than it has, and one of them should have been prompt efforts to make such accidents practically impossible. Bichloride of mercury is too useful to be abandoned, but there is no reason why the misuse of it and similar poisons by mistake should not be stopped. There are several cheap and easy ways in which this could be done. One would be to sell and keep these substances in bottles of a peculiar form and "feel," reserved exclusively for them. The same end might be gained in the case of tablets by making them all of a special shape and size—like dice, for instance, or with points or rugosities. It would have to be something distinguishable in the dark, and, therefore, color would not do.

Expensive, But Worth It.

Col. ROOSEVELT is quoted as humorously characterizing it as "tough" that in a single year fate should have brought upon him an assassin's bullet, a wedding, and a libel suit, all expensive.

What the defense of his reputation for sobriety is going to cost him he did not prophesy definitely, but he revealed that the doctors and the nurses got $3,000 of his money, and that the wedding involved about the same outlay.

As the Colonel is not in the millionaire class, his moan is comprehensible, but after all, in the two instances already figured up, he escaped rather lightly for a man of his distinction, and surely few besides himself could assemble in a place as remote from almost everywhere as is Marquette such a remarkable group of witnesses as his, and do it as cheaply. THE TIMES, which he has sometimes suspected of antagonism, is in a way contributing rather heavily to his defense, since its far wandering representative has joined heartily in the chorus of exculpation, and most if not all of the other testimony in his behalf must be gratuitous as well as fervent.

Fortune has not always smiled on the Colonel, for to him have come the pangs of defeat as well as the thrills of victory, but he is one of her favored children, nevertheless. He usually has his money's worth, and always lots of fun.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS

Would Aid Social Workers as Well as the Courts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES's recent editorial on criminal statistics notes the use of a possible bureau of information to expedite the labors of Magistrates and courts. I would emphasize your suggestion on behalf of the social workers of the city who recognize the menace of criminal characters in their neighborhoods and the persistence of their activities despite the police.

Such characters are, of course, frequently arrested, but when after a second or third conviction they are asked anew if they were ever arrested before, there is no convenient card index wherewith to confirm or refute their reply. The lack of any general or systematic tabulation of available facts relative to those who are, or have been, public charges, leaves our attendant and probation officers and social and charity workers, not to speak at all of our City Magistrates, in needless darkness respecting those with whom they chiefly have to do.

There is no central bureau of social or human statistics where the proper persons may learn what it is, from every standpoint, important that they should know respecting those who desire or require care, relief, direction, or discipline. Yet that such a bureau of data as to the moral, mental, social, and physical ways and traits of one portion of our citizenship would be serviceable alike to those represented by the records, as well as those concerned for their good, seems certain.

I believe such a central bureau of human data and available information to which the mass of social statistics collected by our asylums, courts, hospitals, settlements, reformatories, and dispensaries should contribute, would prove not only of great official advantage, but of individual moral service as well, and that its creation may be advocated on clearly human grounds no less than for reasons of civic welfare and public economy.

CONDEMNS SING SING PRISON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I visited Sing Sing last Friday. No beasts in captivity are kept in such vile cells as are now occupied by 1,400 miserable men. Look through the gratings at the men inside. The cells are three and one-half feet wide and the doors are solid iron except for forty-two peekholes in the upper part about two inches square, through which a glimpse may be had of the gray outer wall of the cell block. One hundred hours a week the men spend in these malodorous and stifling caves, and in 200 cells there are two men to the cell. A short time at Sing Sing brings the prison pallor to their faces and makes them crushed and broken men. Most of them are there for stealing. But these men only stole money or property, while the State of New York is stealing their health, their manhood, and in some cases their lives. Crime for crime, will any one say that the State is not the greater criminal? Because the responsibility is scattered among the many millions who are the State does nobody care? If you, reader, were to go to Sing Sing and see for yourself you would care.

If we do care, what can we do? Write to the Governor, write to your representatives in the Legislature, write to the newspapers, and urge an appropriation to enlarge Great Meadow Prison at Comstock or to build a similar one (also without walls) on the State prison site at Wingdale. Leave behind us as barbarous and mediaeval the Sing Sing conditions. Adopt the new penology, the honor system, which has so abundantly made good out West; treat the men as human beings who will some day re-enter society and who should be, and can be, taught and trained to become good citizens. Then when the men are moved out, put a blast of dynamite under the old cell block at Sing Sing and blow it to oblivion, where it belongs.

WORLD PEACE AND SUFFRAGE.

Women Urged to Seek Vote as a Weapon Against War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am very much of an "anti" myself, and the "Votes for Women" never appealed to me. But I should be glad to compromise with myself if I could know that the main object of the woman suffrage movement is to bring about international peace and goodwill among nations. It strikes me that the whole suffrage movement would gain in favor and popularity among thinking men if it possessed the criterion of peace rather than militancy. If the suffragettes would say that they want to vote in order to stop warfare, to influence manhood in general to stop killing each other, they would get all the sympathy they want for their cause.

I venture to say that the suffragettes could do more to bring about international disarmament than all the men combined. Suppose we grant the "Votes for Women." Suppose women vote and send their representatives to Congress. Is it not natural that they will employ every effort to preach international peace? It is their womanly instinct to do so. We argue, among others, against the suffrage because we say if women get the vote they should also be able to defend the country in case of war. It is evident that we cannot send women to war. It is against common sense, and it is physically impossible. We would not want to sacrifice their lives, the lives of those whom we want to raise good, healthy children. The suffragettes, no doubt, know these facts, and as a consequence they should argue in such a way that they do not want to go to war, for if they do get the vote war will be altogether eliminated through their great influence.

Let the peace advocates work together with the suffragettes and help each other's cause. I am positive that if these two movements join forces the two most vital questions of the twentieth century will be realized.

TAPS.

Taps! Lights out!
The silent camps are sleeping now,
The soldiers are at rest;
No battle cry
Sounds where they lie
Upon the still earth's breast.
No more for them are war's alarms,
No vigils need they keep,
For flowers are the sentinels
That guard them as they sleep.

SEEK TO LESSEN TAX ON ALL BUILDINGS

Business Men Would Make the Rate Half of That on Land.

FORM AN ORGANIZATION

Will Seek to Pledge Political Candidates to Favor the Plan—Speakers Explain the Project.

Business men held a meeting at the Reform Club, 9 South William Street, yesterday afternoon, at which an organization was formed to conduct a campaign from the business man's standpoint, whose object will be to halve the tax rate on buildings as compared with the tax on land. Previous efforts to obtain legislation to that effect failed at Albany. These efforts sought to lessen congestion and reduce rents. Amos R. E. Pinchot was Chairman of the meeting yesterday, and among the speakers were Frederick L. Cranford, Charles T. Root, Charles H. Ingersoll, John J. Hopper, and Benjamin C. Marsh.

In outlining the purposes of the meeting, Charles T. Root said that the proposed legislation would help all business except speculative land enterprises. More than 200 merchants and manufacturers in this city, representing many millions of invested capital and employing over 18,000 persons, he said, had agreed to help in the movement to obtain a gradual decrease of the tax rate on buildings until it is half the rate on land. He spoke of other cities where the system, he said, was in successful operation — Vancouver, Edmonston, Lethbridge, Calgary, Toronto, and in Houston, Texas. He said that within the last two weeks Gov. Tener of Pennsylvania had signed a bill giving Pittsburgh and Scranton, Penn., permission to try the experiment. Unless such a plan was put in operation here, Mr. Root said, business men would be at a disadvantage in competing with the business men of other places.

Charles H. Ingersoll, emphasizing this point, said:

"Business men, and particularly manufacturers, are learning the futility of merely effecting economies in methods of conducting their business to reduce the cost of living, since all the savings they can effect tend to be absorbed by land owners in higher prices for land and in higher rents. They are learning, and workers of all classes are also rapidly learning, that increase wages merely to pay higher rents is unsatisfactory alike to employers of labor, to the workers, and to the consuming public, which must pay higher prices on this account for both services and products. This is inevitably the result as long as business and industry are taxed at the same rate as land values.

"Manufacturers in New York City have to pay higher prices for their factories because buildings are taxed at the same rate as land, and then they pay two to four times as much taxes on their buildings as is paid on the similar vacant lot adjoining, while the value of which their industry is increasing for the land speculators' profit. Real estate owners are strenuously objecting to the rapid increase of the city debt.

"From Jan. 1, 1906, to March 31, 1913, the net bonded debt of the city increased (excluding liabilities contracted at that time, exclusive of transit) by $211,000,000. Had land been taxed during these years at $2.25 per $100 of full value, the revenue would have been over $221,000,000 above the actual yield from taxing land, or $10,000,000 more than the increase of the city debt. Of the tax rate of $1.82 this year 51 cents goes for payment of the city debt, and the manufacturers of the city, directly through taxes or indirectly in their rents, are paying an undue and unfair proportion of this as of all cost of city government, to enrich land owners."

A resolution introduced by Fred R. Seeman was adopted which urged that the business men of the city be organized in every borough. These business men were advised by the resolution to pledge all political candidates to favor the plan "to reduce the tax rate on buildings to half the tax rate on land, which tax it will be impossible for the land owners to shift to their tenants."

A Committee on Plan and Scope was appointed to nominate officers and devise the best means of bringing before the business men of the city the necessity of prompt action to obtain relief from the present "discriminatory taxes on business and industry," and to report back to the meeting within ten days.

WOULD OUST WALDO.

Curran Committee Expected to Make This Recommendation.

It was said on good authority yesterday that when the Curran Aldermanic Police Investigating Committee made its final report on Monday, it would include a recommendation for the immediate dismissal by Mayor Gaynor or Gov. Sulzer of Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo from office. It was said yesterday that 90 per cent. of the faults in the Police Department to be pointed out by the Curran Committee were of a sort which could be corrected by the Police Commisioner, and only 10 per cent., faults which would have to be corrected by legislation.

Nine Aldermen are members of the Curran Committee—six Fusion and three Tammany members. Alderman Henry H. Curran is leader of the majority group. Alderman Frank L. Dowling, leader of the minority in the Board of Aldermen, also leads the Tammany forces on the Curran Committee.

Alderman Curran refused yesterday either to affirm or deny the report of the trend of the committee's recommendations. Should the Fusion members of the committee recomend the dismissal of Waldo, the report would then go before the Board of Aldermen for adoption or rejection, probably on Tuesday. There are forty-two Fusion members of the board, as against a Tammany minority of thirty-seven. The report, therefore, would almost certainly be adopted.

Under ordinary procedure the report as passed would go to the Mayor. In this instance, however, it is believed such procedure would be futile because Mayor Gaynor has said repeatedly that he was satisfied with Waldo. That the Mayor would ignore the recommendation is expected. In such a case means would be taken, it is said, to call the Governor's attention to the matter. This could be done by a committee of citizens, if necessary. A Police Commissioner who is dismissed is not eligible for reappointment, and the Mayor must appoint a new Commissioner within ten days.

MORE DELAY FOR DOWS.

Fourth Adjournment for Man Accused of Assaulting a Reporter.

Through his counsel, David Dows of 121 East Seventieth Street obtained yesterday morning another adjournment of his trial on the charge of assault made against him by Alva Johnston, a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES. When the case was called in Special Sessions, Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith expressed his readiness and desire to proceed with the trial forthwith.

In behalf of Mr. Dows, however, it was pleaded that Judge Swann still had under advisement the motion to transfer the case to the jurisdiction of General Sessions, and Justice O'Keefe said he would prefer not to take up a case which a General Sessions Judge had sub judice.

Yesterday's was the fourth delay obtained by Mr. Dows's lawyers. When the summons was first issued by Magistrate Murphy, the hearing was postponed several days at the request of the defense. When it appeared on the calendar in Special Sessions, it was adjourned at the request of the defense. Then the motion to transfer was made and the brief filed. On the eve of the day set for argument, an adjournment was granted at the request of the defense, so that it was not until Tuesday that James E. Ely presented his oral argument. Yesterday the Justices of Special Sessions were assured that Judge Swann would hand down his decision by Monday, and at the request of the defense the trial went over to June 6.

ASTOR HOUSE CLOSES.

Patrons Got 5,000 Names to Petition to Vincent Astor to Keep It Going.

An eleventh hour effort was made yesterday afternoon to save the old Astor House, at Broadway and Vesey Street, from the wrecking crews, when a petition was circulated asking Vincent Astor, the owner of the south half of the building, to preserve the property in its present form. Despite the petition, however, the old hostelry, bar and restaurant were closed at midnight last night, and it was said that it was for the last time. Every patron was turned out.

Copies of the petition to Mr. Astor were lying on tables at the Broadway entrance to the Astor House, and a dozen or more men, who asserted that they had no interest in the hoiel whatever other than a common desire to see the old landmark preserved, stood around with pencils in their hands. They approached every visitor, and at night it was said that nearly 5,000 signatures had been obtained. This is the petition:

> The citizens of New York City, recognizing not only the historic value of the Astor House, but the love for it transmitted by their forefathers, ask you as a public-spirited citizen and a believer in the preservation of those things that bespeak pride of posterity, to render your aid in the preservation of this notable building in our city.
>
> The Astor House is the centre of the city's activity; it is where men of affairs meet, and its elimination means the obliteration of present and past associations.
>
> We therefore ask you to submit some proposition to the present management which will serve to maintain the Astor House as it is to-day and as our forebears knew it and the present generation respect it.
>
> "Lest we forget," here are some of the men who made the country's history and patronized the old Astor House:
>
> Gen. Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, Gen. W. H. Harrison, John Tyler, Gen. Zachary Taylor, James A. Polk, Abraham Lincoln, Andrew Jackson, Ulysses S. Grant, Franklin Pierce, Millard Fillmore, Rutherford B. Hayes, Chester A. Arthur, James H. Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, James Buchanan, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Daniel Webster, William H. Seward, James G. Blaine, Charles Dickens, King Edward VII., Gen. Tecumseh Sherman, Jefferson Davis, Gen. W. S. Hancock, Admiral Farragut, Gen. Robert R. Lee, Henry Clay, Gen. J. E. Johnston, Lewis Cass, Horace Greeley, Whitelaw Reid, Charles A. Dana, Murat Halstead, Col. Henry Watterson, Thomas Lipton, Admiral Dewey, Lord Dunraven, Admiral Sampson, James R. Lowell,

Vincent Astor, as he announced some time ago, is quite willing to sell his half of the hotel to the city. It is under his half of the building that the subway excavation will be done, and the building as a whole would have to undergo extensive underpinning and forcement to withstand the undermining. The other half of the building is owned by William Waldorf Astor. To obtain the easement rights and construct a new foundation for the whole hotel would cost about $1,000,000, it has been estimated.

Vincent Astor's fee interest in his part of the property, it is estimated, will be about $2,500,000. The plot is valued at the rate of about $158 a square foot, which is not excessive for the neighborhood. The petition will not be sent to Mr. Astor until to-day. He would have at least a month or two to consider reestablishing the hotel, because it is not likely that subway construction will be begun there in the meantime.

The last man to register at the hotel was J. W. Conoughy of this city. He signed his name at 3 A. M. yesterday, and did so, it was admitted, without any show of either reverence or regret. It appeared that he was just anxious for a good place to sleep and that he wanted his bed in a hurry. The last man to move his trunks out of the building was J. Jacobson, dealer in church goods, who said that he had occupied Room 501 for the last ten years.

UNIFYING HOME MISSIONS.

Interdenominational Committee Organized and Plans Laid.

A general organization of women to unify the local work for home missions, particularly among the immigrants at Ellis Island, in the various immigrant homes and among the foreign population in Manhattan, was started yesterday at a meeting of representatives of seven denominations at 25 East Twenty-second Street. All of the Protestant Evangelical denominations of Manhattan have been invited to join. Each of the 150 churches in Manhattan will have representation in the organization, which, for the present, will be known as the Women's Local Interdenominational Committee, its official title being left to the wishes of the members when the organization is completed.

The denominations now represented are: Presbyterian, Mrs. R. C. Tillinghast, Mrs. Seymour M. Ballard, and Mrs. L. Duncan Bulkley; Christian, Mrs. E. T. Rummell, Mrs. D. J. Schneider, and Mrs. F. C. McMillan; Methodist Home Mission Board, Mrs. W. B. Baird, Mrs. Fraim, and Mrs. C. H. Morgan; Lutheran Home Mission Board, Miss Florence Fellows, Mrs. Schnepil, and Mrs. Swartz; Congregational Home Mission Board, Mrs. Edward H. Scott, and Mrs. J. R. Nilson; Dutch Reformed Church, Mrs. J. S. Allen. Mrs. Frederick S. Bennett represents the Council of Women for Home Missions. The organization when completed will be representative of 150,000 women engaged in the local mission work.

It is proposed to enlarge and carry on the work in a general way, which heretofore has been done by individual mission boards or separate denominations, and to develop other work which no other body is at present doing. There is no central organization of its kind here, as in many other cities, to co-operate with the international bodies engaged in similar efforts, and the new organization is intended to supply this need. Features of the practical work will include teaching English to the immigrants, and giving special study courses.

The next meeting to further perfect the organization will be held in the Broadway Tabernacle, June 9, at 10:30 A. M.

NEW FLOWER HOSPITAL.

Cornerstone Laid for Enlarged Institution in Eastern Boulevard.

The cornerstone of the new building for Flower Hospital was laid yesterday, at Eastern Boulevard and Sixty-third Street. It was anounced that the hospital would continue its ambulance service, which is the largest maintained by any private institution in the city. Increased facilities would be provided for this purpose, although the work was conducted at a loss, it was said.

Speakers yesterday called attention to the fact that private hospitals were doing the city's work, and ex-Controller Metz expressed the hope that the next budget would see an increase in the money assigned for this work. Prior to the laying of the cornerstone, an audience of 300 assembled in the amphitheatre of the college building. Melbert B. Cary, President of the Board of Trustees, presided. Lantern slides of the new building, which will be exclusively for pay patients, were shown. It will be a six-story brick structure, modern in every respect, and will form the north wing of a three-sided quadrangle when the projected building plans are completed.

The Rev. Dennis J. McMahon, Supervisor of Catholic Charities of New York, said there were fifty-two hospitals in this city which were receiving only half pay from the city for full work. The private hospitals, he said, were creating the ideals for the public institutions.

Memorial Address on J. P. Morgan.

A memorial address on the life and character of the late J. P. Morgan will be delivered at a special service to be held in the Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, 158th Street and Broadway, on Sunday evening next, by George F. Parker, the friend and biographer of the late President Cleveland.

SAYS FREIGHT YARD WILL RUIN HOMES

Allan Robinson Protests to Mitchel Against North River Plan.

WOULD ALSO SPOIL PARK

Head of Allied Real Estate Interests Says Investments of $10,000,000 Would Be Affected.

Allan Robinson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests, has written to President Mitchel as Chairman of the Board of Estimate's Terminal Committee, protesting against the proposed establishment on the banks of the North River, below Riverside Drive, from 137th to 153d Street, of an uncovered freight yard. He condemns it on the ground that the park only recently established in that neighborhood, and the value of the apartment houses built on account of the park, would be destroyed.

"Less than five years ago," he wrote, "Riverside Drive was extended from 135th Street to 158th Street, and put under the jurisdiction of the Park Department. The cost of this improvement exceeded $3,000,000, half of which was paid by owners of property fronting the Drive, who were assessed on the average of $20,000 for each block front. Owners of property in this section of the city, relying upon the permanence of the Park Drive thus established, and for the building of which they had contributed largely, improved their property with handsome elevator apartments, many of them twelve stories high, fireproof and of the finest type of construction.

"My information is that the investment along this section of the Drive, made consequent to the establishment of the park, amounted to $10,000,000. These owners are now threatened with a plan which, if carried out, will ruin their property. Your special committee proposes to establish along the water front and directly below this section of the city, a large freight yard and dock system. The tracks that are now there will be multiplied into thirty-seven or more. The six tracks near the Drive will be elevated and the entire yard and its approaches are to remain uncovered—a noisy, unpleasant, and permanent nuisance to the neighborhood, and the city park which was established at this point at great cost will be sacrificed."

Mr. Robinson goes on to urge that the freight yard "would ruin the value of the district for residential purposes, as tenants, paying the comparatively high rents necessary to produce an adequate return from the better class of elevator apartments, would refuse to occupy premises that fronted on a noisy railroad yard." Moreover, he expresses the opinion that to place the yard at this point would be contrary to the best ideas of city planning.

"To plant," he says, "a commercial development in the midst of a residential section instead of putting it where it would feed and develop a new section or would increase the value of a district already devoted to commercial purposes, is illogical. This is not the case of a commercial development gradually and in the natural course of events encroaching upon an old residential section where the increasing land values more than balance the decline and loss of value in the old buildings.

"This is a project to thrust suddenly and deliberately upon a newly developed section a commercial neighbor which will inevitably diminish the value of the land and tend to destroy the value of the buildings just erected for residential purposes. The city, by its own act, in other words, purposes to sacrifice its own investment in the park and do incalculable damage to private investments in the neighborhood."

On the other hand, Mr. Robinson contends that if the yard were placed in or near a commercial section it would be of real value to the city.

SORORITIES LOSING FAVOR.

Several Girls' Colleges Abolish Them —Others Change Form.

Barnard College's action in forbidding for three years the recruiting of sororities, made public yesterday, aroused much interest in the attitude of other colleges for women toward secret societies. Inquiry showed that the question of blotting out or restricting such organizations had been considered by other institutions, and that in several colleges the sorority system had failed to win popularity.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., May 29.—The agitation at Mount Holyoke regarding the abolition of secret societies was originated in the societies themselves. A committee of society members and class officers considered the possibility of reorganizing the sororities on democratic lines and voted that such reorganization was impossible.

The question was considered further by representatives of the societies, active and alumnae, and by the President of the college and the Faculty, who recommended that with the class of 1911 societies become non-perp

FRIEDMANN CURE PLACED UNDER BAN

Health Board Prohibits Use of Turtle Vaccine and New Institute Is Closed.

TESTS SHOW IT HARMFUL

New Section Added to City's Health Code to Protect the Sick from All Similar Preparations.

The long-expected, carefully aimed blow at Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann's turtle vaccine was struck yesterday by the Board of Health of this city. Within an hour after the board adjourned the Friedmann Institute had closed its doors to those who, sick of tuberculosis, were being drawn there by the promises so glowingly held forth by the young Berlin physician and his entourage.

Those doors will not be opened again until the entire secret of the Friedmann "cure" has been surrendered to the health authorities, and until the institute has received written permission from those authorities to proceed with the profitable treatments. Such written permission certainly will not be granted until such time as the Health Board is satisfied beyond all doubt of the harmlessness of the vaccine, and it is highly probable that it will not be granted until positive proof of the therapeutic value of the remedy has been offered.

The disappointment and resentment felt by the Friedmann forces was expressed only behind closed doors. For publication they applauded the Health Board's caution and solicitude for the public health and represented themselves as delighted at the prospect of finally being able to win official indorsement of their precious but unpatented remedy without risking a forfeiture of property rights.

The most open expression of resentment came from Dr. George G. Rambaud, the newly appointed Director of the now closed institute.

"Do you know what they have done?" he exclaimed when the news first reached him. "They have tried, condemned, and executed this remedy without giving it a chance to be heard."

When the news of the Health Board's action was only a few hours old it became known that the New York County Medical Society was getting ready to act. The Board of Censors of that association, which constitutes its equivalent for a Grand Jury, will take under consideration the ethics of the Friedmann Institute at a special meeting called for next Monday night. It is supposed that the action of this board, if it does act, will be confined to its relations to its three members who have associated themselves with the institute.

The blow struck by the Health Board was aimed squarely at the Friedmann vaccine, but was so struck that the name Friedmann does not once enter into the published record of the board meeting. The prohibition is general, not specific, but it needed a new section of the Sanitary Code, a new law written on the health book of the city. This section, unanimously passed yesterday, deals with "the use of living bacterial organisms in the inoculation of human beings for the prevention or treatment of disease."

That means the Friedmann vaccine, the famous turtle "cure" brought to this country by the young German physician. It also means the vaccine which Dr. Friedmann's whilom associate, Dr. M. A. Sturm, would have used if he had not been, at least temporarily, halted by injunction proceedings instituted by the Friedmann forces. It means, too, the emulsion containing the live bacillus in suspension which was recently brought here by Dr. W. J. Beattie of Brattleboro, N. H., and the Murray Hill Hotel.

The prohibitory resolution was unanimously passed, and the body of the resolution was also made a section of a law early in the afternoon when it was filed with the City Clerk. Infringement of it as misdemeanor and subjects the offender to a year in prison and $500 fine. Here is the new section of the code:

> Section 148a. The use of living bacterial organisms in the inoculation of human beings for the prevention or treatment of disease is hereby prohibited until after full and complete data regarding the method of use, including a specimen of the culture and other agents employed therewith, and a full account of the details of preparation, dosage and administration shall have been submitted to the Board of Health of the City of New York, and until permission shall have been granted in writing by the said board for the use of the same.

The preamble of the resolution which embodied this new law tells the story in these words:

> In the judgment of the Board of Health, the use of living cultures of bacteria in the inoculation of human beings for the prevention or the treatment of disease may be fraught with serious danger to the individuals and to the public health.
>
> The necessity and the harmlessness of such a procedure can be safely determined only by carefully planned and controlled and unbiased scientific measures and observations.
>
> Certain tests of the efficiency and safety of an alleged cure for tuberculosis now being made in this city are being rendered unsatisfactory, unscientific, and practically futile through the insistence of the originator of the alleged remedy on conditions which involve inadequate observation, inaccurate methods of administration, and the insistence on secrecy regarding the substance employed in some phases of the treatment.
> Evidence is already at hand to show that the so-called remedy not only does not fulfil the promises of efficiency and safety under which its use was at first permitted in this city, but, on the contrary, during its administration many patients have suffered serious and unduly rapid progress of their disease.

The news of the new section of the sanitary code had no sooner been flashed to the office of Arthur Garfield Hays, attorney for the institute, than he telephoned the verdict to the outposts of the Friedmann camp, bowing the while to the inevitable. Both he and Moritz Eisner seemed willing to answer all questions. Mr. Eisner is head of the Standard Distributing Company, which owns the institute and the vaccine, from which Dr. Friedmann has already obtained $50,000 in cash, come what come may.

The two men explained that hitherto they had feared to offer without official and legal demand the full story of the vaccine. Such letting down of the bars of secresy might, they said, have constituted publication in the legal sense and would therefore have destroyed their property rights in a remedy that had never been patented. Surrendering the secret confidentially and under legal compulsion would not be publication and was therefore welcome. Mr. Eisner used the word "welcome," but he did not look happy.

MISS HELEN LUCHARS WEDS.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 29.—Miss Helen Yarnall Luchars, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Luchars, of 315 Upper Mountain Avenue, and Kenneth Dow Ketchum, were married in St. James's Episcopal Church this evening, by the Rev. James B. Halsey of Roxborough, Penn., uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Arthur Ketchum, brother of the bridegroom. The Rev. Nassau S. Stephens, rector of St. James's pronounced the benediction.

Mrs. Leigh Roy Urban of Astoria, N. Y., sister of the bride, and Mrs. Donald Campbell of Montclair were matrons of honor. Mr. James Granger Ketchum, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. The bridesmaids were Miss Edith Cunningham, Miss Glenna Cunningham, Miss Emilie Greenough and Miss Ethel D. Phillips of Montclair; Miss Elizabeth Halsey and Miss Millicent Halsey of Philadelphia, cousins of the bride. The ushers included Dr. Daniel Roe Ayers of New York, Robert B. Luchars of Montclair, Lynde Denig of New York, William N. Granger of Bronxville, N. Y., Maurice Niven, and Willard C. Wetmore of Montclair.

MISS WILLIAMS'S WEDDING.

She Will Marry Morris Douw Ferris at Far Rockaway on June 14.

Invitations have been sent out for the wedding of Miss Dorcas Williams, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Williams of New York and Lawrence, and Morris Douw Ferris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Patterson Ferris of New York, on Saturday, June 14. The ceremony will take place in St. John's Church, Far Rockaway, at 12 o'clock, and a small reception will be held at the country house of the bride's parents. A special train will take the guests from and back to New York.

Miss Williams will have her sister, Miss Edith Williams, as her maid of honor, and the bridesmaids are to be the Misses Edith Read, Alice Lane, Maria Duryea, Marjorie Clinton, and Marie Work of Lawrence and Prudence Whitney of Rye. Mr. Ferris has not yet decided upon his ushers.

MISS CONSTANT MARRIES.

Many Friends Attend Her Wedding with William H. Gref at Yonkers.

Miss May P. Constant of 18 Hillside Drive, Park Hill, Yonkers, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Victor S. Constant, and William H. Gref, an electrical engineer of this city, were married yesterday in Yonkers by the Rev. Leighton Williams.

The bride was attended by Constance Wilson of Orange, N. J.; Miss Dorothy James of this city, and Miss Elizabeth Hodgins of Glen Ridge, N. J. The flower girls were Miss Dorothy Bechle of Syracuse, N. Y., and Miss Alice Francis of Orange, N. J. The best man was Victor Constant, brother of the bride. The ushers were Leon Greneret and Victor Kitchen, both of East Orange, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Gref will leave to-day for a three months' cruise in the yacht Sea Urchin, and will make their home in Park Hill on their return.

SAVAGE—TERRY.

The marriage of the Rev. Theodore F. Savage, pastor of the Christ Memorial Church and son of the Rev. Charles A. Savage of Orange, N. Y., and Miss May H. Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Terry, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Brick Church at Thirty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue. The church was simply decorated in white Spring flowers and greenery.

She wore a white satin gown trimmed with point lace and tulle. The Rev. Mr. Merrill officiated, and after the ceremony there was a small reception at the home of the bride's parents, 275 Madison Avenue.

None but relatives and a few intimate friends were invited to the wedding owing to mourning for the bride's grandfather, the late Mr. Terry.

Miss Anne Morris Is Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Morris of Elizabeth, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Carlton Morris, to Evelyn S. Davis, also of Elizabeth. Mr. Davis is the assistant manager of the Yale University Football Association.

OBJECT TO PUBLICITY OF COURT SECRETS

SEE SLAP AT WHITMAN

Graft News Thought by Lawyers to be Partly Responsible for Appellate Division Admonition.

In a decision, handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division, the opinion of which was written by Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss, occasion was taken to define certain points of ethics in the legal profession and to criticise the publication in newspapers, of decisions of courts, opinions of referees, and proceedings before Grand Juries before they are made public officially. The decision affirmed an order of the lower court directing William W. Lapoint, a lawyer, to pay to the City Chamberlain $5,235 pending the decision of a referee appointed to take testimony on the suit brought by Olive S. Day to compel the lawyer to return to her what she considered an excess charge for his legal services.

In commenting on that part of the decision which was couched in general terms, lawyers were of a general opinion yesterday that so far as the criticism of the publication of Grand Jury proceedings was concerned the rebuke was directed against the administration of the District Attorney's office, especially in regard to the recent graft indictments. It was also, they said, a slap at the newspapers which forecast recently the action of the Appellate Division itself upon the Hyde appeal. Justice Hotchkiss in his opinion said:

> "The cry 'O Tempora, O Mores' is an old one, but for reasons readily appreciated by the most casual of current history, the present time is peculiarly one when it behooves us, as lawyers as well as Judges, not only to maintain the highest professional standards in dealings between attorneys and their clients, but to keep constantly in mind and adhere strictly to the traditional code of ethics which instructs, and should govern generally, those who exercise the professional office.
> "It is to be feared that many members of the bar have failed in this. If this be true, it should not be surprising to find that the public at large is affected by the example of the bar, and that the respect for the courts, the Judges, and the time-honored machinery employed in the administration of justice, and even for the law itself, is seriously impaired.
>
> "A single illustration will suffice. It is a truism of civil polity that courts should never in any manner be coerced in their judgments and that they should be moved only by arguments duly presented according to the fixed rules of procedure, established to protect them from irregular methods of approach; that their deliberations should be secret and recognized as invulnerable; that proceedings before the Grand Juries should likewise be respected as sacredly confidential. In many jurisdictions, if not in ours, the observance of these rules has from time immemorial been deemed of such moment in the enforcement of justice that their violation is summarily punished as for contempt of court.
> "Yet to-day, in this community and elsewhere, what judgments are to be rendered in pending cases, the decisions in which have in all probability not yet been agreed upon by the Judges themselves; what witnesses appeared to-day before the Grand Jury in some matter of popular interest, and the testimony they gave; what witnesses will be produced before the same body to-morrow and the testimony they are to give, all this and much more of similar import is commonly deemed 'news,' and as such as much the subject for newspaper report as the debates in Congress or the latest fashionable wedding.
>
> "The calloused indifference with which this state of affairs, so deeply significant, and affecting so vitally a phase of our political well-being, is regarded, not alone by the public, but by the members of the bar itself, shows how far we are out of touch with the former standards. Were the bar as a body alive to the importance of studying as deeply and knowing as thoroughly the ethics of their profession as they know and study their law, such a state of affairs would not exist, because their knowledge of and attitude toward such matters would prove an educational force extending to the public at large, the virtue and good sense of which would soon recognize and correct many present-day evils of which the foregoing is but a sample."

ASK THEIR GUESTS TO SWIM.

Dr. and Mrs. Paterno Give a Party in Their Diving Pool.

Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Paterno gave a swimming party last evening at their home, 182d Street and Riverside Drive. There were tub races, diving and swimming contests, and tight rope walking over the ten-foot-deep pool, which takes up a part of the lower floor of the house. After the sport in the pool there was dancing. About fifty guests were present.

Prince Sapieha, Capt. W. R. Rush of the Hancock and Mrs. Rush, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rishel were among those who participated in the games in the pool, while the other guests looked on and applauded.

LOOK INTO STAGE "CRIME."

The Press Agent Hopes the Federal Authorities Will Get Excited Over It.

Agents of the Department of Justice visited the Criterion Theatre yesterday afternoon to investigate the apparatus used in the counterfeiter-detective play, "The Argyle Case," in which Robert Hilliard is appearing. A counterfeiting process is used in one of the scenes of the play and some one whose identity can only be surmised, informed the authorities that a real bona fide crime was committed on the stage, when reproductions of bank notes were made.

The agents took the apparatus and the stage manager to the Federal Building. After questioning the latter Assistant United States District Attorney Walker permitted him to go. Nobody but the press agent thinks anything will happen as the result of yesterday's examination, and he is said to be not more than vaguely hopeful.

BERNHARDT MAY COME BACK

As She Sails on the Lorraine She Talks of Return Visit.

Sarah Bernhardt sailed on the French liner Lorraine yesterday. To the crowds of French men and women who invaded her suite to say farewell 'Mme. Bernhardt said with a smile:

"This is the fifth time I have left America, and still I do not say it is the last, because I hope to come again and again, if I live, and if my star is still in the ascendant.

"Now I go to Paris, and shall stay two weeks, and then to my Summer home, Belle Isle-en-Mer, where I can look out of my big windows on the stormy Bay of Biscay, and beyond that the rolling Atlantic."

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The sailors and soldiers of the Cuban battleship Cuba were guests last night at the Winter Garden performance of "The Honeymoon Express" under charge of Luis More y del Solar, commander of artillery.

The 1913 series of the "Ziegfeld Follies" is announced to open at Atlantic City on June 9. After a week's engagement there the revue will be presented in New York.

Lady Constance Stewart Richardson, who is to appear in classic dances on Hammerstein's Roof Garden beginning June 16, will sail from Liverpool on the Olympic next Wednesday and will arrive here on June 10.

STRIKE IN FOSS PLANTS.

Shops May Shut Down Indefinitely—Governor Blames New Tariff Bill.

BOSTON, May 29.—The plants of the B. F. Sturtevant Company and the Becker Milling Machine Company at Hyde Park, from which 1,200 workmen walked out on strike to-day, will probably be shut down indefinitely, according to a statement to-night by Gov. Eugene N. Foss, who owns a controlling interest in both concerns.

When the strikers went out they left behind less than 300 persons in the shops, labor leaders declare. Among those who did not strike were women workers, not members of the union, and members of two craft organizations which have agreements with the management.

At a mass meeting this afternoon, President James O'Connell of the Metal Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, who came from Washington to-day to assume direction of the strike, advised the men to maintain order. He declared that from reports made to him employes at the two shops are paid from 50 cents to $1 less than is paid for the same work elsewhere.

Local labor leaders said that the strike grew out of an announcement recently that a general cut of 10 per cent. was to be made in the wages of employes, beginning May 15. This notice was rescinded, it was said, when the men intimated that they were formulating demands for a 20 per cent. advance. In refusing the 20 per cent. demand, Gov. Foss a few days ago said that changes expected in the pending tariff law made it impossible to grant any advance.

$12,000 FOR PIER MUSIC.

And Gaynor Wants a Kind That Everybody Can Understand.

There will be band music on the piers again this Summer, the Board of Estimate having voted yesterday to spend $12,000 for this purpose. Borough President Miller of the Bronx opposed the request at first, saying that he considered music a luxury.

"Yes," said the Mayor, "I visited all the piers last Summer and found most of the bands twice as large as needed and the music mostly not understood by the people. They might as well have had Milton's 'Paradise Lost' read to them. They should have music that they can understand and enjoy."

"But," interrupted Borough President McAneny, "that music can do them no harm."

"Well," replied the Mayor, "some people like you can understand music like that, but most of us can't."

RAID EMPLOYES' HOMES.

Loot from Public Stores Found by Customs Inspectors.

Acting on the instructions of Mark P. Andrews, head of the law department of the customs, a number of Inspectors raided yesterday the homes of twelve packers and openers employed at the Public Stores, at Christopher and Washington Streets. The raids were made on Federal warrants issued because of complaints from importers that their goods had been tampered with while they were waiting to be examined at the Public Stores. The articles found by Inspector Loud and his staff consisted chiefly of millinery, artificial flowers, bric-a-bac and perfumery. The loot was taken to the Custom House.

For a long time this pilfering was believed to be the work of the crews of ships or longshoremen. Importers of shoes and gloves have been compelled to have rights shipped in one case and lefts by later vessels, as their losses were so heavy when the articles were shipped in pairs ready to wear.

POSE AS MORGAN PICTURES.

Guests at Briarcliff Lodge Represent Famous Paintings.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF LODGE, N. Y., May 29.—The second subscrition dance and entertainment of the season was held last night at Briarcliff Lodge. The programme included living picture representations of some of the J. Pierpont Morgan collection of paintings, followed by a one-act comedy and dancing.

The famous paintings reproduced were "The Countess of Waldegrave," by Mrs. Daubney Brandreth; "A Lady Doing Love to Her Important Self," by Mrs. John Curry Barlow; "Miss Isabella Rose," by Miss Helen R. Carpenter; "The Duchess of Devonshire," by Miss Marjorie Acker; "Mlle. Helvites," by Miss Marie Spiegelburg, and "Miss Farren," by Miss Katherine Moran. Miss Virginia Larkin spoke the prologue and the verses.

Among those present were Mrs. Lyman Marrion, Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Carpenter, Gen. E. A. McAlpin and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin McAlpin, the Rev. and Mrs. B. Oakley Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Brusie and Miss Brusie, Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Barnum, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Acker, Mr. and Mrs. J. Curry Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hobbie, Mrs. E. J. Nally, and Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Spiegelburg.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Frank T. Fitzgerald of Hempstead, L. I., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Edith Fitzgerald, to Wallace Dibble of Springfield, Mass. Miss Fitzgerald's father, the late Judge Fitzgerald, was for many years Surrogate of New York County.

The date of the fancy dress ball, to be given at the Garden City Hotel in aid of the Long Island Nursing Sisters of the Poor, has been changed from Wednesday, June 4, to Friday, June 6, and there will be many house parties for the week end. Special trains are to be run from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont are at the Ritz-Carlton. They will attend the races to-day at Belmont Terminal and will sail on the Lapland to-morrow morning for Europe.

The Philippine Society will give its first annual dinner on Tuesday evening, June 10, at the Plaza.

Mrs. Wheldon Keeling has closed her town apartment and has taken the Battell cottage at Milton Point, Rye, N. Y., for the Summer.

Mrs. C. L. Hussey, wife of Commander Hussey of Newport is at the Wolcott for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tarleton Wills of 80 Madison Avenue have left for Washington, D. C. After June 5 they will be at their cottage in Southampton for the Summer.

Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies, who sailed some time since, is in Paris. Mr. Baylies will join her about the middle of June. They will not return before the end of August.

John F. Steinman, who, on June 3, will marry Miss Blanche Lazo, will give a dinner, followed by dancing, on June 2 at the St. Regis for the bridal party and a few additional guests.

The attendants at the wedding on June 4 of Miss Bessie F. Yoakum and Francis R. Larkin will be entertained at dinner to-morrow evening by Miss Yoakum at the residence of her parents, 16 East Sixty-seventh Street. This dinner will take the place of the usual bachelor dinner and bridesmaids' luncheon.

Mrs. William Brock Shoemaker, who returned on Wednesday from a visit to her sister, Mrs. George A. Lung, in Philadelphia, has gone to Riverside, Conn., to be the guest of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Henry F. Shoemaker, for several weeks.

John R. De Witt of Princeton and New York, has just returned to New York from a six months' trip around the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Hurry have opened their house at North Hatley, Canada, for the Summer, and will have their daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Swift, and her little daughter with them for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hartshorn and Miss Eleanor Hartshorn will leave town on June 1 to spend the Summer at Southampton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederick Kernochan of Southampton are at the Plaza for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Newton of East Hampton, L. I., are at the Hotel Gotham for the week end.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston and Mrs. Fitzgerald and their two daughters, the Misses Agnes and Rose Fitzgerald, are at the Knickerbocker for a day or so.

HONORS TO DR. SILVERMAN.

A reception was tendered to the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman at Temple Emanu-El last night by the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, the largest international Jewish fraternal and benevolent order, as President of its District Lodge No. 1, in recognition of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his rabbinate in Temple Emanu-El and of his communal activities in New York City.

Adolph Lewisohn, introduced by Charles Hartman, former President of the District Lodge, was Chairman of the meeting, and with him on the platform were the Rev. Dr. I. S. Moses, who delivered the opening prayer; Abram I. Elkus, Col. Harry Cutler of Providence, R. I., former President of the District Lodge of the order; Second Vice President Ascher of the District Lodge, Joseph Ullman, I. Irving Lipschitz, the Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossman, and Dr. Silverman himself. Gov. Sulzer arrived in the course of the reception, and remained to pay his tribute in a speech to Dr. Silverman.

Mr. Elkus then paid a tribute to Dr. Silverman as a leader in the community.

Col. Harry Cutler followed by saying that Dr. Silverman could lay claim to the highest title any man could seek—"that he is a Jew and an American citizen, terms which are synonymous, for no one can be a good Jew without being an American citizen, and no one can be an American citizen unless he practices the principles of a good Jew."

"All you, my friends, who are here—but I believe only my friends are here to-night," began Dr. Silverman—"I don't know where the others are. They might have been converted. You know, Jews don't like to be converted, and so they stay away. I am in a quandary. This seems to me like a dream. A short while ago I felt bullets whizzing about my head, and to-night I see the angels going up and down. You don't see angels unless you are in a dream. Jacob saw them, and the Bible says he was sleeping with a rock as his pillow at the time. I have drawn a new interpretation from that incident in the Bible; it seems to me that when you've got a rock for a pillow you dream. You must first sleep on a hard rock, a hard bed, and then you'll see the angels going up and down.

"I did not know I was all the things the speakers said I was to-night. I did not know I was a teacher or a leader. I did not try to be. I tried to be a follower—to follow my illustrious immortal teacher, Isaac M. Wise, and that other illustrious teacher, Max Lilienthal, who I made my guiding stars and tried to follow as best I could. I have tried to make their principles and ideals my ideals, and then I have tried to follow my ideals and impulses and to be a Jew and a rabbi. If I haven't succeeded in being a follower, I have not succeeded at all."

CIVIC CENTRE PLAN SAFE.

McAneny Says Rescinding of Appropriations Will Not Affect It.

Borough President McAneny explained last night that the action of the Board of Estimate in rescinding a number of appropriations of corporate stock must not be taken as threatening the adoption of his civic centre plain in connection of his civic centre plan in connection.

"Three years ago we did exactly the same kind of thing," he said. "Then we cleared off $20,000,000 of corporate priations, which had lost their immediate importance. So to-day we rescinded appropriations of $8,000,000 of corporate stock for a number of purposes, which no longer are urgent and may be discovered to be unnecessary. Of this $3,000,000 had been set aside for the opening of the extension of Seventh Avenue. It was originally intended that this should be paid for partly by the issue of corporate stock, partly by assessment. It has been decided to make the extension of the avenue a borough affair and assess part of the entire cost on the property owners, part on the borough at large."

The President was asked whether he considered the vote for the war against mosquitoes, which was rescinded, came under the head of an unimportant matter. He explained that this was to have been paid for by an issue of special revenue bonds, and then said:

"It looked as though we were going to be stung anyhow, and it didn't seem to matter much which way that happened."

SHEPARD VASE PRESENTED.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 29.—Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, the former Helen Gould, received yesterday at Tarrytown, N. Y., the vase which was a wedding present from 23,500 enlisted men of the army. The presentation was made by Sergt. Major A. C. Jensen, formerly of Fort H. G. Wright, and First Sergt. Edward Maher of Fort Terry, the committee representing the donors, and Charles C. Perkins of this city, who was auditor of the fund for the gift. No soldier was allowed to give more than a dime. As the movement originated in the artillery district of New London, the Committee on Presentation was designated here.

The gift, presented in appreciation of Mrs. Shepard's many kindnesses to enlisted men, is a silver and gold rose vase, standing 27 inches high on a green marble base. It is constructed of 250 ounces of silver and 96 pennyweights of gold, and cost $2,100. Around the body of the vase are twelve panels containing the devices in gold of all the different arms of the United States service.

WANTS CITY ICE PLANTS.

McAneny Favors Plan Submitted by Engineer E. P. Goodrich.

In a report which he submitted yesterday to Borough President McAneny, E. P. Goodrich, consulting engineer, recommended that the Board of Estimate be requested to appropriate $50,000 corporate stock to carry on experiments this Summer with city owned ice plants.

Mr. Goodrich thinks that ice can be manufactured at the Hall of Records, which has an elaborate refrigerating plant, for a dollar or less a ton.

Mr. Goodrich suggests that plans for several plants be made at once, one plant to be located in connection with the Staten Island garbage incinerator, one in the abandoned Williamsburg Bridge power plant, and two others in public baths.

President McAneny brought the matter up in the Board of Estimate by asking for the appropriation, saying that it would be wise economy to make ice for city institutions and hospitals and for various departments. The city, he said, could manufacture and deliver its own ice at $2.50 a ton, while in 1909 the city had paid $58,000 for ice at the average rate of from $8 to $9 a ton.

HERE'S FOWLER PLATFORM.

TRENTON, N. J., May 29.—With progressive doctrines stamped on its platform planks, former Representative Charles N. Fowler of Elizabeth announced to-day his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor.

He is unqualifiedly in favor of a constitutional convention, with either equal, district, or minority representation from each county; true jury reform, which, he says, would be made possible by the Republican measure of the past session; self-government; only half-holiday for primary and general elections, making failure to vote at the former a bar to the latter; initiative, referendum, and recall, except recall of Judges; short ballot, and many other reforms.

DIES AS HE CLOSES DEAL.

Edward Johnson's Hotel Was Training Quarters for Noted Pugilists.

Edward Johnson, whose road house at 170th Street and Jerome Avenue was the rendezvous of racing men and horse owners when the old Speedway extended along Jerome Avenue, died suddenly last evening in a real estate office at 3,648 Broadway. He had gone there with a nephew, William R. Gray, to close a land deal, and was stricken with a hemorrhage of the lungs.

He sold the roadhouse only a week ago. Patronage from racing men at the place stopped when the Speedway was taken from Jerome Avenue and established along the Harlem River, and for some time it was used as a training quarters for pugilists. It is said that at different times such fighters as Tom Sharkey, James Corbett, Terry McGovern, Stanley Ketchel, Leach Cross, and Harry Forbes put themselves into condition for their New York bouts in the building on Jerome Avenue.

Johnson was born in this city fifty-four years ago, and when he was 20 lived on the present site of Andrew Carnegie's home at Ninetieth Street and Fifth Avenue. He had lived in the Bronx over twenty-five years. At one time he owned the black stallion Cricket, with a record of 2:14 for the mile.

Slight Further Decline—Prices Break and Recover on News of Union Pacific Plan.

Other matters were overshadowed in stock market interest yesterday by the announcement of the plans which have been formulated by the Union Pacific management for complying with the decree of the Supreme Court. Upon the announcement of the proposals which are shortly to be submitted to the United States Circuit Court for its consideration the quotation for both Union and Southern Pacific broke sharply and then recovered substantially, though in the case of Southern Pacific the day ended with a net loss of a full point. The rest of the market, except for a few special issues, including some of the low priced railroad stocks, which were weak, moved narrowly. The net change for the day in the general level of quotations was a decline, but it amounted to less than a quarter of a point. Comment was heard yesterday regarding Union Pacific proposals that they seemed to carry no special advantage to the stockholders of either company. Some at least of those who have given so much effort to formulating these plans are not disposed to contest this point of view. They explained it rather on the ground that as a matter of fact there was little in the way of immediate advantage, to be gained from complying with the decree of the Supreme Court under the restrictions which the Government and the courts on one hand and market conditions on the other hand are imposing upon the separation of the Southern Pacific from the Union Pacific. The financial community has had reasons enough to lead it to abandon any hope that the Union Pacific dissolution plan would so shape itself as to bring a repetition of the market advantage which seemed to flow from the breaking up of the Standard Oil Company. Yet in yesterday's discussion of the terms of the plan which the Union Pacific management has mapped out there seemed to lurk some disappointment that the plan did not obviously suggest market advantage to the shareholders. The Union Pacific Directors have in effect been working with their hands tied and Wall Street had no real reason to be surprised that the plan proposed is no more "generous" than it is. On the other hand it may be that the Street did not attach so much importance as it should to the fact that an essential feature of the proposals which the Union Pacific will make to the court is that a considerable period of time, six months or possibly more, will be allowed for carrying the plan into effect. That may leave the way open to a much more advantageous liquidation of the stock than would be at all possible under the market conditions which now prevail.

The foreign bank statements made a good showing and the forecasts of the return of our own banks to-morrow were favorable. The Bank of England reported a slight increase in its gold holdings, but its liabilities were reduced by a substantial sum and its proportion of reserve advanced sharply. The statement of the Bank of France showed a gain of more than $4,000,000 in gold, thanks to the shipments which were made from this side. The improved prospect for the signing of a treaty of peace between Turken and the Balkan States within the next few days was a helpful influence in the London market yesterday, but this was offset by money market developments. London is being offered a much larger volume of securities than it can comfortably handle and this factor continues one of the adverse matters of wide influence. New financing here is being kept down as much as possible and this market is therefore not overburdened, in the sense in which the London market is, with security issues.

Some of yesterday's selling may have been prompted by the fact that the market was entering upon a triple holiday. The drift of sentiment made traders more inclined to anticipate unfavorable news than good news. At the same time within the immediate possibilities is the signing of the treaty which will restore peace in Europe and serve presumably to loosen some of the feathers under which the financial situation as a whole has been laboring.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Long Lane, and Its End.

Since early in December last several of the most eminent bankers, lawyers and railroad men in New York have arisen with the "Union Pacific Problem," carried it with them throughout most of the day, and taken it home with them at night. The three Union Pacific representatives who bore the brunt of the negotiations made their own work secondary in order to be free to meet every day or two for a conference. Plan after plan was painfully erected only to be demolished by the discovery that a State or National statute threatened trouble, or that one of the authorities to be consulted had intimated that the terms were not satisfactory to him. Fruitless trips across the continent were taken several times by the railroad officials, and half way across, to St. Louis and St. Paul, by the lawyers and bankers. Yesterday the Union Pacific Board announced two very simple and easily understood suggestions for the disposition of the Southern Pacific stock held contrary to law. Had the Directors known on Dec. 2 what they could not do they might have had their plans completed by Dec. 4.

Achievement by Elimination.

Too many cooks not only endanger the broth, but delay the dinner. When the several interests that were pulling in as many different ways were apparently at loggerheads, it was suggested by a friend of the late E. H. Harriman that had the segrégation problem come up during his lifetime he would have called a certain banker into his office and proceeded to work out a plan for his fellow-Directors to approve. Most of the difficulties faced by the Directors arose from the efforts to get a plan which would provide for the sale of Central Pacific to Union Pacific. One by one each suggestion offered was tried out, found wanting, and discarded. The final result gives little indication of the stupendous amount of work done by the plan's sponsors.

Bonds Up, Stocks Off.

Yesterday's price changes in the St. Louis & San Francisco securities benefited the road's creditors at the expense of the owners. In other words, the bonds advanced while the stocks declined. The general lien 5s, in which the French investors are showing more than a passing interest, advanced at one time to 57, and at the close, at 56¾, they carried a gain of 4%. The refunding 4s closed at their high point of the day, 68¾, where they had a gain of 2¾ points. On the other hand, all three classes of stock made new low records for the year, the first preferred at 14½, the second preferred at 6¼, and the common at 3½. Control of the 'Frisco, which cost Messrs. Yoakum, West, Hawley, Campbell et al. about $10,800,000 less than four years ago, was rated yesterday at a little over $900,000. Mr. Yoakum predicted yesterday that it would be only a little while before the stock would be worth more than ever.

Guessing on Cotton.

Private estimates of the cotton crop received by newspapers and statistical agencies from points in the South indicate that, with average weather in the growing season, the season's yield will not be far from a new high record if the record is not actually established. Reports from the more important cotton centres go to show that planting was carried on during the present month to a greater extent than last year, owing to good soil conditions and the absence of stretches of rainy days. There was, therefore, a notable expansion of acreage over May, 1912. One estimate reported in the financial district yesterday was that more than 36,000,000 acres had been planted to cotton against about 34,740,000 acres last season.

Oil Dividends No Help to Stock.

Declaration of the usual preferred dividend for the quarter of 1¾ per cent. and of 1¼ per cent. on the common stock of the California Petroleum Company, in regard to which the Street professed doubt last week, availed nothing in imparting strength to the shares yesterday. The major issues sold off a full point and the minor shares closed with nothing more than a good fractional gain, in spite of fairly good buying at one period of the session. The company's report of operations for the first quarter of the year indicated earnings for the full fiscal period equivalent to more than 8 per cent. for the common stock, but the state of mind engendered in stock-trading circles by the action of the "newer industrial" group of stocks since the 1st of January appears to have congealed into consistent caution toward the members of the group which profits alone seem not able to dispel.

True Investment

Insist on safety, reasonable market and fair income, such as can be obtained in solid mortgage bonds on good properties.

Remember that every chance for large profit is balanced by an equal chance for large loss.

TWO PLANS READY FOR THE PACIFICS

Union Pacific Proposes to Make a Public Offering of Its S. P. Stock or Let Trustee Sell It.

BEFORE ST. LOUIS COURT

First Plan to Work Like a City Bond Sale—On the Second Certificates Would Be Issued for Stock.

The Union Pacific Railroad will submit to the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis early next week two alternative plans for the segregation of its Southern Pacific stock, possession of which was held by the Supreme Court to give the company control of Southern Pacific in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust act. These plans represent the final effort of the Directors to comply with the dissolution decree, and if they fail of approval the court will have to take upon itself the obligation of appointing a trustee to dispose of the Southern Pacific shares.

It is hoped by the Directors to get the Government's O. K. stamped on both proposals, which would allow them to select the one which seems best suited to the decision's requirements. However, if either plan should prove acceptable, the Union Pacific will be able to obtain the best market possible for its $126,650,000 of stock.

The first proposal contemplates a public offering of the Southern Pacific shares to the highest bidders, to be conducted along the lines of a New York City bond sale, the court to prescribe the conditions under which Union Pacific shareholders shall be allowed to buy Southern Pacific. The alternative proposal calls for the deposit of the stock in the hands of a trustee to be released from time to time as holders of the trust certificates to be issued and sold in lieu of the stock surrender them.

The dissolution decree specified that a plan must be submitted by May 10, and this was subsequently changed to July 1. If either of these plans is approved it is expected that the court will take some time, possibly three months, to consider the matter, and that it will then allow from six months to a year to carry out the proposals. For this reason no steps for the formation of a new underwriting syndicate have yet been taken, and there has been no consideration of the matter of the price at which the offering of the Southern Pacific shares is to be made. It is pointed out by the Directors that the actual sale of the shares is not to take place for several months it may be possible to obtain a much better price than could be obtained to-day.

Chairman R. S. Lovett of the Executive Committee of the Union Pacific, after the meeting of the Directors yesterday gave out this statement:

"Following the failure of the original plan as modified and the expiration of the underwriting syndicate on March 10, all negotiations for the control of the Central Pacific were abandoned, and the Union Pacific proceeded with the development of a plan for the disposition of its holdings of Southern Pacific stock without reference to the Central Pacific. Upon our application to the Supreme Court for an extension of the time, which would expire on May 12, the Attorney General in that connection made it plain that he contemplated proceedings to compel the Southern Pacific to relinquish control of the Central Pacific.

"Immediately after the Supreme Court granted the extension of time to July 1, active negotiations were resumed between the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific, and earnest efforts have been made to formulate a plan which would include the transfer of the Central Pacific. These negotiations continued until a few days ago, when it became apparent that no solution could be found which would meet the views of the two companies directly interested, and at the same time satisfy the requirements of the Government and the California Railroad Commission and of the French banks whose consent was necessary in connection with certain provisions of the Central Pacific European loan indenture. Accordingly, negotiations had to be abandoned.

"We have informed the Attorney General of the situation and have again restricted our efforts to working out a plan dealing only with the disposition of the Southern Pacific stock. After much consideration we have decided upon two alternative plans which have to-day been approved by our Board of Directors. While certain details still remain to be settled, the salient features of the two plans are as follows:

"1. We propose to offer the Southern Pacific stock held by the Union Pacific for public subscription in a way similar to that in which New York City bonds are offered, namely, to invite bids at such prices and for such amounts of st

FAILURE OF FRISCO INCENSES BANKERS

Announce That They Were Not Consulted and Others Say Receivership Was Unnecessary.

FIGHT ON YOAKUM MEN

The split between B. F. Yoakum and his associates, who have been in control of the St. Louis & San Francisco through their ownership of all of the $29,000,000 of common stock, and the bankers who have financed most of the road's requirements in recent years, widened yesterday with the announcement that Speyer & Co. and the Bankers Trust Company were to start proceedings at once to oust one or both of the receivers. Failing in that, the bankers will urge upon the court the appointment of a third receiver to look after the interests of the bondholders.

Both Thomas H. West and B. L. Winchell, who were named by Judge Walter S. Sanborn as the result of the conference in St. Louis last Tuesday, are objected to by prominent interests among the bondholders. Mr. Winchell is looked upon as the personal representative of Chairman Yoakum, while Mr. West was a member with Mr. Yoakum of the group of capitalists which took the Frisco from the Rock Island. The position of the bankers was summed up in this:

"The time has come to stop the practice of allowing the same men who have been responsible for a property's troubles to continue in charge, with the court's backing, after a receivership. Confessing their inability to make a road pay when they plead insolvency, they yet ask the court to hand the property back to them."

Speyer & Co. brought out the $68,000,000 of general lien bonds, of which $3,000,000 were sold in Paris last April. The Bankers Trust Company is interested in the naming of independent receivers as the trustee under the mortgage securing this issue.

Bankers Not Consulted.

This significant statement was given out by the bankers last evening:

Messrs. Speyer & Co. stated to-day that neither their firm nor the Bankers' Trust Company, Trustee under the 5 per cent. general lien mortgage, were consulted about the St. Louis & San Francisco receivership, or about the selection of Messrs. Winchell and West as receivers.

Mr. Yoakum was at his office for a while yesterday, but could not be seen. Late in the afternoon he appeared at Speyer & Co.'s, where he awaited Mr. Speyer. When the banker arrived the two men spent a quarter of an hour in conference. As he left the building Mr. Yoakum was shown the Speyer statement and asked for an explanation.

"Nothing to say," he said. "I am very sorry, but I have nothing to say." The same answer was repeated to a half dozen other questions. The Speyer statement was afterward supplemented by this from interests concerned with recent sales of Frisco securities:

"As regards the security for the 5 per cent. bonds, it should not be forgotten that they are secured by a mortgage on the Frisco proper, which has always been a paying property. It is through the leases and guarantees of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, &c., that the financial drain has come. Confidence is expressed in well-informed quarters that these bonds are intrinsically well secured and will come out all right.

"With regard to the recent sale of a small block of St. Louis & San Francisco bonds in Paris, it probably will appear, when all the facts are known, that the New York bankers are in no wise to blame for this regrettable incident. It may be stated also that the financial condition of the company at the time when the contract for the sale of the bonds was made was not such as to cause any doubt as to the company's solvency."

Receivership Unexpected.

In view of the fact that the Bankers Trust Company was represented at the hearing before Judge Sanborn by Charles Nagel and the firm of Speyer & Co. by Frederick H. Lehmann, Mr. Speyer was asked how he had learned of the proceedings.

"We were not consulted or advised in regard to the receivership, but we heard of it from sources outside the company, and, of course, took prompt steps to safeguard the bondholders," said he.

There were intimations yesterday that the financial situation of the 'Frisco lo'ks very different in St. Louis to the same men who had seen no reason for the bankruptcy petition in New York a day or two before. As late as Saturday of last week it was expected both by 'Frisco officials in the East and the bankers that the $2,250,000 of C. & E. I. notes would be cared for by money raised in St. Louis.

President Winchell was quoted from Chicago as saying that the money had been provided. A conference, which began Friday night and ended at 4 o'clock Saturday morning, was said to have resulted in a decision on the part of the principal stockholding interests to let the property go into bankruptcy. Up to that time it was not seriously believed that the company would not be able to raise the comparatively small amount needed to meet the notes.

"When the last block of general 5s was sold the 'Frisco appeared to be in a very prosperous condition, for that property," it was explained last night. "It had a surplus of about $1,500,000 with $500,000 cash in the treasury. The bankers looked into the road's statement of earnings and its financial position very carefully before agreeing to take the bonds.

Hint of Something Underneath.

"It was impossible for a road in the condition that they found the 'Frisco in April to suffer to an extent that necessitated a receivership in less than three months, if we knew what transpired in St. Louis would be able to put our finger on the real reason for the company's inability to meet its notes."

Several causes led to receivership.

The property serves the best of the Southwestern territory. New traffic is developing on every mile of the road, and we will all turn in with renewed efforts to bring it out and protect every interest in every way possible.

The company's securities are all safe and the stock will be worth more than ever. It will only take a little time to demonstrate this.

An amicable adjustment with the Chicago & Eastern Illinois will no doubt be made, which will be to the mutual interest of both, and friendly traffic relations continued, so that both lines will be benefited and continue feeding each other as heretofore.

Still another protective committee was formed yesterday. The latest one represents the two-year 6 per cent. notes due Sept. 1, 1914, of the St. Louis & San Francisco. It is composed of H. E. Cooper, Chairman; Charles T. Rhoades of Philadelphia, and T. A. Whelen, Jr., of Baltimore. Breckenridge Jones, President of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis, has been added to the committee for the 4 per cent. refunding bonds.

J. & W. Seligman & Co., Blair & Co., and Robert Winthrop & Co., representing a large proportion of the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis refunding 4s, announced that, in their opinion, this issue was in such strong position that there was no necessity at this time for a protective committee.

INQUIRY INTO RECEIVERSHIP.

Bondholders to Get at the Bottom of Sudden Frisco Failure.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 29.—An inquiry to determine why the Frisco Railroad should be thrown suddenly into the hands of receivers by its managing officials, without consultation with the bankers who financed it, will be made by representatives of the holders of the $300,000,000 outstanding bonds.

Charles Nagel, representing the Bankers Trust Company of New York, trustee of the bondholders, and F. W. Lehman, representing Speyer & Co. of New York, who floated a large issue of 5 per cent. Frisco bonds are waiting for further instructions from their clients. Lehman has been called to New York to confer with Speyer & Co., his clients, and Nagel will make a demand at the proper time for a third receiver, to be one in no way connected with the management of the railroad.

An important phase of the receivership proceeding will be the investigation of the purchase by the Frisco of numerous branch lines, many of which were promoted by B. F. Yoakum, Chairman of the Frisco Board of Directors.

Prior to Mr. Lehman's departure, Charles Nagel, attorney for the Bankers Trust Company of New York, which is aligned with Speyer & Co. in handling the Frisco's finances, declared that the bankers Trust Company would insist upon his rights in connection with the receivership.

Mr. Nagel said that he had not received instructions from the Bankers Trust Company, but that as soon as he did he would take action. He said he did not know of the receivership proceedings until 12:30 P. M. Tuesday, although the petition was filed in Chambers with Federal Judge W. H. Sanborn Monday afternoon. He said Mr. Lehman had not heard of the receivership until that morning.

It may be said on the highest authority that the receivership of the Frisco system will proceed at once upon severe administrative lines. No money will be paid out, it is said, except as actually needed for the good of the property. One intimate with the affairs of the road says that the severing of relations with the Chicago & Eastern Illinois will at once prove an enormous saving to the Frisco system, which, by itself, should be operated with profit almost immediately.

PARIS COMMENT IS BITTER.

Financial Press Denounces American Securities—Bondholders Meet.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 29.—As foreshadowed in yesterday's dispatch, the Association of Foreign Bondholders held a meeting last night to review the Frisco receivership situation. The result of the meeting has not been divulged.

Meanwhile the stock is not quoted here, offers finding no bids. Financial papers to-day voice the prevailing bitterness against American securities in this market.

TRUST BOUGHT OUT RIVAL.

Took Over Plant Concern on Eve of Sale to Shoe Men.

BOSTON, May 29.—The Thomas G. Plant Company of Boston was an active competitor when the United Shoe Machinery Company acquired it, according to testimony introduced to-day by the Government in the dissolution proceedings against the United Shoe Machinery Company. It was the largest and most important of the fifty-five companies bought up by the defendant, and its purchase is regarded as one of the principal points in the Government's case.

Plant had acquired a complete line of shoe machinery and had fitted his shoe factory with it in place of the defendant's machines when the latter bought him out for $6,000,000. This was after St. Louis shoe manufacturers had opened negotiations for the purchase of a half interest in Plant's shoe machinery business.

The Government contends that the Plant concern was bought up in pursuance of a plan to monopolize the shoe machinery business of the country. In support of this contention conversations between Sidney W. Winslow, President of the United Shoe Machinery Company, and Charles H. Jones, Treasurer of the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company of Boston, were introduced. The conversations, which extended over three days, related to the objections of shoe manufacturers to the so-called "tying" clauses in the leases, whereby shoe manufacturers were required to use certain machines produced by the defendant with certain other machines.

President Winslow declined to abandon the leases and said in substance, according to Mr. Jones, who was on the stand, that the clauses gave him complete control and that without this control other manufacturers would creep in, with the result that the shoe manufacturers would use one company against the other and the intense competition that formerly existed would return, making it difficult for the machinery manufacturers to get their money from the shoe manufacturers.

Under direct examination by William S. Gregg, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, witness testified that before the organization of the United Company eight different companies were making lasting machines, three were making welt-sewing and outsole-stitching machines, three were making heeling machines and five were making metallic-fastening machines. After the organization of the defendant company, he said, no other company was engaged in manufacturing these different lines of shoe machinery.

The witness testified that the United Company supplied his firm generally with its shoe machinery. In June, 1910, Thomas G. Plant offered him a complete line of machinery, including every machine supplied to the witness by the defendant company. Witness said he did not accept Plant's offer because of the covenants and tying clauses of the leases of the defendant.

Judge Putnam inquired if Mr. Plant was a defendant in the case, and when Mr. Gregg replied in the negative continued:

"Then, how are we going to dissolve this company and separate the Plant Company if Plant is not a defendant?"

Mr. Gregg attempted to explain, but Judge Putnam said he did not desire an answer, having asked the question merely by way of suggestion.

Mr. Gregg explained that Mr. Plant had fitted his own factory with the Plant machinery, and was endeavoring to induce other persons to use it when the defendant endeavored to restrain him from using his own machinery. While the witness and other representatives of shoe manufacturers in St. Louis were inspecting the plant with a view to making a deal the defendant company on Sept. 23, he said, bought out the Plant factory and acquired a majority of the stock in the Plant Company.

The trial was adjourned until next Tuesday.

COX BANK TRIAL NEAR.

Judge Refuses to Quash Indictments in Cincinnati Case.

CINCINNATI, May 29.—Judge Caldwell to-day overruled the motions to quash the indictments against George B. Cox and other former officers and Directors of the Cincinnati Trust Company. The indictments charge misuse of funds.

Organizing a Fair at Yonkers.

A fair and exhibition of the farm, including stock and horse shows, races, and agricultural products, will be held throughout August at the Empire City Park at Yonkers. The Greater New York Fair and Exposition has been organized to conduct the enterprise from Aug. 1, for thirty days and nights, and if the venture proves successful the exhibit will be continued as an annual event. Manager R. M. Williams has sent representatives through the West and South in search of novelties.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Fake Buyer Active Here.

The "fake buyer" swindle is again being operated here. The supposed buyer is working under the name of H. C. Shafran, and pretends to be selecting ready-to-wear lines for his brother, A. Shafran, who conducts a retail store in Oakland, Cal. There is a retail dealer in Oakland by that name, but he has no brother, according to information resulting from inquiries by one firm with whom the "buyer" placed a liberal, but unauthentic, order. So far as could be learned yesterday, only one house had to date lost more than the cost of lunches and other entertainment. That firm, raincoat manufacturers, with offices on West Twenty-fifth Street, lost $50 by cashing a worthless check.

Neckwear Association Formed.

Manufacturers, importers, and exploiters of women's neckwear have banded together under the name of the Women's Neckwear Association. At a meeting in the rooms of the Merchants' Central Club they elected the following officers to serve for the coming year: President—Max Engel of Engel & Kraus; Vice President—David Kisch of the Kisch Manufacturing Company; Treasurer—L. M. Simson of Levi Simson & Co., and Secretary—A. J. Haire. In the Board of Directors, besides the officers, are Leo Lewek of Lewek & Friedman, William Sidenberg of G. Sidenberg & Co., W. W. Higgons of the Warren W. Higgons Company, J. H. Slater of Slater, Apple & Co., and Edward Aaron of Kanter, Modry & Co. The association's offices are situated at 200 Fifth Avenue.

Japanese Raw Silk Scarce.

Raw silk is getting scarce at Yokohama. Supplies now total only 2,500 bales there, against 6,000 a year ago this time, with tram stock and Sinshiu silk missing. Stocks at Canton are small, with business quiet and prices firm. Shanghai is very firm, and the reelers are meeting declines in exchange with advances in prices. At Milan there is a steady demand for high-class silks. Business in New York is still hampered by the strike.

Agents Fear Tariff Revision.

Local selling agents who handle imported dress goods on a commission basis do not look with favor on the proposed downward revision of Schedule K, despite the opportunity for greater business that this revision might afford them. The reason is that with a cut in duties will come a cut in their incomes. According to one of these agents, they make their profit out of the tariff, which on woolen dress goods now averages 100 per cent. With the reduction of these rates to 35 per cent., it means that the agents must about treble their sales to keep their incomes at present levels. This, it is said, appears next to impossible.

Replies to Secretary Redfield.

Commenting on the recent statement of Secretary of Commerce Redfield that "a reduction of wages as a result of tariff revision is the easy resort of the inefficient and the hallmark of poor management," Albert Ulmann says in The Manufacturing Jeweler:

The essential point of the Secretary's statement, it will be observed, touches the matter of efficiency. In other words, the best equipped, the most resourceful and highest developed organization is to be taken as a criterion. Its cost of production is to be accepted as the standard for all the rest of the community. Anything short of this high-water mark will be regarded with official condemnation—that is, inefficiency, whether due to lack of capital, ingenuity, or any other cause, will be considered as a species of crime and subject to Governmental investigation.

Following the logic of this policy to its ultimate conclusion, it carries us to the big plant, the rich plant, the plant of the trust, in order to find the most highly developed degree of efficiency. But, according to President Wilson, the big business is a menace to the country and is an institution that ought to be destroyed. Here is confusion, indeed. Obviously, the Administration is not at one with itself. One policy leads up to the trust as the highest type of efficiency and another policy condemns and abhors the trust. In the meantime an ever-increasing bewilderment descends upon the business community as each new proclamation issues forth from official lips.

Two Sons and a Daughter to Divide Property of Pastor.

The Rev. Robert Collyer, Pastor Emeritus of the Church of the Messiah, who died on Nov. 30, left an estate of $107,753, according to the appraisal filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. More than $100,000 of this amount was in securities, scattered among thirty enterprises. His library was valued at $1,312. After making small gifts to friends, as per remembrances, Dr. Collyer bequeathed one-quarter of his residuary estate to his son, Samuel Collyer, and the other portions to be equally divided between Emma C. Hosmer, his daughter, and Robert S. Collyer, his son.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Sapphire Bearingns Held at High Duty—Other Protests Fail.

The United States Court of Customs Appeals has overruled a contention by the General Electric Company over the classification under the tariff act of 1909 of sapphires used as bearings in electrical instruments. Both the Government and the importers were dissatisfied with the decision of the Board of General Appraisers. The board held the sapphires dutiable at 20 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 480 as unenumerated manufactured articles. The Government claimed duty at 50 per cent. as semi-precious stones, or at 35 per cent. ad valorem for earthy or mineral substances. The importers asked a rate of 10 per cent. as semi-precious stones, but not set. The court upheld the 35 per cent. rate.

The court took adverse action in an appeal by C. B. Richard & Co. against the classification under the present law of furniture nails composed of leather and metal, leather being the component material of chief value. They were assessed 40 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 452, for articles principally made of leather. The importers asked to pay under Paragraphs 160 and 161, covering specified kinds of wrought iron and steel nails.

Austin, Nichols & Co. failed to secure lower duty on capers in vinegar in bottles and casks, and assessed by Collector Loeb as prepared vegetables at 40 per cent. under Paragraph 252, act of 1909.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Buyers endeavoring to place duplicate orders for silk coats in this market are finding it difficult. Not that the cutters-up don't want to take the business, but because the silk strike has resulted in such a shortage of these goods that they cannot get them to make up.

Buyers of floor coverings continue to keep busy, and sales of this merchandise are piling up in a way that would indicate little fear of adverse tariff effects for some time. Rug orders have been especially heavy.

Export orders for cotton goods continue to come in small volume. In the last week there has been a little better buying by Chinese importers, but traders in the other markets of the world show a general lack of interest in American offerings.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 218 business failures in the United States during the week against 265 for the previous week and 231, 168, 169, and 151 for the corresponding weeks of 1912 to 1909. The Middle States had 90, New England 26, Southern 36, Western 32, Northwestern 12, and Far Western 22. Canada had 20, against 25 for the preceding week. About 91 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 6 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

PHILIP AND HERMAN D. BROUS.—Philip and Herman D. Brous, who composed the firm of Philip Brous & Son, cloak manufacturers, formerly at 8 East Fourteenth Street in 1906, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday showing liabilities $80,477 and no assets. They also did business as Brous & Brous, in which their liabilities were $106,845. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against them on Nov. 3, 1906, and they made a settlement with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar. Louis H. and Jacob, also known as Jack Brous, who also did business as Brous & Brous, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday showing liabilities $108,680, of which $88,625 was accommodation paper of Philip Brous & Son, which they indorsed on the bankruptcy settlement of Philip Brous & Son. Jacob Brous also did business as The Hub, dealer in women's wear, and has liabilities on that account of $9,022. Myers & Goldsmith, their attorneys, said that the petitions were filed to clear off the liabilities of the old bankruptcy case, as the terms of the composition were not carried out and do not affect the Philip Brous Company, which is in business now.

THE NEW YORK NOVELTY COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Murray Ellenbogen and Joseph Giffler, doing business as the New York Novelty Company, manufacturers of braids and passementeries at 41 University Place, by these creditors: A. Brawer Silk Company, $810; S. Bresler, $95, and S. J. Levy, $138. Liabilities are said to be $4,000 and no assets.

LUIGI SCIANAMEA.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Luigi Scianamea, wholesale dealer in olive oils and wines at 615 Hudson Street, by these creditors: Scatena Brothers Wine Company, $1,538; Schilling & Co., $525, and Anthony J. Coccaro, $109. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments of $1,000, and admitted in writing inability to pay his debts. He has been in business five years. Judge Holt appointed Gulo Speranza receiver, bond $2,500. Liabilities are $8,000 and assets $5,000.

MORRIS AND SADIE GITLITZ.—Morris and Sadie Gitlitz, who composed the firm of Gitlitz & Gitlitz at 24 West Seventeenth Street in 1910, have filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $1,021 and no assets.

DAVID BURKE.—David Burke, who formerly kept a general store at Kingston, N. Y., has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $1,337 and assets $966, consisting of accounts $964 and cash $2.

BIRNBAUM & SCHILDER.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Birnbaum & Schilder, manufacturers of furs at 11 East Eighth Street, show liabilities $11,051 and assets $2,843, consisting of stock, $500; fixtures, $200; accounts, $2,053, and cash in bank, $90. Among the creditors are B. Cohn, $2,275; G. H. Van Reastarn, $2,231, and Vandewegie Brothers, $1,550.

MAX MEYER.—Judge Holt has appointed Oscar A. Lewis of Brooklyn ancillary receiver for the property in this city of Max Meyer, butcher and grocer of Woodmere, L. I., who had a branch store at 904 Park Avenue, this city, where the assets are estimated $500. Mr. Meyer filed a petition in Brooklyn a few days ago and Judge Chatfield appointed Mr. Lewis receiver.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The Austro-Americana Steamship Company has inaugurated a monthly service between Patras, Greece, and Quebec and Montreal. During the open season the vessels will proceed directly to Canadian ports. During the Winter season, when the northern route is closed by ice, the vessels will proceed to Portland, Me., where the passengers and cargo will be disembarked in transit for Canadian destination.

Cuba exports nearly all of its bananas to Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, these shipments amounting to over 2,500,000 bunches a year. This number should be almost doubled in three years, however, when new plantations come into bearing.

Japanese and German business men are organizing a Japanese-German commercial corporation, capital $250,000, for extending commerce between the two countries. Tokio, Osaka, and Nagoya Japanese merchants are interested.

POUGHKEEPSIE RUN FOR AUTOISTS TO-DAY

Automobile and Aviator Meet as Objective of 77-Mile Trip—Route to Buffalo Better.

Many motorists have been making plans for spending Memorial Day on the road, and route maps and charts have been thumbed in the last few days, no doubt. As an assistance to those who have not yet settled upon a plan of campaign, the touring department of the Automobile Club of America has come forward with the suggestion for a run to Poughkeepsie, where an automobile and aviation meet which, it is said, will be the biggest event of the kind along the Hudson River, is to be held this afternoon, under the auspices of the Poughkeepsie Automobile Club. Delegations from the Hudson, Newburg, Kingston, Albany, Peekskill and Fishkill motor clubs will attend the meet.

The run from this city to Poughkeepsie offers many attractions. The distance is 77 miles, which makes it an easy morning's trip. The road winds along the picturesque banks of the river. The road bed has all been repaired for the Summer season, and it will be found in good shape, says the A. C. A., except for a two-mile stretch of poor road north of Peekskill. This highway, and its continuation, forming the New York-Albany-Buffalo highway, is probably the most traveled road in the country, and its increasing use will require new construction in the near future, according to George C. Diehl, Chairman of the Good Roads Board of the American Automobile Association. Gov. Sulzer recently vetoed a proposal to put a trolley line along the road to Albany, and in doing so called attention to the fact that the highway was destined to be part of the through boulevard from New York to the State capital, and then to Buffalo, with its termination at Niagara Falls.

There are many inquiries, now that the touring season is active, concerning the condition of this route, and especially that section of it between Albany and Syracuse. Robert Bruce, manager of the Touring Bureau of the A. A. A., has been able to respond to these inquiries that, although during the last three years some portion of this 150-mile stretch has always been closed for repairs, work has so far progressed now that there is only one detour of importance necessary through the Mohawk Valley. This is the ten-mile stretch from Fonda to Palatine Bridge. At present there is a good road from Albany to Fonda, where a detour should be made to the south side of the Mohawk River to Canajoharie, returning to the north side once more at Palatine Bridge. By the completion last year of the State highway between Chittenango and Syracuse, running into that city by way of James Street, the somewhat longe and poorer route through Fayetteville was practically eliminated. These improvements and betterment on the Hudson River and in Western New York have made it more easy than ever before to make the trip from New York City to Buffalo in three days.

Still another small car has just been announced to "Automobile Row." This is to be a roadster of 22 horse power, and to be called the Metz. Its price will be less than $500, and it will be sold on the deferred payment plan. Temporary salesrooms have been taken at 1,700 Broadway.

Another subject of which the Row much depopulated by the exodus to the Indianapolis 500-mile race, by the way—was talking yesterday was the change by which George S. Waite succeeds R. R. Hall in charge of the New York end of the Oakland interests.

REJECT NEW LUMBER RATES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission issued an order to-day suspending until Sept. 27 next the proposed increase in freight rates on lumber shipments from Southern railway points to New York, Philadelphia, and other Eastern cities. The higher rates were recently filed to become effective to-morrow, May 30, and the increases ranged in amount from one-half a cent to five cents a hundred pounds. They relate to all shipments of lumber from points in Tennessee, the Carolinas, Georgia, and Virginia, to all Eastern seaboard and interior Eastern points.

Taking the shipments from Greenville, Tenn., as an example of the effect of the proposed advances would have been, the suspended tariffs raised the present rate of 25 cents on shipments to New York to 28½ cents, an increase of 3½ cents for every hundred pounds shipped. From the same point to Philadelphia the present rate of 21 cents a hundred was increased to 25½ cents, making an increase of 4½ cents on every hundred pounds shipped. To Baltimore, the present rate of 18 cents a hundred was raised to 23 cents, representing an increase of 5 cents a hundred.

Acting upon complaint, without formal pleading, the commission decided to hold up these rates pending an investigation concerning the propriety and legality of the advances.

DRY GOODS TRADE HEALTHY.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the drygoods trade, as of May 31, say:

"Cash receipts during the week have run considerably ahead of the same period a year ago. This is a favorable indication, in that merchants are in position to take advantage of time discounts on a larger volume of merchandise than was distributed during the first half of 1912. Orders continue heavy on lines for future delivery.

"Much interest has centered on preparation for the pre-inventory sale scheduled for the early part of the coming week. All departments will show merchandise at prices that will give dealers an opportunity to secure attarctive offerings for June and July sales.

"Manufacturers of woolen dress goods will have no reason for complaint for some time to come, as many of them are refusing re-orders for delivery sooner than October and November first. On cotton dress goods, mills are well s

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The disturbance that was off the Atlantic Coast Wednesday night has moved northeastward with a great increase in intensity and to-night is apparently central a short distance off the New England Coast, with rains still falling in Eastern Maine.

Conditions are also unsettled with low pressure in the Lake region and the Ohio Valley, and there were showers over the greater portion of this area. Elsewhere the weather was generally fair, although scattered showers continued in the extreme West.

There has been a considerable rise in temperature over the lower Missouri and the middle Mississippi Valleys and temperatures are now much above the seasonal average from the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains eastward, through the central valleys except the upper Ohio.

It is somewhat cooler in the extreme Northwest and considerably so in the middle plateau. In the Pacific and Atlantic States it is warmer, but with temperatures still below the seasonal average in New England.

There will be showers Friday in the Lake region and the upper Ohio Valley, extending Friday night or Saturday into the Middle Atlantic States and New England. In the South and West the weather will be generally fair, except that scattered showers are probable Friday in the Rocky Mountain region.

It will be somewhat cooler Friday or Friday night between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains, but elsewhere temperature changes will not be decided.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate northwest and north; on the Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest, becoming variable; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south and southwest.

Steamships departing Friday for European ports will have moderate northwest to north winds with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York and Southern New England—Generally fair Friday; Saturday cloudy, probably showers; moderate northwesterly winds, becoming variable.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Increasing cloudiness Friday, unsettled, probably showers at night or Saturday; light to moderate, variable winds.

Western New York—Showers Friday afternoon or night, and probably Saturday; moderate variable winds.

Northern New England—Fair west, clearing east portion Friday; Saturday, showers, except fair in Maine; moderate to brisk northwesterly winds, becoming variable.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

A. A. Vantine & Company Join the Uptown Movement of Trade and Lease Fifth Avenue Building—Aitken, Son & Company Seeking Uptown Site—Bronx, Brooklyn and Suburban Deals.

A. A. Vantine & Co., dealers in Oriental goods, joined the uptown movement of the retail trade yesterday and will abandon their building at Eighteenth Street and Broadway in the near future.

The firm has completed negotiations for the leasing of the eight-story building at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, formerly occupied by the jewelry firm of Black, Starr & Frost, which vacated last Fall for its new home above Forty-second Street.

Since that time the building has been occupied by Aitken, Son & Co. on a short term lease. The property is owned by Michael Dreicer and has been leased for a period of twenty-one years at a net rental of $86,000 per annum. Extensive alterations will be made and the lessees will occupy the entire building.

The present Vantine property and that occupied by Aitken, Son & Co., on the adjoining Eighteenth Street corner, is owned by Irving E. Raymond, President of the Vantine Company.

Aitken & Co. will also abandon their present Broadway store, but it was stated yesterday that they had not decided on an uptown site.

The new Vantine store will have many prominent concerns as neighbors. Close by are the establishments of B. Altman & Co., Tiffany's, Bonwit Teller, & Co., Knabe, Best & Co., McCutcheon's, and Franklin Simon & Co. Webster H. Mable & Co. and Frank D. Vellier negotiated the Vantine lease.

Another Moving-Picture Theatre.

The property at 2,774 Broadway, adjoining the corner of 107th Street, has been leased by the Freehold Construction Company to Peter Bonhart for a long term of years.

A moving-picture theatre will be erected on the plot, which has a frontage of 25 feet and a depth of 100 feet, at a cost of $10,000.

Tenement Property Sold.

The D. H. Jackson Company has bought from the estate of Charles Wendt, 16 Broome Street, northeast corner of Mangin Street, a six-story tenement and stores, on a plot 50 by 75. J. F. Giffing was the broker in the transaction.

L. J. Greenberger and Louis Block have sold for Donald Robertson 53 West 131st Street, a five-story flat, on a lot 25 by 99.11, to an investor.

An investing client of Slawson & Hobbs has purchased from Minot W. Seaman and Sadie E. Mead the five-story apartment with stores on the southeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 180th Street. The structure occupies a plot 38 by 95 feet.

Bronx.

Meller & Sussman have sold for M. Moersfelder to an investor 539 East 188th Street, a six-story new law house. The same brokers also sold a private house at 1,777 Bathgate Avenue, 28 by 100, to an investor.

Brooklyn.

The Courtney estate sold to Peter Rinelli ten lots on the west side of Nineteenth Avenue, from Eighty-third to Eighty-fourth Street, Bensonhurst. The purchaser will erect a one-family brick and stone residence. J. R. Johnson was the broker in the transaction.

Charles E. Rickerson sold 297 Garfield Place, between Eighth Avenue and Prospect Park West, a four-story and basement, bay window, brownstone dwelling, for a client, to Phillip J. Langler for occupancy.

The Bulkley & Horton Company have sold 162 Washington Avenue, a three-story and basement brownstone, private dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100, for John K. Vanderveer, to a client for occupancy.

A growing demand for private houses in the Flatbush district is indicated by the fact that Wood, Harmon & Co. have sold several during the past week, including a one-family brick dwelling on East Forty-sixth Street, near Eighteenth Avenue, in the Kensington Park section, a detached cottage on East Fifteenth Street, near Avenue I, Oak Crest; a two-family detached dwelling on East Eighth Street, near Franklin Avenue, Kensington Park, and a semi-detached two-family brick dwelling on Linden Avenue, between East Forty-fifth and East Forty-sixth Streets.

Long Island City.

Judson A. Harrington has sold for the Courtney Development Company, to an investor, ten lots, size 200 by 95, on the east side of Carolin Street, 300 feet south of Anable Avenue. This is part of the property which was sold at public auction last Saturday by Bryan L. Kennelly.

The same broker is now negotiating the sale of 20 lots on Carolin Street, near Anable Avenue, for building purposes. This property is located two blocks south of the dual subway station, now being constructed on Thomson Avenue. It is figured that the rapid transit system will bring this property within eight minutes of Times Square.

Long Island.

The Windsor Land and Improvement Company sold at Oceanside to J. W. Schmid and J. Hoffman each a plot 40 by 100, Hoke Avenue; to H. L. Kile, two plots, 20 by 97, and to W. King, a plot 20 by 97, Lawson Avenue; to C. Kahrs, a plot 160 by 100, Perkins Avenue; to G. Glynn, a plot 60 by 100, Windsor Parkway; to J. Heins, a plot 40 by 100, Merrifield Avenue; to W. Schrader, a plot 60 by 121, Anchor Avenue. The same company sold at Hempstead to P. Monahan, M. Kelly, and J. T. Mulligan each a plot 40 by 100, Lawson Street; to T. O'Connor, a plot 40 by 100, Miller Street; to S. Caban, a plot 40 by 100, Botsford Street; to I. H. Hemmer, a plot 20 by 120, Grand Avenue; to M. O'Connor, a plot 40 by 100, Weir Street; to P. Bradley, a plot 40 by 100, Bernhard Street; to P. J. Rooney, a plot 60 by 100, Stratford Road.

Recent Buyers.

J. Romaine Brown is the purchaser of the Johnson's Road House property on Jerome Avenue, near 170th Street, reported sold Wednesday. In part payment the seller, Edward Johnson, takes 318 West 140th Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 15 by 99.11, between Eighth and Edgecombe Avenues. The buyer, Brown, intends to remodel the property, and continue it as a hotel.

Mrs. N. Lefevre is the buyer of the Bellmore Apartment at 605 and 607 West 115th Street, reported exclusively in yesterday's edition of THE NEW YORK TIMES. The buyer gave in part payment two private dwellings, one in Garden City, L. I., and the other at Pelham, N. Y.

Morris Park Sale To-morrow.

The Morris Park sale will be begun at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning in the former club house, just south of the Morris Park Avenue entrance to the property, when 3,000 lots will be sold to the highest bidder by Joseph P. Day acting for the State Banking Department. It is expected that the sale will last several days.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

Van Wyck Thorne & J. Arthur Fischer have placed two loans, one for $53,000 at 4½ per cent. and $10,000 second at 6 per cent., for Josephine Voelker and Rose Voelker, as committee of the estate of Louis Voelker, on the premises 422 Seventh Avenue.

To Enlarge Hotel Willard.

Plans have been filed for enlarging the Hotel Willard at 250 to 254 West Seventy-sixth Street, by building a ten-story extension on the east side, having a frontage of 20 feet and a depth of 104.4 feet, with a facade to harmonize with the main building. The Haynes Company, J. G. Phelps Stokes, President, is the owner. Howell & Stokes Company are the architects. The Hotel Willard Company is lessee. The cost has been placed at $95,000.

Three Private Dwellings Planned.

Plans have been filed with Building Superintendent Miller for the construction of a five-story private dwelling on the south side of Seventieth Street, 40 feet west of Lexington Avenue, for Julius Goldman. It will have a frontage of 20 feet and a depth of 100.3 feet, with an extension. The facade will be of brick, with trimmings of marble. The cost has been estimated at $35,000. Herbert M. Baer is the architect.

Plans have also been filed for a five-story private dwelling to be erected on the east side of Park Avenue, 49.6 feet north of Seventy-third Street, for Arthur Ryle. It will have a frontage of 28 feet and a depth of 65 feet, with an extension. The facade will be of limestone, and it will be fireproof. Arthur C. Jackson is the architect. The cost has been estimated at $90,000.

The Edward Corning Company have received the general contract for a private residence to be built for Albert Rathbone at 45-47 East Seventy-eighth Street, from plans and specifications of A. C. Jackson. The structure is to be five stories in height, 33.4 feet wide by 96.6 feet deep, to the rear of the extension.

To-day's Realty Auctions.

Important among several realty auctions to be held to-day will be the sale of 353 lots at Jamaica Hillcrest by William P. Rae. Home building at Jamaica has been stimulated through the shifting of the Long Island Railroad transfer station and the completion of the new Jamaica station at Union Hall Street.

At Lester Hill, White Plains, N. Y., 135 plots, each 50 by 100 feet, will be sold by George W. Bard. The sale will be held on the premises at 2 P. M. Another sale will be held at Port Chester, N. Y., by Austin & Merritt, who will offer 170 restricted residential plots overlooking the Sound, and known as Colonial Ridge. The plots vary in size from 50 by 100 to 100 by 150 feet. Many handsome homes have been built in this vicinity.

Leases.

Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company have leased for Marie D. Bergh the four-story dwelling 123 East Thirty-fourth Street to William H. Asprey for business purposes.

George W. Bretell has leased for Sarah A. Freeborn to Pincus Baron the three-story store and loft building 2,236 Third Avenue, on lot 25 by 100, for a term of five years, and for Samuel Bogen to B. Morris the store in building 2,310 Third Avenue.

Pease & Elliman have rented for Andrew A. Bibby the west store at 565 West 181st Street to Miss Edith M. Bowers.

Harry Levy has leased for Pauline Ehrlich store 690 Second Avenue to the United Supply Company.

Pease & Elliman have leased for a long term of years the store at 43 John Street for Jacob Corday to Philip Zeitlen.

The Cross & Brown Co. has leased for United States Trust Company the entire building at 110 West Fifty-fourth Street to E. Lascaris for a term of years.

Realty Notes.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, held on May 26, Harold W. Hoyt was elected Assistant Treasurer in place of George W. Bailey, deceased, and Edgar I. Hillary was elected an Assistant Secretary.

Banking Department
State of New York

TO THE PUBLIC:

In 1910, through the failure of the Carnegie Trust Company and the Northern Bank of New York, the Banking Department as the liquidator of these institutions came into possession of a large amount of the securities of the corporation which owned the Morris Park Race Track.

The Department has agreed to the sale of this property at an absolutely unprotected auction sale in order to help pay the creditors of these failed institutions.

This Department realizes that a large tract of this kind, consisting of 3019 lots, cannot be sold at public or private sale without a great sacrifice of values.

If, however, such sale is made at public auction, properly advertised, the public, instead of private speculators with large capital, will have the opportunity to make money from such sacrifice of values.

This opportunity has been explained to the public largely through advertisements and press announcements.

A letter from this Department has been published giving a description of this magnificent property and calling the attention of the public to it.

Attention has been called to the building up of the Bronx and the steady rise and marked increase in the value of its real estate.

Corporation sales authorized by the City of New York have been quoted, showing the price at which the property was sold and the present largely increased values.

It has been shown how small amounts of money invested at previous sales have grown to large amounts by reason of such increased values, the growth of the district in population, and the erection of buildings.

The steady growth of the City northward from its very beginning, and the cause of such growth, have been described.

It has been shown that this property is in the direct line of growth, and, in fact, that such growth has at the present time reached Morris Park.

This growth, caused by transit facilities already built and now building, for the past ten years, the past five years, and for this last year, has been shown and illustrated.

Everything within the power of the Department has been done to call attention to the sale.

While the Department realizes that the present time is not a favorable one to sell such property at auction owing to the low prices of securities, the uncertainty as to tariff changes, and various other causes, A SALE CAN NO LONGER BE DEFERRED.

The Department feels that it has done its full duty in calling the public's attention to this sale and the opportunities afforded by it.

IT IS HOPED THAT THE PUBLIC WILL APPRECIATE THE MANNER IN WHICH THIS OFFERING IS MADE AND SO DEMONSTRATE ITS APPRECIATION THAT THE DEPARTMENT WILL FEEL JUSTIFIED IN OFFERING FOR SALE IN THIS MANNER OTHER PARCELS OF REAL ESTATE OWNED BY INSTITUTIONS IN PROCESS OF LIQUIDATION, THUS GIVING TO ALL THE PEOPLE A CHANCE TO SHARE IN THE PROFITS THAT MAY RESULT FROM SUCH A SACRIFICE OF VALUES.

ALBANY, N. Y., THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1913.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CITY OF NEW YORK.
BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held May 8, 1913, the following petition was received:

To the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York:

The Bronx Traction Company, a street surface railroad corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New York, hereby petitions for a franchise to construct, maintain, and operate an extension of its existing railroad in the Borough of the Bronx, City of New York, with a double track in, upon, along, and over the following described route:

Beginning at and connecting with the existing tracks of the Company in Morris Park Avenue at or near its intersection with the southwesterly side of Bronxdale Avenue, (formerly Bear Swamp Road,) thence northeasterly across said Bronxdale Avenue to the intersection of the northeasterly side thereof with a new road on private property to be known as Morris Park Avenue and to be ceded to the City of New York as a public street, and thence northeasterly upon and along the said new road to its intersection with Williamsbridge Road.

Dated New York, May 5th, 1913.

THE BRONX TRACTION COMPANY,
By EDWARD A. MAHER,
[Corporate Seal.] Vice President.

Attest: FREDERIC J. FULLER, Secretary.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:

EDWARD A. MAHER, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the Vice President of The Bronx Traction Company, the petitioner herein, that he has read the foregoing petition and knows the contents thereof, and that the same is true of his own knowledge. EDWARD A. MAHER.

Sworn to before me this 5th day of May, 1913. JAS. S. WILLIAMS, [Seal.] Notary Public 4089, New York County.

Whereas, The foregoing petition from The Bronx Traction Company, dated May 5, 1913, was presented to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at a meeting held May 8, 1913.

Resolved, That in pursuance of law this board sets Thursday, the fifth day of June, 1913, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and Room 16 in the City Hall, Borough of Manhattan, as the time and place when and where such petition shall be first considered, and a public hearing be had thereon, at which citizens shall be entitled to appear and be heard; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary is directed to cause such petition and these resolutions to be published for at least fourteen (14) days in two daily newspapers in the City of New York, to be designated by the Mayor, and for at least ten (10) days in the "City Record" immediately prior to such date of public hearing. The expense of such publication to be borne by the petitioner.

(The Herald and THE TIMES designated.)

These Easy Housekeeping Homes of Colonial Architecture Are Three Blocks From Jamaica's New Railway Station

THE erection of the new magnificent terminal and completion of other vast improvements by the L. I. Railroad are completely changing the residence section of Jamaica, which means the location of these truly homelike houses is within four minutes of your train, eighteen minutes of New York or Brooklyn.

Jamaica by reason of its central location has become the great transfer and distributing point to all parts of Long Island.

These houses were built to satisfy the need that has long existed but until now has not been supplied in Greater New York. That is, artistic homes, inside and outside, for people of refined taste and culture who have but modest means with which to gratify their desire for a home which is beautiful, as well as utilitarian in the best sense.

Built on pure Colonial lines, green slate roof, red brick, white trim and modernly appointed within, these houses, with their location and transit facilities, offer an unusual opportunity to the man who desires to rear his family in the country and yet enjoy a nearness to the city.

These houses contain modern laundry, kitchen, butler's pantry, dining room, living room, 5 bedrooms and bath; have steam heat, open hearths, 17-foot front lawns and 35-foot back yard, 20-foot driveway in rear for automobiles, tradesmen, etc. Streets, sidewalks, water, gas and electricity, all in and paid for.

See representative at house on Colonial Ave., between Fulton St. and Hillside Drive, or the undersigned.

HOMES ON VERY EASY TERMS

With the double purpose of enhancing the value of our lot property, and affording people of moderate means an opportunity of owning their homes, we are building at New Dorp Manor, five, six and seven-room two-story dwellings in choice locations, ranging in price from $3,500 to $8,000. We accept $300 to $500 down, and you occupy a house at once, paying thereafter $15 to $25 monthly, just as you can afford, and probably less than the money you are now paying as rent and owning nothing. Think this over. Write for our free map, or call between 10 and 12 A. M., and see photographs of houses we build. Lots $200 to $500 each.

TEN BRONX HOUSES BURNED

Mounted Policeman Robertson of the Tremont station, turned in an alarm yesterday afternoon when he saw smoke coming from the gabled roof of a two-family frame house at 1,358 College Avenue, the Bronx, in the middle of a row of twenty houses of the same type.

Engine Company 92, commanded by Lieut. Regnan, came promptly with a motor engine and motor trucks, but when they got into action the flames were roaring along the roofs of several of the adjoining houses. The buildings on this block all have gabled roofs with attics not separated by partitions, so that there was an unobstructed air space along the entire length of the twenty houses. Along this course the flames were driven by a terrific draft, consuming the shingled house-tops like paper. As soon as Lieut. Regnan saw what a serious fire was threatened he turned in a second alarm.

Deputy Chief Callahan responded to the second alarm and turned in a third, which brought Chief Kenlon. The roofs and upper stories of ten houses had been destroyed before the firemen were able to get the flames under control.

Deputy Chief Callahan said he had complained to the Building Department of the danger of a fire arising from these buildings with open attics. Lieut. Regnan and two of his company rescued Mrs. Robert McAllister, an invalid, from an upper floor of one of the burning buildings.

Ten of the houses were damaged by the fire. The loss was estimated at $25,000.

JERSEY'S ALIEN PROBLEM.

State Department Hears of Discrimination Against Italians.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 29.—Through its counsel, John Bassett Moore, the State Department at Washington recently called Gov. Fielder's attention to what was termed discrimination against Italians in Newark. Mr. Moore stated that the Italian Ambassador had complained about an advertisement appearing in Newark papers of an auction sale of lots, in which it was set forth that no sales would be made to negroes or Italians. The Italian Ambassador reported that there was already much ill-feeling because of the discrimination, and the State Department asked the Governor to have the matter corrected lest the feeling should give rise to public gatherings and possibly to disorder.

Gov. Fielder wrote to Mayor Haussling of Newark, calling his attention to the situation. The Mayor, replying, said he was unable to find any such advertisement. He had conferred with several leading Italian residents, he said, and they knew of no such publication or of the slightest ill-feeling. The Mayor said he would continue his investigation, however, and if such a situation was found to exist an attempt would be made to remedy it.

The Governor has been informed that the tract of land in question is in Union County, and he will extend the inquiry to that section.

You can get lots of clothes "made-to-measure" at the price of good ready clothes; or even at less; there are plenty of so-called "custom tailors" who will "make to measure" a suit at $15, $18, $20, $25. If you know anything about making clothes you know it can't be done, if you are to get anything like respectable quality.

If your clothes are bought solely on the basis of price, without reference to intrinsic values in fabrics, linings, tailoring, we're not "in it" with these "custom tailors;" go your way in peace.

We find, however, a growing sense among intelligent men, of the fact that there's no magic in clothes-making that will put quality-value into poor materials and cheap workmanship. They're coming to see that good materials and high-class tailoring are best for them; and that the only way to get them is to pay the price.

NOTED MEN ARE HERE FOR MAINE TRIBUTE

Ex-President Taft Among Those Who Will Dedicate Park Memorial This Afternoon.

5,000 SAILORS TO PARADE

Cuban Gunboat, Whose Men Will March in the Procession, Joins the Fleet in the Hudson.

With the arrival in the Hudson yesterday of the superdreadnought Florida, flagship of Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow, commanding the First Division of the Atlantic Fleet, the Cuban gunboat Cuba, the naval tender Yankton, and the auxiliary ship Celtic, the fleet was completed which was ordered to New York to take part in the dedication of the Maine Monument, which will be unveiled this afternoon at the entrance to Central Park in Columbus Circle in the presence of ex-President Taft and other noted men. There are now in the river five superdreadnoughts, one dreadnought, and five first-line battleships, in addition to the trim little cruiser Cuba.

Yesterday was a busy day for the naval men. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, arrived in town early in the morning and the Cuban gunboat Cuba steamed to her anchorage off 110th Street at 10 o'clock. The saluting started with the arrival of the Cuba. As soon as the gunboat anchored, the Wyoming, flagship of Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet, fired a National salute of twenty-one guns in honor of the visitors. The Wyoming is thirteen times as large as the Cuba, which looks like a toy boat as she lies surrounded by the powerful ships of our fleet.

Ships Open to Visitors.

All of the ships will be open to visitors this afternoon from 1:30 o'clock until sundown. Visitors to the dreadnoughts Wyoming, Florida, Arkansas, Delaware, and North Dakota may depart for them from the landing at Eightieth Street. The landing for the ships of the next division—the New Hampshire, the South Carolina, the Kansas, and the Cuba—is at Ninety-seventh Street. Passengers for the rest of the ships—the Virginia, the Georgia, the New Jersey, and the Rhode Island—should depart from the pier at 129th Street.

The 5,000 sailors from the American ships who will take part in the parade before the unveiling of the Maine Monument, and who will be stationed around the shaft for the dedication ceremonies, will land at the piers at the foot of Forty-third, Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth Streets at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. They will march across town in stations on these streets at Fifth Avenue, where the parade will start at 2 o'clock. They will form the second division.

The parade will be reviewed at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street by the Secretary of the Navy, Mayor Gaynor, Admiral Badger, Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, and the members of the Maine Monument Committee at 2:30 o'clock. The first division of the parade will be the regular soldiers from Governors Island and nearby army posts; the third division, members of the National Guard, and the fourth and last division the veterans of the Spanish war.

The monument will be unveiled at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. At 1 o'clock the officers of the Atlantic Fleet and of the gunboat Cuba, the Secretary of the Navy, and other invited guests, will attend a luncheon given by the members of the Monument Committee, which consists of Gen. James Grant Wilson, Chairman; William Randolph Hearst, and John W. Keller. After the luncheon, which will be served at the Plaza, the guests will be taken to the reviewing stand at Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue.

As soon as the parade has passed the members of the committee and those who are to speak at the dedication, will go in automobiles to the site of the monument at the entrance to the park. Bishop Grier will offer a prayer, after which Gen. Wilson will present the monument to the city. Mayor Gaynor will make the speech accepting the monument. The other speakers will be ex-President Taft, Secretary Daniels, Rear Admiral Sigsbee, who as a Captain was in command of the Maine when that vessel was sunk in Havana harbor. When the monument is unveiled the fact will be signalled to the fleet in the river, and the ships there will fire a salute of twenty-one guns.

Of the warships in the river, the one that attracted the most attention yesterday was the Cuba. She is a gunboat of 2,200 tons, and her armament consists of four six-pounders, four three-pound, and four one-pound guns. She carries a crew of 170 officers and men, and is the largest ship in the Cuban navy.

Commander Quevedo, who is also a Lieutenant Colonel in the Cuban army, commands the Cuba. He will represent the Cuban navy at the ceremonies today. The other representatives of Cuba are Señor Manuel de la Vega Calderon, the Cuban Chargé d'Affaires in Washington; Col. José Marti, representing the army; Mariano Rocafort, the Consul General in New York, and Representatives Felipe Pazos and Joaquin Torralbas, who represent the Cuban Congress.

The Cuba brought to New York a company of Cuban soldiers, in addition to her crew of sailors, and also the Cuban National military band of eighty-two instruments. The sailors and soldiers will have a prominent place in today's parade, and an equally prominent one at the dedication exercises. By order of Secretary of State Bryan, Third Assistant Secretary of State Dudley Field Malone will arrive in New York this morning to represent the Government at Washington in the entertainment of the Cuban visitors.

ENTERTAIN FLEET OFFICERS.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Give a Reception and Dance at Their Home.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hearst gave a reception, dinner, and dance at their home, 137 Riverside Drive, last evening in honor of the officers of the United States Atlantic Fleet who are here to attend the dedication of the Maine Monument in Columbus Circle. Among the guests were Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Daniels; Lindley M. Garrison, Secretary of War, and Mrs. Garrison; Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee, retired, commander of the old Maine when she was sunk in Havana harbor; United States Senator James A. O'Gorman and Mrs. O'Gorman, and Commander Quevedo of the Cuban Navy. Gov. Sulzer with Mrs. Sulzer attended the reception, but the Governor was unable to stay for the dinner.

All of the officers appeared in full dress uniform. Tables for the dinner were arranged in the main dining room, the Gothic room, and the art gallery. Some of the guests at the dinner were:

Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet; Commander Charles F. Hughes, Chief of Staff; Rear Admiral Cameron McR. Winslow, commanding First Division; Rear Admiral N R. Usher, commanding Second Division; Capt. James H. Oliver of the New Hampshire, Capt. William S. Benson of the Utah, Capt. Thomas Snowden of the North Carolina, Capt. W. G. Maxwell of the Florida, Capt. Hugh Rodman of the Delaware, Capt. John A. Hoogewerff of the Kansas, Capt. Henry B. Wilson of the North Dakota, Capt. Marbury Johnson of the Georgia, Capt. F. L. Chapin of the Wyoming, Capt. C. S. Williams of the Rhode Island, Capt. Frank K. Hill of the New Jersey, and Capt. John C. McDonald of the Virginia.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston and Mrs. Fitzgerald, Felipe Pazos, Cuban Commissioner; Joaquin Torralbas, Gen. and Mrs. James Grant Wilson, Col. and Mrs. John S. Mallory, District Attorney Charles S. Whitman and Mrs. Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Doheny, Mr. and Mrs. George Leary, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Shearn, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Hare, Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, Mrs. Frederick Nielson, Mrs. Gouverneur Kortright, Major Edward G. Schermerhorn, the Misses Agnes and Rose Fitzgerald, Justice James W. Gerard, Miss Darlington, Miss O'Gorman, Miss Torpardis, Mrs. C. S. Wood, and Mrs. A. W. Tovey.

Among the guests at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Breitung, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, Mrs. Thurber Pruyn, Miss Blanche Sheehan, Miss Madeline O'Brien, Miss Marion Winter, Miss Helen Winter, Miss Dorothy Embery, and Miss D. Canfield.

OFFICIALS EXCHANGE VISITS.

Mayor Gaynor and W. R. Hearst Shake Hands at City Hall.

The Secretary of the Navy, the flag officers of the Atlantic Fleet, and the Cuban representatives who are here to participate in the dedication of the Maine Monument this afternoon, exchanged calls yesterday and paid their respects to Mayor Gaynor. The Maine Monument Committee, consisting of Gen. James Grant Wilson, William Randolph Hearst, and John W. Keller, accompanied the visitors. At the Mayor's office Mr. Gaynor and Mr. Hearst met and shook hands. Later they were photographed in the same group.

Admiral Badger assured the Mayor that he and his men were glad to be here, and one of the Cuban visitors told the Mayor that if the United States ever got into trouble the country could count on the friendship of his Nation.

The round of visits started yesterday with the arrival of the Secretary of the Navy. Commander Leigh C. Palmer, U. S. N., the Secretary's aid, did not accompany him, owing to illness in his family. The Secretary was met at the Hotel Plaza by the Monument Committee, Dock Commissioner Smith, and the Cuban delegates. After a brief exchange of courtesies Secretary Daniels, the Cubans, and the members of the committee proceeded to the landing at Seventy-third Street, where battleship launches were waiting to take the party to the Wyoming.

Admiral Badger and his staff and Admirals Winslow and Usher, the division commanders, welcomed the visitors to the flagship. As soon as the Cuban visitors were on board, the Wyoming hoisted the Cuban flag, and fired a National salute in their honor.

After a short reception on the Wyoming the party, accompanied by Admirals Badger and Winslow and their aids, went ashore and were driven in automobiles to the City Hall, where they met Mayor Gaynor.

"How do you do," the Mayor said as he offered his hand to Mr. Hearst.

Mr. Hearst said he was doing very well.

In greeting Admiral Badger, the Mayor said:

"I am very glad, indeed, to receive you, especially Admiral Winslow. I have received Winslow so often that I know him by sight when I see him, whether he is in uniform or not. And while you are here we will be glad to do everything that we can to entertain you and look out for your comfort."

"We always profit by the hospitality of New York," Admiral Barger answered.

"It is a pretty bad place," the Mayor rejoined, "but we have some good traits here after all."

After the reception in the Mayor's office the Mayor and his visitors were photographed on the City Hall steps. Then the naval officers and their hosts had luncheon together, after which they returned to the City Hall, and, taking Mayor Gaynor with them, went to Pier at the Battery, where they went on board the police boat Patrol and steamed to the Wyoming and then to the Cuba. Police Commissioner Waldo joined the party for this trip.

While the Mayor and the naval officers visited the war ships, Secretary of the Navy Daniels made his first inspection of the New York Navy Yard. The Secretary said that he was in favor of building more ships in the Government navy yards than we had in the past. He said that improvements should be made in the yard so that the naval station could construct two battleships of the New York type at the same time instead of only one.

In the afternoon Secretary Daniels visited the superdreadnought New York under construction, and saw the operation of hoisting the 115-ton forward gun turret No. 1 on board the vessel and placing it in position.

PROGRAMME FOR EXERCISES.

Placing of President Woodrow Wilson's wreath by Chaplain John P. Chidwick, late U. S. S. Maine.
Placing of State of Maine wreath by Adjt. Gen. Elliott P. Dill.
Placing of New York City wreath by Miss Marion Gaynor.
Placing of wreath by Rear Admiral Sigsbee, U. S. N.
Placing of wreaths of which the committee has no notice.
After the last speaker on the list has closed his remarks "Taps" will be sounded at the Monument by buglers from the ships of the fleet.
Arranged and conducted under direction of Frederick D. Owen, of Department of Public Buildings and Grounds, Washington, D. C.

LONG ISLAND'S CELEBRATION.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 29.—The Hempstead Plains aviation field will open to-morrow for the season if the wind permits. C. Murvin Wood of Kansas, Mo., is expected to fly from the field at 4 o'clock to Staten Island in his Moisant monoplane. Frederick C. Hild will make a trial for a pilot's license, and George M. Dyott, in a monoplane of his own make, propelled by a 75 horse power motor, will also fly. Horace Kemerle will fly in a Boland tailless biplane.

Those living on Nassau Boulevard have planned an elaborate festival for to-morrow. A fireman's parade is to start from the station plaza at 11 o'clock in the morning. After this there will be a contest of the fire crews at Brompton Road. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon children's dances and running, bicycle, and potato races will be held. A suffrage parade will start from the plaza at 3 o'clock and a ball game between married men and single men will be played in the afternoon.

PARADES AND CEREMONIES.

Principal Features of Decoration Day Observances.

Following is the line of march of three Memorial Day parades, the order of the Maine Monument exercises, and the time and place of other observances of the day:

G. A. R. PARADE.—Starts from Seventy-second Street and Riverside Drive at 9 A. M. Route: Up Riverside Drive past reviewing stand at Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument, at Eighty-ninth Street. Disbands at Ninety-second Street.

WORK-HORSE PARADE.—Starts at Washington Square at 9:30 o'clock. Route: North on Fifth Avenue to Forty-second Street. Passes reviewing stand at Madison Square at 10 A. M.

MAINE MEMORIAL MONUMENT PARADE.—Starts from Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street at 2:30 P. M. Route: North on Fifth Avenue past reviewing stand, at Hotel Plaza; west on Fifty-ninth Street to Central Park West, north on Central Park West to Seventy-ninth Street.

MAINE MONUMENT UNVEILING EXERCISES.—3:30 P. M. at the Maine Monument, Central Park West and Fifty-ninth Street. Former President Taft, Secretary of War Lindsey M. Garrison, Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, and others to make addresses.

G. A. R. MEMORIAL SERVICES.—8 P. M. at Carnegie Hall, Fifty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue.

Veteran Boys in Gray See Boston.

BOSTON, May 29.—The forty-six Confederate veterans, members of the Old Guard of Atlanta, who came to Boston to attend the Memorial Day exercises, were the guests to-day of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. Plans for their entertainment included an automobile trip to Lexington and Concord and a visit to the estate of Col. Everett C. Benton in Belmont. The Southern visitors will march to-morrow to the State House, place a floral tribute on the Sailors and Soldiers' Monument on Boston Common, and be the luncheon guests of E. W. Kinsley Post, No. 113, G. A. R.

Let the Children "Treat" at Home

The sort of drinks they spend their nickels for outside is more than likely to contain saccharin, glucose, coal tar products and dangerous adulterants; is served or bottled under unsanitary conditions and constitutes a very serious menace. Investigate or ask your doctor.

When they drink

they are drinking pure spring water, sugar, ginger and lemon, bottled in absolutely clean bottles. The severest analysis will show not the slightest trace of any adulterant or impure substance.

"Clicquot Club" is refreshing, healthful, and its flavor is so delicious that, by contrast, ordinary carbonated drinks become distasteful to the children.

STOLE FOR HER WEDDING.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., May 29.—Instead of preparing for her wedding, which is scheduled to take place within three weeks, twenty-four-year-old Caroline Hornecker of 80 Columbia Street, Newark, is in the East Orange jail on a charge of theft, brought against her by her employer, Olaf E. Bugge, proprietor of a dry goods store here.

She was arrested last night by Detective Wendel, who testified in court to-day that she had confessed her guilt. Articles of lingerie were displayed in court and identified as the property of the complainant. The girl made no plea in court. The police suspect that she stole the articles to wear at her wedding.
